MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—Lieut.-Governor Angers has decided to resign and stand for Richelieu. Several politicians here who claim to be on the inside say this is part of the government plan, and that Langevin and Augers will simply exchange places, thus avoiding the Tarte-McGreevy scandal.

A meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Montreal has been called for Saturday night at the Windsor.

The Herald will publish an evening edition, commencing Monday.

Manitoba.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 5.—The Conservatives of Winnipeg meet Tuesday, but the Reformers have as yet made no movement. In many quarters Sir Donald Smith's name is favorably received as an independent candidate. Both parties in Marquette hold conventions at Minnedosa on the 11th, when Watson will be nominated by the Liberals and either Oras of Minnedosa or Boyd of Carbery will be the choice of the Conservatives. The Liberals of Selkirk meet at Wawanesa on the 11th and the Conservatives at Boissevain on the following day. Daly will seek renomination and Christie, Reform candidate at last election, may be the choice of the Reformers. Ross in Lisgar and Larivierre in Provencher have not yet been opposed, although efforts are being made to put candidates against them.

What the English Papers Say of Sir John's Scheme.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The Standard in an editorial this morning argues that there is a political object behind the American tariff which seeks to drive Canada into a corner and inflict the greatest possible commercial injury on her, hoping that the Canadians, worn out by the struggle, will ask admittance to the United States. This, that paper declares, constitutes a weak point in Sir John Macdonald's otherwise statesmanlike policy. Neither Sir John's nor the Opposition's proposals are likely to be endorsed by Americans, but Sir John's is a dignified and patriotic scheme of which no Canadian or Englishman need be ashamed An election will compel Secretary Blaine and his Government to show their cards face upward, and thus serve a useful purpose. One thing is perfectly clear—America will never help Canada to get rid of her commercial embarrassments unless Canada consents as the first step to put only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

mine time to surrender her political independence.

The Times says: The adoption of the McKinley bill is hardly taken to lessen America's opposition to Sir John Macdonald's offer of reciprocity, but the collapse of the tariff movement may weaken the forces of the Americans protectionists and incline them to compromise. We doubt whether the question will be fought out at the elections on the broad issue of Commercial Union. It is to be feared there will be an attempt to capture the popular vote on false pretences. It would be rash to speculate on the verdict. We have no sympathy with the so-called National Policy, to which is chargeable some of the Dominion's difficulties. We are not more enamored of the plan of purchasing American sympathy by enacting differential duties against British trade.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 5.—In Charlotte county Hon. A. H. Gillmor will be the Liberal candidate again. J. E. Chipman will probably be chosen by Conservatives. In Restigouche Mr. Moffat will run as the Government candidate and John McAllister, also Conservative, will probably oppose him. Hon. Peter Mitchell has wired his friends in Northumberland that he has accepted the Liberal nomination. Hon. Michael Adams will oppose him. In Carleton D. McLeod Vince will be the Government candidate. At a convention held in Albert County to-night Dr. Weldon was nominated as the Conservative candidate. In Queen's George I. Baird is the Conservative and G. G. King the Liberal candidate. K. F. An effort is being made in Quebec Centre to have Sir Hector Langevin oppose Hon. Francois Langelier.

Nelson Willard, wholesale hardware merchant of Prescott, will run in the Liberal interest in South Grenville.

Hon. Mr. Laurier, it is reported, is to have opposition in St. Roch's, and may also be nominated in Three Rivers.

A Manitoba politician says that Robert Watson will retire from Marquette to make room for Hon. Joseph Martin.

The Reformers of West York meet to-day at Weston. Mr. W. H. P. Clement, a young barrister of Toronto, is likely to get the nomination.

It is said that W. B. Scarth will not again be a candidate in Winnipeg and that Hugh Sutherland is likely to be chosen as the Conservative standard-bearer.

A gentleman just from Prince Edward Island regards it as almost certain that the little province will return at least four Conservatives this time.

Chief Moses Maio of the Iroquois tribe in the vicinity of Montreal says all of these Indians who has a vote will cast it against the Government.

The names of Mr. A. E. Poirier, advocate, and Joseph Lamarche, president of the French-Canadian Artisans Society, are mentioned as probable opponents to Mr. Lepine in Montreal East.

In South Renfrew, Mr. John Ferguson says he will not seek re-election. Mr. Duncan McIntyre, ex-vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is likely to be the Reform candidate there.

Several names are mentioned in opposition to Mr. J. J. Curran for Montreal Centre, the most prominent being that of ex-Alderman Mullen, wholesale grocer, who, Mayor-elect McShane says, will spend $50,000 if necessary to be elected.

Sir Hector Langevin, it is said, will allow himself to be nominated for both Three Rivers and Bonaventure. In the former place the Liberals are anxious to have Hon. Mr. Laurier oppose Sir Hector, besides standing for his old constituency of Quebec East.

In South Ontario William Smith will stand for re-election. A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Conservative Association will be held at Whitby on Saturday to map a plan of action. The Reformers will offer nomination to William Ross of Port Perry.

She approached her husband on the train, but he refused to have any conversation with her.

HAMILTON, Feb. 5.—It is said that the C.P.R. line from Cooksville to Hamilton will certainly be built this summer. The C.P.R. time-table and map which was issued a week or so ago shows a dotted air-line from Woodstock to the Niagara River at the Falls, another from Cooksville to Hamilton, and a spur line running south from the city and connecting with the air-line. The dotted lines on the map represent the company's projected lines.

The Late W. D Booker.

HAMILTON, Feb. 5.—W. D. Booker, secretary of the Victoria Mutual Fire Insurance Company, whose sudden death was announced yesterday, was a son of the late Rev. Alfred Booker, a Baptist clergyman, and was born in Nottinghamshire, England, about 63 years ago. He came to Canada with his father in 1843, and the family settled in Hamilton. Rev. Mr. Booker was killed in the great Desjardins bridge disaster. Mr. Booker is survived by his wife, four sons and two daughters. A Reply.

The Agricultural Society Replies to the St. Andrew's Society.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Would you kindly allow us space in your valuable paper to answer that very malicious and wanton attack made by the St. Andrew's Society (or a faction of it) over the signature of the President, George Noble, on the Agricultural Society because that one paragraph of the Annual Report of the officers referred to a matter of business, casually, between the officers of the two societies.

First of all this precious tirade comments on the small attendance and lack of interest taken by the members. We admit the attendance was not what the importance of the meeting deserved, but was scarcely so small as stated by our friends, none of whom, however, were present on this occasion, they having lost all their boasted sympathy with the agricultural interests, which they professed to have last summer, but which had disappeared on the last of of November, for at their annual dinner they omitted to propose or honor the agricultural interests among the long list of toasts proposed. We do not know if the loss of haggis was the cause, or whether they were ashamed to acknowledge the agriculturists after their base treatment of our Society, or probably they were anticipating the report which they are pleased to call incorrect and injudicious, but which we claim is neither the one nor the other. The clause referred to merely mentioned the games by their society as one of the features of the fair, as was done with other attractions, in a general way, commenting on some and commending others as they deserved, which is the usual way in the reports of officers to their members.

We will now give you a statement of how the affair commenced. Some time about the middle of July last Messrs. Cameron and Noble spoke to some of the Directors about making arrangements for holding Caledonian games at the Fall Fair. They said it would be a good drawing card, and attract a very large attendance, thereby being a great benefit to our Society, and they (St. Andrew's Society) would not expect to make much out of it financially, but that it would be a mutual benefit to both Societies. Committees were appointed by each Society, and the first meeting held in the parlour of the Morgan House, on the evening of July 26th, when the Exhibition Committee wanted something more than the mere running off of a few games, so their Committee said they would work up an excursion from Toronto. An adjournment was made for one week to allow their Secretary to correspond with the Highland Societies in Toronto, and they also sent Messrs. Cameron and Noble up as a deputation for the said purpose. The next meeting was held in the same place as the previous one, on August 2nd, the minutes of which we will give as written by Mr. Menzies, Secretary of the St. Andrew's Society, and published in the DAILY EXAMINER on August 4th, a proof also being sent to the Evening Review of same date, by Mr. Menzies, for publication. This is a true copy as published, and giving the names of Committees, showing Mr. Noble's letter to be misleading from start to finish:

"At a meeting of the Committee of the Central Exhibition held in the Morgan House on Saturday evening, a satisfactory agreement was reached with the Executive Committee of the St. Andrew's Society for holding a grand exhibition of Scottish games and other first-class athletic sports, on the second day of the Central Exhibition.

"There was present at the meeting Messrs. H. C. Winch, A. P. Morgan, J. A. Davidson, Geo. Elliott and the Secretary, Wm. Collins, in behalf of the Exhibition Directors, and Messrs. Chas. Cameron, President; Geo. H. Noble, Vice-President; R. M. Denniston, Treasurer; W. Battesby, and W. Menzies, Secretary, in behalf of St. Andrew's Society.

"In the absence of President Rutherford Mr. Winch acted as chairman during the evening and called upon the St. Andrew's deputation to state their case.

"The deputation then recited the details of their visit to Toronto, and the satisfactory result of their interview with the various representatives of the Scottish societies for securing the attendance of Highlanders, pipers and others who usually take part in Scottish games throughout the Province. The Secretary also read the following letter, which he had received since the return of the deputation; from J. M. Wingfield, Grand Chief of the Grand Camp, Sons of Scotland:

"GRAND CAMP, SONS OF SCOTLAND,
OFFICE OF GRAND CHIEF,
TORONTO, 1st August, 1890.

"DEAR SIR,—Your favor to hand regarding a Scotch day during the exhibition. Since your president was here I have seen some of our pipers and others who usually take part in our games, and they say if the prizes are liberal they will go; and if a cheap trip can be arranged from Toronto on the day, you will have a great many from this city. I will do what I can to encourage our men, as opportunity offers, to take in your games. I feel some interest in your town, as I think you ought to have a camp of the Sons of Scotland.

"Wishing you every success in your undertaking,

"I am, sir, yours very truly,

"J. M. WINGFIELD.

"After some further talk the exhibition committee expressed themselves unanimously in favor of securing this additional attraction to the fair, and, on motion, a resolution was passed closing with the terms proposed for the same. An agreement was then drawn up and signed by the respective secretaries of the two bodies, after which the deputation withdrew."

Now, Sir, you will see we had no advantage in point of numbers on the committee, but were really at a disadvantage, having no solicitor on our behalf.

After the deputation mentioned had reported, and before the agreement was drawn, several members of our committee asked how many excursionists they could promise to bring to town from Toronto. Messrs. Cameron, Noble and Menzies all said they would certainly have from six to eight hundred, among which would be Highland societies in uniform, who would march down the street to the fair grounds to the music of the bagpipes.

It was on the strength of these statements, our committee thinking they were dealing with honourable men, that this precious agreement was drawn up (not by a blacksmith or shoemaker either, who, however, left a small loop hole in it, but quite large enough for that very honourable committee of the St. Andrew's Society to crawl through). Some time after Mr. Cameron was again sent up to Toronto about the excursion, but he seemed to fail in his mission. We from time to time kept asking about the progress they were making with the excursion. At last they said they had failed to get a cheap one, but hoped for quite a large crowd anyway. But imagine our surprise when the large crowd came down in one hack—just six, but not the six hundred.

Another cause of complaint we have. There was a draft programme of games mentioned in the agreement. This programme contained fourteen events. Eleven of these were to be cash prizes, three cups or medals. Mr. Menzies took this away and was to return it after copying, which he never did, although it was demanded personally and by letter.

Mr. Menzies says he gave the original programme to Mr. Dobbin, of the Review, as the copy for games on our posters. This was, after being set up ready for posters, taken away from the printer and another programme substituted, giving twelve events. In eleven of those the prizes were cups and medals and in one event cash prizes. This was done without saying by your leave. The item for this change in programme on the poster was on our bill, but we had no right to pay it and did not, and it still remains unpaid, although these gentlemen promised to pay for this change. They also changed the programme to cups and medals, the latter being cheaper, and these philanthropists wanting the cash. This had the effect of keeping the competition among only local athletes. Professionals did not come, only two being from outside the county, the rest of the competitors being our own local men, with a few from the neighboring villages, not the kind or quality of performance we were expecting to get for $200.00.

Another clause in the agreement says they were to put forth their best efforts to make the Scottish day a success. Did they do so, and in what way? We claim that they failed altogether to keep faith with us. We are willing to leave it to a discriminating public to say whether or no we were not justified in asking a reduction from the $200.00 stipulated.

On Oct. 15th we paid them $130.00, and requested the treasurer to try and get them to accept that sum in full. That was rather better than 50c. on the dollar, and we think a great deal more than we ought to have paid under the circumstances, but we were told by those Christian Jews by their action, "No, give us our pound of flesh." When we demurred they sued the committee individually, also Mr. Hugh Davidson, who was not a director, and at a subsequent meeting of the directors the committee was instructed to settle with them, which was done, the St. Andrew's Society paying all costs, including our solicitor's.

Then the gratuitous advice to the public to have all agreements with the Directors in writing is, to say the least, very kind and disinterested on their part, but the people of this community will not be slow to see what a mean advantage was taken of a technicality in an agreement by those 19th century Pharisees. The following old stanza would almost explain the matter itself. It reads thus:

Sometimes we with false brethren meet
Whose hearts are filled with base deceit;
They appear quite fair, just at the first,
But of all men these are the worst.

In conclusion we would say that we have given a true statement from the first, which of necessity is very long, as a great many charges were to answer, but in no case will we follow this controversy any further, as it would do no good to any one.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in furnishing us so much of your valuable space, we remain,

Yours truly,
Signed on behalf of the Committee of the Board of Directors,
WM. COLLINS,
Secretary Agricultural Society.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

SHIPS OVERLAND.

The Great Prospects Looming Up for Toronto.

TO BE AN OCEAN PORT.

Ocean Vessels to Enter Chicago Harbour in Less Than Ten Years—East and West on an Equality—The Influence This Would Have on Canada A New Commercial Era in Sight for Ontario.

[CONCLUDED.]

ENGLAND TO CHICAGO

"About two years ago a syndicate was formed in London whose object was to build and operate a line of steamships to run from some point in England to Chicago, bringing out miscellaneous freight and carrying dressed beef and dairy products back. Nothing was done at that time, owing to the fact that Canadian canals would not accommodate ships drawing nine feet of water. Recently the shallowest canal has been so far improved as to afford a depth of a little over nine feet, and the project is being pushed with a vigor which indicates that the salt water ships may soon be steamed up and down the Detroit River. The length of the ships is limited to 185 feet, and while on the inland voyage they will draw only nine feet. The fuel on the ocean will increase this draft a foot or two. The ships will run at a little over eleven miles per hour. The freight will be delivered at Toronto, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago. An agent of this syndicate is now on a visit to the different lake cities making contracts for freight by the new line, and, so far, he has met with sufficient success to satisfy him that the undertaking will be a success. The capital stock of the company will be $5,000,000, and there will be ten steamers built to begin with. These ships will cost from $125,000 to $150,000 each, and will form a weekly line, with two ships running mid. In winter two ships will remain on the lakes, to be ready to start for England as soon as the ice permits. The others will spend the winter months between England and Portland, Me."

THE COST

of constructing the two routes, apart from the St Lawrence canals, greatly favors that of the Georgian Bay to Toronto. The other would involve an outlay of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 while this one can be built for $10,000,000 or $12,000,000. Another route which is being boomed by Montreal capitalists is from Chicago to the Georgian Bay, through the French river to Lake Nipissing, and thence by ship railway to the Ottawa, but the cost of this is also out of proportion to any advantages it may have over the other Canadian routes. The arbitration of history and experience has practically decided that ocean-going vessels with their cargoes and the engineering difficulties to be encountered between Toronto and Collingwood, or whatever point on the Georgian Bay is decided upon, are inestimably less than in several routes already traversed by ship railways. If they can be taken bodily over the mountains of Italy and New Zealand, if they can be moved successfully over the Isthmus of Corinth, the Portages of Sweden, the railways of France, the inclined plains of England, Spain, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Nova Scotia, or dragged up the rapids of the Congo, there seems to be very little doubt that they can be conveyed in nicely adjusted "cradles," over well ballasted railways, especially constructed and equipped for the purpose, across the peninsula of Ontario.

CAN SAFELY BE CARRIED OVER LAND

The leviathans of the sea which are now crowding to the front and puzzling the wits of engineers to provide for must either be remodelled in their entire construction or conveyed bodily over land from lake to lake. Navigators are always calling for "more." Indeed there are few if any canals or railways which have not proved inadequate from the very day of their completion.

THE ADVANTAGE OF THE RAILROAD,

however, is that it can be constantly and almost imperceptibly adding to its facilities, while the canal cannot be enlarged except at an enormous outlay and a serious interruption to business. The great Suez Canal is a conspicuous instance of this kind, and similar proof is furnished in the case of our own St. Lawrence.

HOW IT IS VIEWED IN TORONTO

In an interview with a Telegram reporter, Mr John Brown, of the Citizens Milling Co., a member of the Board of Trade, and who has taken a great interest in the project, and talked it over with prominent Chicago capitalists while on a recent visit, said, in answer to the question: "Which route will probably be adopted?"

"That rests almost entirely with the business men of this city. If there is sufficient enterprise to be found here to push forward the Georgian Bay scheme at once that is the route which will be adopted. By improving the water ways of the St. Lawrence and this railway Chicago would not only be made a seaport, but would be five hundred miles nearer the Liverpool market. I intend to bring the question before the Board of Trade at an early date and get the members interested in the project. It will be of untold advantage to Toronto, and we cannot afford to let slip an opportunity.

"I expect to see the eastern provinces, including Ontario, the Holland of the American continent at no very distant day, in the sense that Holland is the receiver and distributor of the whole commerce of Europe. If Canadians had only as much enterprise, and were as easily influenced by eloquence as the French people, all we would need would be a De Lesseps to lead us, and this great national highway would be built by the 50c and $1 subscriptions of the people."

REMARKABLE MEMORIES.

Curious Examples of What This Faculty of Man Hath Accomplished.

There was a Corsican boy who could rehearse 40,000 words, whether sense or nonsense, as they were dictated, and then repeat them in the reversed order without making a single mistake. A physician, about 60 years ago, could repeat the whole of "Paradise Lost" without making a mistake, although he had not read it for twenty years. Euler, the great mathematician, when he became blind, could repeat the whole of Virgil's "Æneid," and could remember the first line and last line of every page of the particular edition which he had been accustomed to read before he became blind.

One kind of retentive memory may be considered as the result of sheer work, a determination toward one particular achievement without reference either to cultivation or to memory on other subjects. This is frequently shown by persons in human life in regard to the Bible. An old beggar man at Stirling, known 50 years ago as "Blind Alick," afforded an instance of this. He knew the whole of the Child's Cry for Fletcher's Castoria.

If a sentence was read to him he could name the book, chapter, and verse; or if the book, chapter, and verse were named he could give the exact words.

A gentleman, to test him, repeated a verse, purposely making one verbal inaccuracy. Alick hesitated, named the place where the passage was to be found, but at the same time pointed out the verbal error. The same gentleman asked him to repeat the nineteenth verse of the seventeenth chapter of the Book of Numbers. Alick almost instantly replied, "There is no such a verse. That chapter has only eighty-nine verses." Gassendi has acquired by heart 6000 Latin verses, and in order to give his mind exercise he was in the habit daily of reciting 600 verses from different languages.—Spare Moments.

BRET HARTE.

The Author of "The Luck of Roaring Camp" Again to the Fore.

"Col. Starbottle's Client," a brilliant new story of Southern life, has again brought Bret Harte prominently before the public. In this story, in his inimitable way, he details the curious experiences of a long-suffering man, who had taken his partner's life in self-defence. A brief sketch of this popular author is interesting.

Francis Bret Harte was born in Albany, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1839. His father, who was teacher of a girls' seminary, died when he was young, and in 1854 Bret went to California, where for three years he wandered about the mining camps digging for gold, teaching school, and finally acting as an express messenger. He met with little pecuniary success in any of these fields, and in 1857 he began work as a compositor in the office of the "Golden Era." He graduated through various stages of newspaper life, contributing sketches the while of Californian mining life, until he became editor of the "Californian," a literary weekly. During the six years he was secretary of the U. S. branch mint in California, he contributed poems to the local papers, which were widely copied and universally admired. In July, 1868, the "Overland Monthly" was commenced, with Harte as its editor. To the August number he contributed "The Luck of Rowing Camp," a story of mining life idealized, and from that day to this there has appeared much excellent literary work in his peculiar field from his pen. His latest story mentioned above, is in a somewhat new line, but the critics say that it is an artistic production fully worthy of his best days.

The Heslop Inquest.

ANCASTER, Feb. 4.—The inquest into the murder of Treasurer John Heslop was resumed last night. Mrs. Heslop told the story of the shooting, and said the men came straight upstairs after breaking in, as if they knew the way. She also testified that one of the men had a beard. At the request of Detective Greer the inquest was adjourned until Feb. 24. Meantime the detectives are endeavoring to find a suspicious character named Bill Steaves.

Fatally Hurt.

HAMILTON, Feb. 4.—Mr. W. D. Booker, secretary of the Victoria Mutual Fire Insurance Company, slipped and fell in James street this afternoon. He was picked up and carried into the office of Mr. William Stewart, architect. The three doctors summoned could do nothing for him and he died in two hours. It is thought that the fall caused the rupture of one of the blood vessels in the head.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rossway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of Yorkville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w6d

Brick for Claremont.

Messrs. M. Curtis & Son have just shipped 50,000 red and white brick to Claremont, for the manse which is being erected there. Curtis & Son have supplied about all the brick that has gone to Claremont. Within the last three years they furnished the brick for a new church and school-house, and now the manse. This is indisputable evidence that their brick gives every satisfaction.

To the Electors of Ennismore, Douro, Smith and Monaghan:

Meetings will be held in all the usual places, of which due notice will be given; also farmers forming clubs of from three to four will find they will buy groceries fully 10 per cent. cheaper from W. J. Morrow, than elsewhere. Don't fail to call. I am receiving large orders in the above way which I am sure will pay you and will convince you to return.

Have Accepted the Calls.

Rev. John Trotter, of Claremont, has also signified his acceptance of the call to the Murray street Baptist church. He will assume his duties the first of March.

To Keep Her Cake and Eat It.

A lady in the North Ward accidentally found a way to "keep her cake and eat it," too. She had cooked a fine fig cake for a church feed, intending to take it to the church herself. When the time came she found it too stormy to go out and decided to stay at home and eat her cake herself. When she went later to her pantry she made a discovery of a sad want, and the storm did not prevent her going down town that same night to get a supply of hawley bros'. tea.

Police Court Penalties.

A boy named Albert Huffman was in the police court this morning charged with breaking a window in the South Ward Mission building the night of the concert. The evidence was contradictory, and the case was dismissed, though the magistrate warned the boy to be very careful in his conduct in future.

An elderly man named Edward Johnston, applied at the police station for shelter last night. He said he had walked from Sarnia looking for work and could find none. This morning, at his own request, he was committed to gaol as a vagrant for one month.

$750 in Gold.

The publishers of the DOMINION ILLUSTRATED are determined that the subscribers to that journal shall have no excuse for aimless reading. As an incentive to a careful study of the columns of their charming journal they will distribute during the next six months over $3,000 in a prize competition. The reputation of the DOMINION ILLUSTRATED is an ample guarantee that faith will be kept with their subscribers. On receipt of 12 cents the publishers (The Sabiston Litho. & Pub. Co., Montreal) will forward to any address a sample copy of the journal and circular explaining their prize offer. The first prize is $750 in gold and there are 100 in all. The smallest prize is $5. Any dissatisfied prize winner may exchange a prize for the value in cash named in the prize list published.

Last Night's Meeting.

There was a very large and enthusiastic gathering of the Liberals of the town, at the meeting held last night in Messrs. Stratton & Hall's law offices. Capacious as they are, they were crowded. The familiar faces of all the old campaigners, as well as plenty of young blood, were to the fore, and the meeting, in numbers and interest, looked more like the final committee meeting on the eve of polling than the first of a campaign. There was a cheering unanimity of sentiment in favour of making a vigorous fight, and matters with practical reference to this feeling were pretty exhaustively discussed. The result of the deliberations of last night's meeting will form one of the subjects of consideration at the convention to be held in the opera house on Wednesday, Feb. 11th.

Mr. Chairman Wrighton.

The Board of Education has made a good selection in appointing Mr. W. H. Wrighton to the chairmanship. He is well qualified in every required respect for the successful and satisfactory discharge of the duties of the position. To a strong, practical, every-day common sense, is added a well-matured judgment, business tact, and training, and an experience of the most practical character. Mr. Wrighton has been a member of the School Board for twelve years consecutively—not appointed—but elected by the people. For eight years of that time he has held the position of chairman of the Property Committee, in which his business training and business prudence have been attended by most effective work. While he is prudent and conservative in methods, he is progressive and liberal in all that pertains to the promotion of the best interests of the schools of the town. Mr. Wrighton has made a first-rate trustee for the past dozen years and he will doubtless be equally successful in his new position, so that the EXAMINER is justified, while congratulating Mr. Wrighton on his elevation to the chairmanship, in also congratulating the Board on having availed themselves of the services of an excellent presiding officer.

Curling at Campbellford.

Peterborough Loses to the Village by Six Points.

The Peterborough Curlers who went to Campbellford Thursday were defeated by six shots. The ice was very keen, but full of ridges, and before the visitors could get the ice they were "in the soup." At the end of the thirteenth end the score all round was: Campbellford 33, Peterborough 7. Skip Ferguson was behind to the tune of 19 to 2, but after this he went to work and shut his opponents out in fine style. Skip Budden also crept up and came within one of tieing his adversary. Following is the score:—

THE WINNIPEG BONSPIEL.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 5.—The fifth draw in the Manitoba Challenge Cup competition was finished at the big bonspiel to-day. Four exciting games were played. That between Flavelle, of Lindsay, and Dr. Jamieson, of the Thistles, Winnipeg, was the great contest of the day, and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators. At various stages of the game the rinks were tied, and until the last stone was played victory for either side was uncertain. A two-end in the last head, however, gave the game to Flavelle by four points, the score being 16 to 12. The other games of the same series were equally exciting, Harstone defeating Sparling by two points, and Grant, of Calgary, winning from Dunsford, of Morden, by the same score. The following play to-morrow in the sixth draw:—Flavelle v. Harstone, and Grant v. Fortune. All these rinks receive prizes, as there are five prizes. The struggle now is for possession of the challenge cup. This morning an international contest was played between two rinks from St. Paul and rinks skipped by Fortune, of Winnipeg, and Flavelle, of Lindsay. Canada won by 43 to 30. Flavelle defeated his men by 23 to 15.

A Suspicious Discovery of Jewelry and other Goods at Claremont.

Chief Reesel yesterday received a letter from a Mr. John Williamson, a detective now working at Claremont. The letter stated that the writer had seen some jewelry in possession of a man there, which he believed to have been stolen. From the description given of the watches and chains, the Chief believed they were part of the spoil of Mr. Henry Patterson's stock, Lakefield, for the burglary of which three men are now doing terms of seven years each in penitentiary. In company with Mr. Patterson, who also thought the goods answered the description of part of his stock, the Chief went to Claremont last night. They met detective Williamson, and were informed that the watches and chains were in the possession of a farmer named Oliver Badgerow, who six or seven miles back of Claremont. Williamson had seen Badgerow offering the goods for sale in Claremont, and as Badgerow bore a rather bad reputation, and apparently had no lawful excuse for having such goods in his possession, the detectives' suspicions were aroused; hence his communications with Chief Reesel. Arming himself with a search warrant, procured from a Pickering justice of the peace, the chief and Mr. Patterson drove out to Badgerow's place. Badgerow's brother only was there, and did not want to let his visitors in, but they forced him to open the doors. They asked for Badgerow, but the brother said he and his wife had gone to Toronto. The officer searched the house and came to one room that was locked. This they also forced the man in charge to open, and met their gaze. The room was filled with a miscellaneous assortment of jewelry, watches, chains, pipes, combs, half a chest of tea, fancy goods, etc.—such a collection of goods of all kinds as no man who did not keep a general store or peddle would have any use for. Badgerow is not engaged in either of these occupations, but the brother said he had bought them. However, the articles of jewelry which Williamson had seen and which were supposed to have been stolen from Mr. Patterson, were nowhere to be found. Badgerow there stated that his brother had taken them to Toronto with him.

The Chief and Mr. Patterson returned to Claremont fully convinced that they had unearthed a rendezvous of thieves. The Badgerow family are regarded with suspicion by the whole community in which they live, and this would look like a confirmation of their doubts. Under the circumstances the chief could take no action, and he returned to town to-day. Mr. Patterson remained behind, and with Detective Williamson will await the return of Badgerow and his wife from Toronto.

This spring a safe was cracked in Claremont in exactly the same manner as the job was done in Mr. Patterson's store.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The newly elected council of the township of Smith met at the town hall, Bridgenorth, on Monday, the nineteenth day of January, namely: M. Sanderson, reeve; and Messrs. Jas. Middleton, H. C. Garbutt, W. McIlmoyle and J. G. Armstrong, councillors. After tyling the necessary declarations and qualifications of office, the members took their seats. Minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The council then appointed councillor Garbutt as Deputy-reeve for 1891. The following appointments were then made: John Black and Andrew Young, auditors; R. Waram, assessor and collector. The treasurer was instructed to pay W. C. Sinster $7 for work done on the 10th con. line. An offer was received from W. H. Robertson for the printing of the municipality for 1891, which was laid over till next meeting for consideration. Messrs. McIlmoyle and Garbutt were appointed a committee to examine the road on the 10th con. line across lots 22 and 23, and report at the next meeting of the council as to the necessity of re-building a bridge across the creek which crosses said road. The council then adjourned till Monday, the 2nd day of February.

COUNCIL ROOM, FEB'Y 2ND, 1891.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, all the minutes present, the Reeve in the chair. Minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. A bylaw appointing township officers passed its several readings and was signed and sealed; also a bylaw appointing the following persons as members of the local Board of Health: M. Sanderson, Reeve; R. Waram, Geo. Westlake, Jas. Tindle and F. J. Bell, clerk. The Reeve and councillor McIlmoyle were appointed a committee to examine the 10th con. line, to ascertain if the said line can be traced from Little Mud Lake to Buckhorn Lake. The timber on the 3rd con. line, opposite lot 4, and east half of lot 3, was disposed of to Alex Darling for the sum of $300, provided he remove all timber and brush of said road by June 1st, 1892, and leave what shade trees may be required to be left by the owners of said lots, and assume all risks of damage by fire, the money to be paid to John Calvert to be expended on said road. Councillors McIlmoyle and Garbutt were appointed a committee to examine the road on the 10 con. line, opposite lot 26, and to report at the next meeting of the council as to the advisability of opening up said road, and the estimated cost thereof.

Council then adjourned till the 23rd February.

Norwood.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The suit urged by Mr. Pearse against the seat of Reeve Finlay has been withdrawn, the costs being paid by the former. Mr. W. P. Plant, who was being prosecuted by Mr. P. W. Reynolds, has resigned his position on the council board and a new election is called for to fill the vacancy.

Elections seem to be the order of the day. Since the sudden, though not unforseen, revelation of Sir John's latest dodge, the minds of the people have been strained to a slight excitement, which will, no doubt, accelerate till the 5th of March reveals the future Government. The Reformers announce a convention for Tuesday, 10th inst., for the purpose of appointing delegates to the great Reform convention in Toronto. No doubt the Conservatives and Equal Righters are on the war path, although they have not yet betrayed any interest.

The annual meeting of the High School Board of trustees was held in the school building on Wednesday, Feb. 4th. There were present:—Messrs. Roxburgh (chairman), Stephenson (sec.-treas.) Scott, Anderson, Pettigrew, Brethen, Waters, Ford, Raddon, Breckenridge and Campbell. Mr. W. E. Roxburgh was re-appointed chairman and Mr. W. H. Stephenson sec.-treas., for the ensuing year. Messrs. Ford, Pettigrew, Scott and Roxburgh were appointed a committee to strike standing committees, reporting as follows:—

FINANCE—Messrs. Pettigrew, Rork and Waters.

SUPERVISION—Messrs. Ford, Pettigrew, Brethen and Roxburgh.

PROPERTY,—Messrs. Anderson, Scott and Stevenson.

APPOINTMENTS,—The whole Board.

Mr. Jno. Davidson, M.A., Head Master, reported verbally that the condition of the school was very encouraging, there being over 100 names on the roll, with an average attendance of 95. The staff is now efficiently filled, and good returns may be looked for at the coming exams.

We regret to learn that an attack of inflammatory rheumatism has made it necessary for Mr. Fred Story to leave his studies at Trinity Medical School and come home for care and treatment.

A "Cheap John" has struck town, and is making preparations for booming the best interests of the place.

Dr. Wild on Hon. O. Mowat's Lecture.

At the morning service last Sunday, at Bond Street Church, Dr. Wild took for his subject the recent lecture on "Christianity and Some of Its Evidences" by Hon. O. Mowat. His text was Proverbs, XXII., 20, 21. The doctor spoke in the most eulogistic terms of the manner in which the subject was handled, and asserted that, in his opinion, there was sufficient evidence in it to refute all the arguments of all the agnostics in the Dominion. He thought the pamphlet would prove of inestimable value to seekers after truth inasmuch as it is the utterance of one who has had a judicial mental training of over 40 years. Judicious extracts were read from the lecture, and the strength and appositeness of the arguments and conclusions were heartily approved.

The Koch Remedy.

Expert Critics Upon its Results.

An editorial correspondent of the London (Eng.) Hospital Gazette writes respecting the widely-talked-of Koch lymph and the results that have attended its use, as follow:—"During the past few days I have had the advantage of interviews with some physicians connected with the hospitals where Koch's treatment has been under trial, and they are unanimous in stating that the results are most disappointing. This applies to all patients upon which the remedy has been tried, whether suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, laryngeal phthisis, or lupus. In some few cases slight improvement has been observed, but nothing beyond what might have been confidently looked for had other methods of treatment been adopted combined with careful nursing, good feeding, and perfect hygiene, which, as a rule, form part of the treatment in hospitals. A few paragraphs from an article on the same subject in the same journal, by Mr. George M. Foy, F.R.C.S.I., Dublin, may be quoted to show that the Koch remedy is not realizing the expectations that were originally felt by sanguine persons: Mr. Foy says that over one hundred deaths have resulted from the use of the lymph. He also states that patients who have been discharged from hospitals, apparently cured by Koch lymph, have come back with their diseases showing every sign of active renewal. It is also denied that the lymph has any value in diagnosing consumption. Mr. Foy concludes his paper by asserting: "In conclusion I may say that up to this present (Jan. 24th, 1891) I do not know of a well authenticated case of consumption cured, but that, on the contrary, numerous deaths have followed from the use of Koch's poison.

Do That If You Can.

During the Dutch wars in the reign of Charles II., the English fleet and that of Holland fought in the Channel for three days successively, engaging in the daytime, and lying to at night. As they were preparing to renew the action on the fourth morning, word came that an armistice had been concluded.

Hostilities were laid aside, and the belligerent parties began to exchange mutual civilities.

On board a Dutch man-of-war, which lay alongside an English vessel, a sailor showed wonderful agility by running up to the mast-head and standing upon the truck. He then went through several manœuvres, and concluded by standing on his head, to the astonishment and alarm of the spectators.

On his descending to the deck after this exploit, his comrades expressed their appreciation by a series of huzzas which had a sound of triumphing over the English.

One of the British tars, piqued for the honor of his country, ran up to the top of the vessel's mast like a cat, and essayed with all his might to throw up his heels as the Dutchman had done; but, lacking the skill of his rival, he lost his balance, and came tumbling down much faster than he had gone up.

The lookers-on held their breath in horror, expecting to see him dashed to pieces on the deck, but luckily the rigging broke his fall, and he alighted on his feet unhurt. He shook himself, threw up his head, and in a somewhat staggering fashion rushed to the vessel's side and cried exultingly to the Dutchmen, "There, do that if you can!"

The long-standing difficulty between Professors Shuttleworth and Avison and the council of the College of Pharmacy was settled yesterday by a complete reorganization of the staff. The engagement with those professors was already terminated. Prof. Harrison tendered his resignation, having been appointed public analyst at London. Four new professors were appointed.

The special committee to advertise for professors and registrar reported through Mr. J. J. Hall, recommending these appointments:

A. Y. Scott, B.A., Toronto. Dean, general chemistry and botany, $1300.

Prof. Hellmer, Ph.G., New York College of Pharmacy, pharmacy, theoretical and practical, dispensing prescriptions, pharmaceutical chemistry, $1650.

Graham Chambers, B.A., M.D., Toronto, practical chemistry, toxicology, $600 with the assistance of a student, whose fees are to be remitted.

G. T. Fotheringham, B.A., Toronto, Latin, microscopy, materia medica, pharmacology, $750.

The arrangement with these gentlemen provides for increased hours of instruction at considerably less cost than heretofore. No recommendation was made with reference to the registrar.

The report of the Committee on Education recommended that $496 be expended on the purchase of books: that diplomas be granted to 24 who have obtained the number of marks requisite for registration: that the junior course be lengthened to 14 weeks, commencing Sept. 8, 1891, and the senior course to 18 weeks, commencing first Thursday in January, 1892, and that the fees for the senior course be reduced to $50; that the matriculation fee be reduced from $5 to $2. The committee also reported that Dr. Graham Chambers, B.A., had performed the work of assistant to Prof. Harrison to their entire satisfaction. The report was adopted.

SINGLE TAX

Is now the question of the hour; but to those in need of Ordered or Ready-made Clothing, single profits ought to be a subject of greater importance. Yearly importing all our principal lines, we save you the profits of the wholesale men, and you have thus one single profit to pay. That profit is not a large one, and has been made still smaller, as we are determined each and every article of Winter Clothing must go, to make way for Spring Goods. Each and every department has been visited and all goods have been reduced. Don't you buy a dollar's worth of clothing until you have looked us over. Take into consideration that we are selling First-Class Goods with but a single profit, and that it is no trouble to show goods, whether you wish to buy or not.

MINISTERS AT TORONTO.

FOSTER AND THOMPSON OPEN THE CAMPAIGN.

The Former Deals With the Finances and Thompson With the Negotiations Between Canada and the United States — Messrs. Bowell and Carling Also Deliver Addresses.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Between 2000 and 3000 persons assembled in Shaftesbury Hall last night on the occasion of the opening of the Conservative campaign for the coming Dominion elections. The ground floor and aisles were packed with men; the first gallery, a horseshoe, was reserved for ladies with Heintzman's band in the centre, and the top gallery, like the ground floor, was packed with men. Mr. A. G. McLean, president of the Young Men's Liberal-Conservative Association, occupied the chair. In apologising for the absence of Sir John he said that wherever he was he was not asleep, and he would probably be present next Tuesday.

Mackenzie Bowell, the first of the ministers said that the trade and navigation returns showed conclusively that under the present Conservative administration the imports from England have averaged several millions of dollars more per annum than under the Reform administration. And the exports to England have also been increased by millions of dollars. Take also the trade with the United States and statistics show that under the Conservative administration the exports and imports have been less than under the Reform administration.

Sir John Thompson.

Sir John Thompson is a short stout knight with sharp straight nose and ruddy countenance like the Jack of Clubs, and clean-shaven face with little side whiskers no bigger than a 20 cent piece. He wore a white scarf round a stand up collar, corners turned down. Like his fellow-ministers he wore the young men's badge. Sir John's voice is clear, musical, and delivered from the chest, somewhat after the manner of a Church of England rector.

On coming forward the hon. gentleman was greeted with cheers. We have been told, said he, within the last four years that new light has come upon the men who are opposed to us; that they have discovered a new gospel. In 1878, in 1882 and in 1887 they went up and down this country denouncing the corruption and bribery of the Government of the day, declaring that our manufacturers were robbers and that our great public works were undertaken for merely corrupt purposes. All this has passed by and we are told to-day that the issue now before the people of Canada is to be decided on the one question of our trade relations with the United States. Well, we are ready for the fight on the issue of our trade relations with that country, and it is to explain that issue that we are here on this platform to-night. To show that this issue is by no means a new one with the Conservative party, I shall briefly refer to the relations that have existed between the two countries in the past.

Diplomatic Relations since 1854.

The treaty of 1854 was consummated and put on the statute book by the statesman who now lands the destinies of this country. In 1866, when the good and beneficial relations following the treaty of 1854 ceased to exist by the action of the United States, it was the same statesman who urged upon the United States to reconsider their rash decision to sunder the happy relations which then existed between the two countries, but he appealed in vain.

In 1868, under the guidance of the same statesman, an Act was put upon the statute book to qualify for all time to come our willingness, on a moment's notice of the willingness of the United States, to have a fair interchange of natural products between the two countries.

In 1871 a treaty was made and carried through the Parliament by Sir John Macdonald, giving a large measure of reciprocity in various interests, in addition to those of a commercial character.

When our American friends put an end to that treaty in 1885 the same statesman, continuing to exhibit his desire to maintain friendly relations with the Republic, left open to the Americans our fisheries on the Atlantic for six months beyond the right. They had regranted their right to use them on the promise of President Cleveland that he would recommend to Congress a commission to consider all the relations between the two countries. His promise was fulfilled in a certain sense. He made his recommendation and Congress declared it was a project unworthy of receiving a single dollar of public money from the United States.

In 1888 a delegate appointed by the same statesman went to the United States and offered them reciprocity, offered to discuss it in the broadest sense of the word, he asked the Americans to discuss the whole question with us, and that offer was absolutely declined on the part of the United States.

Now, that is our record on the reciprocity question, but you have yet to find a single line in the statute books of Canada put there by a Reform administration [Applause.] During this time what was the policy of our opponents? Well, it was not broadly different from our own. In 1878 Mr. Mackenzie was asked to state his policy with regard to the United States. He said "We are willing to trade with any country we can." In the same year Sir Richard Cartwright expressed himself on this same question. He stated that while reciprocity was desirable Canada was not in such a state of subjection to the United States that she can't live without that country. Sir Richard stated, that we had guns and ships and we could carry the war into Africa. Canada would find new markets for herself. Nothing was more certain, said Sir Richard at that time, to bring about unrestricted reciprocity than to feed the people of the United States to believe that Canada could not get along without them. What a pity Sir Richard had forgotten his words of 1878! What a pity he had forgotten his statements that Canada could afford to live without reciprocity with the United States!

Well, now, what is the cry that comes up from the Reformers to-day? They state that we have stolen their clothing. They said that while they were in bathing we ran off with their clothes. [Laughter.] Stolen their clothing! Down to 1878 we all wore the same clothing. There was no difference between the two parties as to reciprocity. But while we all wore the same clothing then, to-day the clothing of the Reform leaders is variegated indeed, every trip they take to Washington adding new colors to their attire. [Laughter.] One day it is commercial union; another day it is unrestricted reciprocity, and then again we find it under the guise of continental free trade.

The Government's Policy

What exactly is our policy to-day? I will tell you. A little over three months ago it transpired that negotiations were being entertained by the United States for making a treaty of reciprocity with the colony of Newfoundland. These negotiations have not yet ripened into a treaty, but they were proceeding on lines which were not unlike, as far as they went, lines which Canada would be willing to pursue with regard to trade relations with that country, and, at our own motion, on hearing these negotiations were progressing, we insisted on the British Government that Canada should have the option if she pleased of being included in any treaty which might be made with the colony of Newfoundland, but we in Canada at the same time thought that the proposed treaty with Newfoundland didn't seem to proceed upon lines so expansive as was suited to the wants and interests of Canada, and that it might be better to avail ourselves of entering upon separate negotiations on behalf of Canada. That intimation was promptly conveyed to Washington. It will be made plain to you when the time comes that, in response to that intimation, Mr. Blaine stated that, although the negotiations with Newfoundland would not suit the Dominion of Canada for a trade treaty, yet he was willing to make a wide treaty of reciprocity with Canada and to enter upon separate negotiations with her. That statement being made we were bound to avail ourselves of that opportunity to extend our trade. The next request that came from Mr. Blaine was that, preparatory to negotiations being entered upon, we would outline the basis upon which the convention should proceed. We did so in the document which has just been published in the press, offering to consider a renewal of the treaty of 1854 with such modifications as the altered circumstances of the two countries might call for. We asked them to reconsider the abortive treaty of 1878, to settle the fishery dispute along with trade questions, likewise to settle the Behring Sea controversy and the matters affecting the Atlantic coast, the wrecking business, etc. A good deal has been said about the uncertainty of all this. It is said that having made a proposition to Mr. Blaine, without any prospect of its being entertained, Sir John has sprung on the elections under the pretence that he is going to carry out these negotiations, while in reality the Cabinet at Washington will have none of it. When the proposition was submitted to him, Mr. Blaine answered that he was willing to enter upon a preliminary discussion in advance of the more formal commission, but he would not be prepared to do so until after the 4th of March, when the term of the present Congress expires. In the meantime, what would our position have been if we hadn't gone to the people of Canada? It would have been said that in the very last hours of the parliament we were endeavoring to make a treaty which would entirely change the business aspect of the country, and when we went to Washington we would have been met with this objection from the men with whom we would be negotiating. We would have made a good government entering upon the most important negotiations without a parliament behind us. What we propose is, that if you and the people of Canada accept the policy we to-day lay before you we will go to Washington with the Parliament behind us and able to treat with Mr. Blaine with the assurance that our Premier has the renewed confidence of the people of this country.

I am sorry to see that Mr. Laurier is going about the country declaring that we have exacted such hard conditions against the American fishermen that we have alienated the good-will of the people alongside us. We have done no more than uphold the undoubted rights of Canadians—[applause]—and those undoubted rights, whether on the Atlantic or on the Behring Sea, we are determined, with the help of Great Britain, to sustain to the last. [Cheers.] Great Britain has declared over and over again that we were strictly within our rights in regard to everything that was done about the Atlantic fisheries. When our people were refused plain justice at the hands of the American executive we went to the bar of the Supreme Court of their own country and appealed against that injustice. [Applause.] When the Reformers tell us, then, that we have done all we could to break up the good neighborhood between the two countries, you will bear in mind that we have done only that for which every citizen of the United States would have despised us if we hadn't done. [Applause.]

Now I shall tell you a few things that our policy does not mean. In the first place our policy of reciprocity does not mean that Canada is to lose control of her own tariff or the regulation thereof. It does not mean that the Government has yet arrived at the position that, in matters of trade, it is prepared to discriminate against the parent country. [Applause.] Nor does it mean direct taxation. Direct taxation is no part of our policy. If you want Canada to lose control of her tariff, if you want to see Canada discriminate against Great Britain, I am sorry to say you will have to vote against the candidates who represent the Government of this country to-day. [Cries of "Never."] Our policy does not mean the granting of a practical monopoly of trade of Canada to the cities of the American seaboard. It does not mean the surrender of the National Policy under which the industries of this country have been built up. It does not mean that for the benefit of American labor the industries of Canada shall be pulled down and scattered to the winds.

Our opponents say we are going to fail in getting reciprocity with the United States. Well, our policy may fail. If it does fail it will be because Sir Richard Cartwright and his followers have put on record whole volumes to prove that bankruptcy awaits this country if it did not get reciprocity with the States. It will fail, if it fails at all, because of the cloud of witnesses he has produced to belittle this country, to prove to the Americans that this country can be starved into submission. These men have opposed every concession which friendly congressmen and senators were willing to make to Canada in the fear that it might do Canada some good, and Canada has lost the benefit of concessions which have been made to her through the tactics of these emissaries to Washington.

In conclusion, let me say something about the American press. From now till the election you will find every kind of statement quoted from the American newspapers against us. They have lately solicited Mr. Blaine to come out and declare that no negotiations have been made towards reciprocity with Canada. They have solicited The New York Tribune and have got it to come out and declare against everything but unrestricted reciprocity. They will presently declare that Sir John Macdonald can never get any concession for Canada, that unless you place Sir Richard in power there is no hope of anything being done for Canada. Beware of tricks and intrigues of that character. We appeal to our Canadian fellow-citizens, and if they sustain us in the policy I have stated to-night, the negotiations which will be begun in March on fair lines of interchange that will be beneficial to both countries, those negotiations will be carried out. In those negotiations you will find it necessary to send no United States Senator from Ontario. [Laughter and loud cheering.]

The Minister of Finance.

Hon. George E. Foster of New Brunswick opening congratulated the young men on their organization. His part of the proceedings was to place before his hearers some of the other issues now before the country. The motto for the campaign (more appropropriate now than ever) was Canada for the Canadians. [Cheers.] Never before had the spectacle been seen of the chiefs of a party (Reform) singing their songs of ruin in this country and going to our neighbors for the aid and comfort and plan of argument for carrying on their crusade in Canada.

Sir Richard Cartwright had declared time after time that our country was in a state of arrested development, that our people were poorer, and toiling for nothing. Goldwin Smith a few nights ago in Toronto had told the Governor-General to quit this country, and upheld the idea of our going into the American union. For this speech he had the thanks of the Young Liberals and the approval of The Globe. [Hisses.] But these men were only beating tom-toms in order to induce the general showers of office.

One answer he could give to them were extracts from their own friends. Oliver Mowat had said not long ago that the percentage of increase in Canada was greater than that of the United States. George W. Ross had said in 1888: "Canadians are a peaceful, happy and contented people." Mr. Drury, Minister of Agriculture, had said, "Notwithstanding the great enterprise of the Americans, Canada can show as much progress as they can." The Globe in 1890 had said the trade situation was sound and much more to the point.

Sir Richard Cartwright had said Canada was retrograding, was going to ruin and that unrestricted reciprocity was the cure. Like the quack he had first to persuade the public that they were ill before he could sell them his nostrum.

What was the answer to this mournful picture of Sir Richard? The credit of Canada was signed in the British money market than that of any other colony. Our last loan had been placed at 3 per cent. the lowest ever obtained by a colony. Our 3 per cents brought more than 3½'s of other colonies. Sir Richard placed his last loan at 4 per cent. In spite of Sir Richard's story of ruin our national debt carried hardly 3 per cent. Our national debt was being lowered though we had been building railways, canals and other works. Last year our annual expenses had been reduced by a million. Our revenue is buoyant; it was not the case when Sir Richard was in power. In Sir Richard's time our public works earned four millions; now they earned eight millions.

The surplus last year was over three millions; in Sir Richard's time it had a minus sign before it. Our exports last year were 96 millions; in Sir Richard's time 71 millions. Last year's exports were eight millions more than that of the preceding year, showing we were going ahead by leaps and bounds. The circulation showed an increase. The savings of the people showed great increases every year. Our vessel tonnage had increased in two years from 15 millions of tons to 18½ millions. Was that retrograding? Must not this increased tonnage have been employed in carrying more trade?

But the most astounding evidence that we were not retrograding was to be found in the returns of the railways. Ten years ago we had no C.P.R.—the Grand Trunk and Intercolonial. But not only had these two roads increased their carrying returns—passengers and freights—by large figures, but the C.P.R. in addition had carried last year nearly 10 millions of tons of freight and 4½ millions of passengers. And all this was independent of the increase of trade by the water routes.

The Canadian banks had passed through a crisis that had pulled down London houses like the Barings.

The president of the Toronto Board of Trade, in his recent address, had shown how trade had grown in every direction.

But when Sir Richard was in power there was a genuine falling off in our trade and in our revenue.

Canada to-day, instead of being a retrograding land, was a place of peace, comfort and prosperity. As he had said before, Sir Richard had deliberately and dishonestly set about to prove to the Canadian people that they were ill in order that he might sell them his nostrum of unrestricted reciprocity which had many names. Laurier called it "the application of the expansive theory rather than of the restrictive theory." Edgar called it "unlimited free trade." Charlton calls it unrestricted reciprocity or commercial union. The fathers and founders of it call it straight "commercial union."

Why had not this panacea been thought of before? Why was it not thought of in 1878? Because the Reformers had a level-headed man at their head—honest, straightforward Alexander Mackenzie, a man who had more hard common sense in his head than the committee of leaders all together. At that time they relied on a revenue tariff and the Pacific scandal to get into power. In 1878 their cry was a denunciation of the N.P. No mention of the panacea. In 1882 it was down with the monopolies like the C.P.R. In 1887, when Mr. Blake was leader, it was, "We can't change the N.P. on account of vested interests and the need there was to raise a revenue." No talk of the panacea then. But now the panacea was brought out and it was in contradiction of their past. They, these one-time free traders, advised the people to embrace a tariff of 62 per cent. all round.

But be (Mr. Foster) challenged these men who were offering us unrestricted reciprocity to make good that offer if they could. What these men, Sir Richard and Mr. Laurier, meant to teach the people was simply this: We have the power to give you unrestricted reciprocity, therefore vote for us and you will get it. It takes two to make a bargain. He challenged their credentials. If they could produce a single statement, a single document from the United States authorities that they (Sir Richard and Mr. Laurier) could give the people of Canada unrestricted reciprocity. Has any cabinet of the United States pledged itself to unrestricted reciprocity? Even any member of the cabinet. None. But what had Mr. Blaine said: If Canadians wish to have the advantages of the citizens of the United States they must come under the flag, that they could not be both Canadians and Americans at the one time. How could Mr. Laurier and Sir Richard pretend to speak for people who denied our rights on two seas and who still maintained the Munroe doctrine?

The speaker then read from the speeches of Hitt, Winan, Laurier, Charlton, Edgar, Davies, their definition of unrestricted reciprocity. It, as some of these men said, it meant that Canada could retain her own tariff, but have free access to the States, then we would be able to wipe out the woolen mills, the iron furnaces of the United States, a thing that appeared absurd before it was stated.

Their proposal meant the abnegation by Canada of its power of fiscal legislation—a right which no people of self-respect would give up. It means that our tariff powers are to be given up. Once we surrendered this power we would be part and parcel of the country to the south of us.

Next it meant a loss of revenue. On United States goods we to-day got over $8,000,000 a year. On sugars (free in the United States) $2,000,000. On goods from other countries (which the United States tariff would protect) $5,000,000, in all $15,000,000 of a loss in our revenue. The only way to make this up would be in direct taxation—Sir Richard's tax-gatherers would demand $4 from every head and $15 or $20 from every family.

The speaker read an extract from L'Electeur (Mr. Mercier's organ) to the effect that Mr. Mercier's weakness was liberality to his friends in Quebec, that he would be able to be much more liberal if Laurier was in power in Ottawa, and if this were to obtain, how could Sir Richard get along without a high rate of direct taxation? That didn't look like economy. They were not much on economy in Quebec.

A voice: They will economise in Yankee divorces.

Mr. Foster went on to say that next it meant national suicide. All the advocates of it in the United States from Hitt down to Wiman said it meant in the end absorption into the Union.

Speeches were also made by Hon. John Carling, Senator Frank Smith and others.

A Read bie Budget from Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—Le Canada announces that Mr. Rochon, Ottawa county, will resign his seat in the Local House and run for the Commons.

It is said that Mr. Alexander Robillard also will resign and run for the Commons and that Mr. D. B. McTavish, barrister, Ottawa, will offer himself for the Ontario House, both elections to take place the same day.

In consequence of Mr. Alonzo Wright's decision, Mr. Henry Ayton as Conservative, J. M. McDougall as Independent, and Mr. Ed. Devlin, jr., as Liberal, all three of Aylmer, have taken the field. Citizens are working hard to induce Mr. E. B. Eddy to stand as a Liberal-Independent candidate.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, who is attending the Supreme Court here, being seen as to his opinion of the political situation, said that he would not speak at present. He was going to Toronto shortly, when he would consult with his political friends, after which he would make a public statement. Asked if he would run as a Conservative or as an Equal Righter he replied that he would run, but he didn't care what they called him. He said he could not say anything of the intentions of the Equal Rights party.

The Workingmen's Liberal-Conservative Association held a meeting last evening, when they organized for the campaign and elected officers.

Mr. Pat. Purcell intimated to-day that he will not run again in Glengarry. He had a lengthy interview yesterday with the Premier.

Sir Charles Tupper arrived at noon to-day and is the guest of his son, Hon. C. H. Tupper. Lady Tupper did not accompany her husband, fearing the voyage at this season of the year. Sir Charles says he is in excellent health. He had a lengthy conference this afternoon with the Premier. He starts for Nova Scotia on Monday. Sir Charles denies that he will enter the cabinet.

Hon. David Mills is mentioned for South Middlesex. Robert Ferguson, the Liberal member for East Kent in the Legislature, may resign his present seat and tackle Bothwell for the Commons.

Sir Donald Smith accepted the candidature for Montreal West.

It has been definitely arranged that the Legislature will meet only to adjourn.

Mercier arrives in Montreal to-morrow to confer with Laurier as to mode of campaign.

Bob White, the old member, and W. B. Willoughby of Toronto are having a desperate struggle for the Conservative nomination in Cardwell.

Senator Howlan has resigned his place in the Senate, and will be the Government candidate for one of the Prince Edward constituencies.

Peter Mitchell of The Montreal Herald denies the statement of The Empire, claim that he is a Liberal and that Laurier has his entire confidence.

It is generally understood that the only name which will be seriously before the South Oxford convention will be that of the present member, Sir Richard Cartwright.

Charles Fairbairn, the member elected for South Victoria, will have all his troubles in the recent bye-election for naught, for he has not yet had the pleasure of adorning his seat in the House of Commons. It is not known whether he will be opposed.

Harry Ward will have a fight for the Conservative nomination again in East Durham. This is the only riding where the Equal Rights agitation has been kept alive since the local election. The bye election there a few weeks ago roused again the feeling against Mr. Ward for his vote on the Jesuits Estates Act.

A large and influential deputation of West Durham Conservatives waited upon Mr. G. T. Blackstock yesterday and asked him to be their candidate again. Mr. Blackstock declined partly for business reasons and partly because he thought the nomination ought to be offered to a local man this time.

It has been decided after the Lieut.-Gov.'s speech is delivered and answered, to propose an adjournment of the Provincial Legislature until after the Dominion elections. The election of Speaker will take place on Wednesday.

The Lieutenant-Governor's speech will be delivered on Thursday, and after the routine business is completed the House will adjourn.

A Washington despatch says it is doubtful if the Fifty-second Congress will be convened before August, and consequently reciprocity negotiations could not be opened before that time. It is, of course, possible, however, that the President may convene the Senate in an executive session after March 4 to consider such matters of an executive character relating to treaties as may be submitted to it

RADSTREETS' REVIEW.

Only a Moderate Improvement Reported in the State of Trade.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show only moderate improvement in the state of general trade. Recent ill-founded reports of a much larger volume of trade last month than in Jan., 1890, are best answered with our report of bank clearings for Jan., 1891, which show a decrease as compared with the like month a year ago. The decrease at New York and other eastern cities, a thing that appeared absurd before it was stated.

At 2 o'clock this morning the police ambulance brought to the hospital a woman named Mitthew, who resided in Mercer-street. She was in an unconscious state and suffering from a pistol shot in the chest. The wound was a serious one, and it is believed that in a fit of aberration the sufferer had attempted self-destruction. The doctors were of opinion that if inflammation did not supervene she would recover. The ambulance was summoned by a neighbor.

Three Men Implicated.

HAMILTON, Feb. 6.—Detective Greer's investigations have convinced him that there were three men implicated in the murder of John Heslop of Ancaster. He has had some correspondence with the Attorney-General, and he reported that he thought three men were implicated. The Ontario Government is considering the advisability of issuing a proclamation promising immunity to the third person if he will give the crown any information. It is thought that this may have the effect of getting one of the burglars to turn Queen's evidence.

Killed in a C. P. R. Culvert.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—A Huntley township farmer named Benjamin Kavanagh, while driving into town, drove into a culvert and before he could jump out the sleigh was struck by the Winnipeg express at Britannia. The vehicle was hurled 100 feet; Kavanagh being killed instantly. The body was terribly mangled. Kavanagh's mother and sister escaped uninjured.

"If it be well to wash the skin—and we never heard the proposition questioned—it is well also that we should be familiar with the means by which that purpose may be most efficiently attained.

"We once knew a beautiful woman, with a nice complexion, who had never washed her face with soap all her life through; her means of polishing were, a smear of grease or cold cream; then a wipe, and then a lick with rose water. Of course we did not care to look too closely after such an avowal, but we pitied her, for soap is the food of the skin.—

Soap is to the skin what Wine is to the stomach,

POINTERS FOR LOYALISTS.

The Ottawa Free Press, thus contrasts the "loyalty" cry that has been used to denounce Liberals who advocated reciprocity with the United States, with the offer of reciprocity made by Sir John Macdonald to the United States:—

"Sir John Macdonald's offer of reciprocity in natural products means direct discrimination against trade with Great Britain.

He proposes to admit free of duty almost everything that Canadians are in the habit of importing from the United States, while continuing the high tariff wall against imports from England.

If Mr. Blaine accepts Sir John Macdonald's offer of reciprocity in natural products the average rate of duty collected upon imports from the United States will not be over four or five per cent. while the average rates upon imports from the United Kingdom would remain at 20 per cent.

Is this not most unjust discrimination against the mother country?

What do we import from the United States? Coal, flour, grain, pork, beef, fruits, live stock, butter, cheese, lard, fish, oils, raw cotton, and manufactured tobacco, all of which Sir John Macdonald proposes to admit free of duty.

What do we import from Great Britain? Iron and steel goods, carpets, cotton goods, copper manufactures, glassware, linen goods, hats and caps, blankets, silk manufactures, soaps, tin manufactures, and woollen goods.

Upon these articles Sir John proposes to maintain twenty-five per cent duties.

What better proof is necessary to show that the policy of the Tory party means, straight discrimination against Great Britain.

Tax everything brought from England, Admit free everything we import from the United States. Such is the policy of Canadian Tories, as voiced by their leaders.

How do honest loyalists like it?

Of course the combinesters and monopolists, the 35 per cent. loyalists, are pleased. Sir John's policy suits them admirably. The farmers and other consuming classes in Canada would, if Sir John's policy was carried out, be still subject to the sugar combine, the cotton combine, the coffin combine and other organizations formed for the purpose of fleecing the public.

Sir John proposes to protect the combinesters but to withdraw all protection from farmers, millers and miners.

He has been preaching for years that a tariff was necessary to keep our farmers from being swamped out by American grains and meats.

Now he proposes to make those articles free. How do the farmers like the prospect?

It is not the duties upon grain, live stock and flour that the farmers have been protesting against, but the excessive taxes upon woollen goods, iron ware, furniture, household utensils, cottons, and other necessaries. Yet the Government proposes to keep up the duties upon those articles that combines may flourish.

They propose to make the farmers face unlimited competition with American agricultural products, but will continue to protect the combinesters.

It is not surprising that Colonel O'Brien has bolted.

THE LOCAL LEGISLATURE.

It is highly probable that, in view of the Dominion elections being brought on at the present time, the session of the Ontario Legislature, announced to open on Feb. 11th, will, after the election of a speaker, adjourn till early in March. It is pretty certain that both sides of the House will concur in procuring such an adjournment.

A HAMILTON government organ in one paragraph upholds lauds magnifies and glorifies the "N. P." as the only thing that will save the country, and in the next calls upon the city council to provide work for the unemployed. What about the "N. P" making everybody rich and giving constant work at the highest wages? If, by everybody is meant the monopolist manufacturer, protected to the eyes, the red parlor politician, and the boodler, then the N.P. has made everybody rich—still the mechanic, the labourer and the farmer would like to see where his wealth comes in.

If the bogus reciprocity offer of the Dominion Government is carried out, what will become of the revenue which Mr. Foster claimed when Liberals advocated reciprocity would be lost to the boodle fund if there were reciprocity in natural products with the United States. The latest trade returns show that the revenue derived from the tax upon imported natural products last year was over six millions of dollars ($6,065,875). Here is six millions of revenue gone at one fell swoop. If the Conservative government is really honest in seeking reciprocity how do they propose to get over the loss of six millions—one-third of the deficit in running the Intercolonial railway for one year.

Little Troubles.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claims for it. As a precaution remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

Taxation and the Farmers.

About a year ago the Central Farmers' Institute of Ontario passed the following resolution, four only out of 120 delegates objecting:

"The Central Farmers' Institute of Ontario do memorialize the Dominion Government; that,

"Whereas, we consider the present high tariff is very injurious to the agricultural interests, making what we buy proportionately dearer than the products we sell; and,

"Whereas, the present high tariff has given rise to the combine system, by which competition is to a great extent prevented; and,

"Whereas, the agricultural interest is suffering under serious depression and unable to bear the strain occasioned by the tariff and the combine system aforesaid, and, as the agricultural interests represent the large majority of the population; that,

"Therefore, this, the Central Institute, do respectfully ask the Government to reduce the tariff on articles of prime necessity to the farmer, such as iron, steel, coal, cotton, woollens, rubbers, sugars, corn and salt, to such an extent as to relieve the agriculturist of the unequal burden under which he is now laboring."

In the last session of Parliament, Sir Richard Cartwright embodied the request of the farmers in the following resolution:—

"That the additional taxation which it is now sought to impose will still further increase the burthens of the people and it is the bounden duty of this House, instead of adding to the existing oppressive taxation, to apply itself to the reduction of the burdens now impeding the progress and prosperity of the principal producing classes of the Dominion, and for this purpose to abolish or reduce the taxes now imposed on articles of prime necessity to farmers, miners, fishermen and other producers."

The amendment was voted down, the following Ontario Tories voting against it:

—Bell (Addington), Bergen (Cornwall and Stormont), Bowell (North Hastings), Brown, (Hamilton), Cargill (East Bruce), Carling (London), Carpenter (South Wentworth), Cochrane (East Northumberland), Corby (West Hastings), Coughlin (North Middlesex), Dawson (Algoma), Dickinson (Carleton), Ferguson (Leeds), Ferguson (Welland), Guillet (West Northumberland), Haggart (South Lanark), Heson (North Perth), Hickey (Dundas), Jamieson (North Lanark), Kirkpatrick (Frontenac), Macdonald (Sir John A.), McCulla (Peel), McKay (Hamilton), McNeil (North Bruce), Madill (North Ontario), Mason (North Grey), Montague (Haldimand), Patterson (Essex), Porter (West Huron), Robillard (Ottawa), Roome (West Middlesex), Rykert (Lincoln), Stanley (South Granville), Small (Toronto), Smith (South Ontario), Sproule (East Grey), Stevenson (West Peterborough), Taylor (South Leeds), Tyrwhitt (South Simcoe), Wallace (West York), Ward (East Durham), White (Cardwell), White (Renfrew), Wilson (Lennox), Wood (Brockville).

Purify Your Blood

Existence of the blood in a condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditied and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

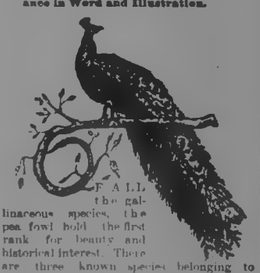
AN ASIATIC BEAUTY.

A FOWL OF REMARKABLE HISTORICAL INTEREST.

The Pea Fowl's Pompous Dignity and Faculty of Presaging Storms—The Bird's Traits of Character—Its Appearance in Word and Illustration.



FALL the gallinaceous species, the pea fowl hold the first rank for beauty and historical interest. There are three known species belonging to this genus, of which the Pavo cristatus is the one generally known. Asia is the home of these beautiful birds and, whether it was in Persia or other countries that this species attained its greatest beauty, it is certain that all the species now inhabit India and neighboring islands.

The pea fowl is mentioned in ancient history. At the time of Solomon it was an article of merchandise, and was brought with ivory and apes from Tarshish to Judea. It was subsequently introduced into Greece, Rome and other countries. They are now found in a wild state in India, mostly going in flocks. When they alight, they may often be seen along the mountain passes running with the swiftness of horses. They are also found in a domesticated state about the Hindoo temples and Rajah plantations, strutting with pompous dignity, and presaging storms.

In the Folk Lore of India the peacock is said to scream and dance with joy at the sound of thunder, and he dances only when he looks down he weeps anon at the sight of his ugly feet. They say the peacock is credited with a strong thievish propensity, as appears from this saying: "The deer, the monkey, the partridge and the peacock rob the field of its store." Anything that is trays itself is likened to "a peacock in the thief's house," a saying founded on the story of a peacock which swallowed a gold necklace brought home by a thief. This bird is sacred to the Hindoo god of beauty, who is represented as riding on it.

The peacock is furnished with an aigrette composed of twenty four feathers, which are webbed at the tips and show blue and green reflections. The head, neck and breast are rich purple with metallic blue reflections. The back is green with copper colored lining; the wings are barred with black, through which a subdued shading of deep blue appears. The primaries are dark chestnut; the true tail feathers are short and stiff and serve to keep up the train feathers, which do not belong to the tail proper, but grow from the back, and by a peculiar muscular action can be erected and spread at will. The train is glossy green ocellated at the tips of the feathers with all the hues of the rainbow, the thighs are ashy gray, belly and rump black, legs, brown, and armed with single spurs, eyes, dark hazel; neck, long, slender and snaky, and head small.

The female is not dressed in the gorgeous plumage of the male, the colors are more subdued, the shadings blend variously and the whole make-up is more modest. The prevailing colors are chestnut-brown and grayish-white, mottled in various places. The aigrette is duller in color and not quite so large as that of the male. The sexes are not easily distinguished until after their first year. They do not breed until their second year, and the male does not assume full dress until the third year.

The pea fowl is a tiresome bird in some respects. In the breeding season they are annoying by their harsh screams. They are destructive to gardens and also to common chickens. The hens usually lay on alternate days, from six to twelve eggs being the average of each hen's yield, except when destroyed early in the season, then they may resume laying. They seldom hatch a full brood, and the young must have extra care and food like poults and pheasants with the addition of ants' eggs and grubs.

Their flesh is delicious, and in times past was esteemed a great luxury among the Romans. They have always been kept as an ornament about baronial dwellings and well-kept lawns. In India, the train feathers of the peacock have been used to embellish Hindoo temples and shrines of Hindoo gods. The world renowned peacock throne which Shah Jahan erected in the Taj Mahal, in love and devotion for his lovely and accomplished wife, was valued by Tavernier at one million pounds sterling. Although pea fowls have many faults and are nowise useful to the owner, yet to the man of taste and handsome surroundings they are the most beautiful and ornamental birds in existence. Our engravings show front and back view of the male bird.

Sir Thomas Browne says, "Nature hath made one world and art another," a dictum which many admirers of the female face are quite ready to indorse. The reluctance of some young ladies to be "taken" on the sunplate is thus accounted for.

In regard to beauty, a photograph tells nothing beyond form or face. An American physician, explaining his wife's antipathy to the camera, said:

Her features are not regular, and she takes a horrid picture. Her beauty rests in her deep liquid eyes, coral lips, rich auburn hair and lovely complexion, qualities which a camera cannot reflect. On the other hand, a lady dull of eye and faded of hair can make a capital photograph, if she has a straigth nose and a tolerably good outline of features, without the least expression."

A Story With a Point.

Jay Gould tells the following little story, which is not without a moral: Daniel Drew once went into a tabernacle where sinners were confessing their crimes. There was one man thumping his chest and accusing himself of so many awful offenses that Drew became horrified. Turning to the man next to him he inquired:

"My friend, who is this man who has done these awful things?"

"I don't know who he is," the stranger said —Drew, "but I guess from his account of himself he must be Daniel D. ew."

Canadians, Read This, and Think Well.

Healthy, strong nerves make us happy; diseased or disordered ones make us miserable. These nerves do not get sick without long abuse or provocation. Our [illegible] feed the poison in silly [illegible] with improperly [illegible] brain. Our ideas become confused, the feelings marbid, the power of the will weakened, and the whole fabric deteriorated, mentally and physically. These are common truths known to every honest physician and educated man and woman.

Science has drawn from nature a relief—a permanent cure for all who are the victims of nervousness. It matters not whether this nervousness is hereditary or the result of abuse; Paine's Celery Compound is the great and infallible remedy. Pharmacy or the skill of physicians has not yet given to mankind its equal for the cure of nervous diseases.—It raises the weak and helpless to perfect manhood and womanhood; gives them sound refreshing sleep, healthy countenances, clear heads and great digestive vigor, as well as extending life. Paine's Celery Compound should be a family companion in our land. It should be near when any symptoms of nerve or brain troubles arise. Its effects are instant, marvellous and astonishing.

Warsaw to the Front.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Tuesday evening the shareholders of the skating rink met at the Commercial Hotel to partake of an oyster supper prepared by our ever obliging landlord, Mr. John Morgan. The table was well supplied with viands of all descriptions, so that those who did not wish oysters could have fowl, beef, or any meat whatever their choice might be. I am sure that no one could go away without being benefitted both in soul and body. The weakest stomach could not but rejoice when the eye met the table. After supper they all met in the sitting room, which was supplied with cigars to our satisfaction, when addresses were delivered by some of the most prominent of the assembly, after which we adjourned. Thanking our host and hostess for the ample way they had provided for us we each took our leave for our several homes, well pleased with our good success. We all join in wishing Mr. Morgan many such gatherings, in which we may participate, and long life to enjoy them, which I am sure he will only be too anxious to supply. He was well pleased with this one, as you could tell by his pleasant smile.

Life Versus Death.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised Sold by all druggists. dw

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rossway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of York, ville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w6d Burned Out.

About ten o'clock last night fire was observed in a small frame house on Park street, owned and occupied by Mr. James Moore. Before the firemen could answer the alarm the building was about destroyed. The loss will be about $300. Mr. Moore was away from home, doing night work at the Wm. Hamilton works, but most of the household goods were saved. The fire is believed to have started from a defective chimney.

To the Electors of Ennismore, Douro, Smith and Monaghan:

Meetings will be held in all the usual places, of which due notice will be given; also farmers forming clubs of from three to four will find they will buy groceries fully 10 per cent. cheaper from W. J. Morrow, than elsewhere. Don't fail to call. I am receiving large orders in the above way which I am sure will pay you and will convince you to return.

To Keep Her Cake and Eat It.

A lady in the North Ward accidentally found a way to "keep her cake and eat it," too. She had cooked a fine fig cake for a church feed, intending to take it to the church herself. When the time came she found it too stormy to go out and decided to stay at home and eat her cake herself. When she went later to her pantry she made a discovery of a sad want, and the storm did not prevent her going down town that same night to get a supply of hawley bros'. tea.

Civic Contracts.

The Street and Bridge and Charity committees met last night and awarded tenders for supplies of materials during the coming year. The contract for supplying the stone was awarded between Messrs. John Macfarlane and Tros. Lytle. About one hundred cords are used annually. The Dickson Co'y received the contract for all the pine timber to be used by the corporation, Mr. Geo. Hillard the hemlock and cedar blocks, and Messrs. W. B. Kelly and A. McDonald the cedar scantling. The charity committee divided the contract for about 125 cords of wood between Messrs. Wm. Glynn, of Westword, and J. Twomey, of Ennismore. Squire Breckenridge, of Westwood, got the contract for the square cedar.

Kicked by a Cow.

A number of the Foresters of Court Zion, Otonabee, paid a fraternal visit to Court Peterborough, C. O. F., last night, and spent a pleasant time. One of their original number, however, met with a mishap. The load was being picked up preparatory to starting, and called as Mr. John Kindred's place. Mr. Kindred was busy driving his chores in order to join them, and while feeding some cattle was kicked by one of the beasts. A cow's heel is not usually as dangerous as her horn, but in this instance the kick broke Mr. Kindred's leg, and he was carried into the house and placed under surgical attendance while the remainder of the foresters continued their journey to Peterborough.

A Great Hunt.

Every day there is great excitement on George street. People are hunting for the place to get good bargains in General Groceries, Wines and Liquors, and in the majority of cases manage to drop on the right spot—Stapleton & Elcome, who have a large and fine assortment of General and Fancy Groceries, Wines and Liquors. Another shipment of Dowie's celebrated Ale in bottles received just received. Call and give them a call and satisfy yourselves that it is the right place to deal with. All orders by telephone promptly attended to. dw

Their Night Out.

Friday evening the Tame Kill Club (composed of a number of manful (?) young gentlemen of the town) invited a number of their lady friends to a drive as far as Bridgenorth. The merry party left town about half-past seven and enjoyed a pleasant drive until they reached Mr. Fobert's Hotel, where they were most courteously received. The proprietor very generously placing the parlours at the disposal of the party, where a few hours was most enjoyably spent. Supper was then partaken of, supplied by Mr. Fobert in his usual excellent style. Before leaving three rousing cheers were given for the genial proprietor. A very enjoyable evening was spent, all realizing that it was good to be there.

The Square and Compass.

The proceedings at the regular communication of Peterborough Lodge A. F. & A. M. held last night were made unusually interesting by the presence of R. W. Bro. Wm. Miller, of Omemee, the esteemed Deputy Grand Master for Ontario District. This was R. W. Bro. Miller's first official visit to Peterborough, although the brethren have had the pleasure of several interesting fraternal visits on former occasions. R. W. Bro. Miller has a happy faculty of absorbing the attention of the brethren whenever he addresses them, being possessed of a pleasing manner of speech and a large fund of Masonic lore. On this occasion he contributed much that was of interest to the craft. His address was practical, "well-skilled," and impressive. After the lodge closed down, the brethren adjourned to their refreshment rooms where a pleasant time was spent in speech and song.

Accidents in the Camp.

Mr. James White, of South Verulam, has been working for some little time at McIntosh's Camp, in Hazlitt's lumbering operations, on the Scott's limits, Saturday evening had a narrow escape from instant death. While engaged in the stable, a horse suddenly threw up his heels and struck White in the mouth, knocking out all his front teeth and cutting the lip. He went home for medical attendance.

Mr. James Kingsboro, of Harvey, has been unfortunate this winter. It is only a short time since he recovered from a severe fall from a straw stack, and now he is brought home from a lumber shanty, with his head and face badly cut. He was drawing logs with his team, and in descending a steep hill, the sleigh slewed to the side and pitched him off, when he was dragged some distance, for he clung to the lines to try and stop the team. A chopper who happened to be near, went to the top of the hill to stop the other teams coming down, and getting assistance, carried Kingsboro to the shanty. He is now recovering, and no very serious results are expected.—Independent.

St. Andrew's Brotherhood.

The second annual convention of the Canadian Branch of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew opens to-night in Toronto. The following gentlemen will represent Peterborough at the convention:—Rev. C. B. Kenrick, president St. John's Chapter; W. D. Parker, vice-president; E. B. Loucks, secretary-treasurer; G. A. Smith, F. V. Clementi, A. Caddy, G. L. Hay. The general business meeting will be held in St. James School house at 8 p.m. to-day. To-morrow the Brotherhood will receive the Holy Communion together at Holy Trinity church, at 8 a.m. A special sermon will be preached at the Church of the Redeemer at 11 a.m. by Rev. Canon DuMoulin. At 3:30 p.m. the Litany will be said in St. Stephen's church, followed by addresses from Mr. J. W. Wood, of New York, General Secretary of the American Brotherhood, and Rev. Prof. DuVernet. At 7 p.m. there will be Evensong in St. James' Cathedral, with a sermon by Rev. Dr. Adams, of Buffalo. On Monday there will be meetings and conferences from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., led by Mr. Wm. Arkman, jr., of Detroit, and Mr. Henry A. Sill, of New York, editor of St. Andrew's Cross. At 8 p.m. there will be another meeting under the presidency of the Bishop, when addresses will be made by Mr. H. A. Sill, Rev. Dr. Adams and Mr. C. R. W. Biggar, of Toronto.

St. John's Church Chimes.

The announcements for the coming season of Lent will be made at St. John's tomorrow. Important arrangements have been complet d for interesting courses of services, sermons and addresses, and some of the most eloquent clergy of the Province will be heard in Peterborough on Wednesday evenings. The full list of speakers and subjects is published in the Parochial Lenten circular, which will be distributed to-morrow.

The Wednesday evening course at St John's will be opened next week by the Rev. J Fielding Sweeney, D. D., Rector of St. Philip's, Toronto, who will speak on "Our Example and Influence."

Six delegates from the local Chapter of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood will leave by the six o'clock train this evening to attend the Canadian convention of that body to be held in Toronto. The session opens this evening. The Canadian Brotherhood though yet in its infancy, is already an influential organization, and all the cities and larger towns of Ontario will be represented in Toronto to-morrow. In the United States the Brotherhood is an older institution, and extends through every state of the Union. A delegation from the United States will attend the Canadian convention.

We learn that the Bishop of Toronto has just appointed the Rev. T. W. Allen, B.A., Rector of Millbrook, to be Archdeacon of Peterborough, vice the Rev. John Wilson, M.A., of Grafton, deceased. The Diocese of Toronto is divided into the two Archdeaconries of York and Peterborough, comprising, respectively, the eastern and western district, which the Archdeacons are expected to supervise under the Bishop. Mr. Allen has always been distinguished by zeal and activity, and his appointment will be generally welcomed by the clergy and laity of this district.

The "Tag" Social Success.

Friday evening was a very pleasant evening, spent in the very pleasant, commodious and comfortable rooms of the "Y"—Young Women's Christian Temperance Union—George street. As each guest entered he or she was provided with a numbered tag, a corresponding number being given out—the two including question and answer. During the evening the chairman, Rev. S. J. Shorey, called out the number of question, which the holder was required to read, the holder of the duplicate number reading the answer. A great deal of amusement was caused by the apropos and mal-apropos nature of the answers. Interspersed with this was a very pleasing programme, which consisted of a pianoforte duet, the "Peri Waltzes," by Misses Nethercutt and Maguire, a pianoforte duet, "Warblings at Eve," by Misses Hall and Jones, a pianoforte duet, "Qui Vive," by Misses Snowden and Sproule, a pianoforte duet by Prof. and Miss Seward. This was the debut of Miss Seward and her rendering of the "Lulu Waltzes," composed by her father, was exceedingly creditable, shewing that Miss Seward had not only improved she five years of her life, but that her musical talent can be traced in direct descent from both sides of the family hearthstone. Mrs. (Dr.) Goldsmith rendered very happily a humorous recitation, "Matrimony." Miss Burley, with excellent pianoforte accompaniment by her sister, gave a violin solo, Dancla's Air Varies, Cangueleme, with much sweetness and delicate grace. Being recalled, she gave a very sprightly little morceau, "Petit Rondo." Mr. W. W. Daly sang with his old time effectiveness, "The Slave Ship," and for a recall, Dibdin's "Tight Little Island." Mrs. Shorey gave with much spirit and feeling the fine old ballad, "Five o'clock in the Morning." and, being encored, responded with a genre selection, "Dat's Goin' to be a Merry Thought." Refreshments of excellent quality—the coffee, especially, being delicious—were served, and the company, after having enjoyed a most delightful evening, separated with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem.

A "Vag's" Adventures.

Mr. Johnston, of Sarnia, Finds For the Close Season for Work.

Mr. Edward Johnston registered as a "vag" at the police station last night. For the benefit of those in this community who worship the "N.P." it may be stated that that rara avis, a vag., is a person who wanders from place to place in search of work, which cannot be had. Mr. Johnston started from Sarnia and set forth in search of work. He tramped from that town to this under "The Old Flag, the Old Leader, and the Old Policy," seeking for employment, but he could not get any, probably because the great "N.P." had supplied everybody else with so much work that there was none left for Mr. Johnston. He could not get any work here either, but he got what is much more valuable—in the giver's estimation—plenty of advice.

One good-natured soul said to Johnston, "See here, my good man, you go to 'Jimmy Stevenson'; he's mayor and he'll give you a job on the Lakefield-Peterborough section of the Trent Valley Canal, which is to be begun at a very early date in the spring—of some year in the latter part of the next century."

Another grimy police court philanthropist put in his contribution of advice:—"Now, Johnny, you look here; don't let anybody spoof you with a fake like that. You just go to "Dick Rogers" an' he'll put you onto a racket worth two o' that. He'll set you to work pumpin' out the old Governmint scow at Hastings—that's got to be rix for the election is comin', and——"

"But," said another, "he hain't got no vote an' there's no show for him."

"No," said the middle-aged Mr. Johnston, with a way-back look in his eye, "I wasn't twenty one when the Dominion voters' lists were last revised and my name didn't go on."

Finally, Magistrate Dumble said, "I'd advise you, Mr. Johnston, to take a month in jail."

Mr. Johnston took his advice, and also Mr. McGinty's arm, and marched up the hill to find in a felon's cell the work, food and shelter, which a country, flourishing under the "old flag, the old policy (the N. P.) and the old leader," had denied him.

An Age of Discovery.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Beware of imitations.

Is the Race Deteriorating?

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SANK IN THE MERSEY.

A DYNAMITE VESSEL RUN INTO BY ANOTHER VESSEL.

The Force of the Collision Not Sufficient to Explode the Powder—A Panic on the London Stock Exchange Due to a Forged Order from a Paris Banker—Russia and the Jews.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 6.—The steamer Knutsford, Capt. Harrison, which arrived to-day from Galveston, collided in the River Mersey with the steamer Drumhendrie, injuring the latter vessel to so great an extent that she soon filled and sank. The Drumhendrie had on board a cargo of dynamite. Though the force of the impact of the two steamers was sufficient to crush in the plates of the Drumhendrie, allowing the water to rush into her hold, it was not sufficient to explode the dynamite. Had the dynamite exploded both vessels would have been blown up with great loss of life.

FIRE AND FLOOD.

Police Open Fire Upon Them and a General Fight Ensues.

HAVANA, Feb. 6.—Police recently informed that several bandits had taken passage on the steamer Baldomero Iglesias here with the intention of escaping to Aspinwall. Officers went where the steamer was lying. The bandits opened fire and the officers returned fire, and a fierce battle ensued. The passengers on the steamer were thrown into a great panic. The police finally gained possession of steamer. It was then found that three of the bandits including the notorious Montelongo were dead. Montelongo was shot while trying to swim ashore and soon sank beneath the waves. Another of the bandits was captured. Two police men were wounded.

Chilian despatches state that the bombardment of Iquique by the insurgents is imminent.

A number of forged telegrams bearing the name of M. Carmondo, a prominent banker of Paris, were received in London yesterday ordering the sale of large amounts of Brazilian securities. As a result a panic prevailed in these securities on the stock exchange until the fraud was discovered.

M. Nysohnogradsky, Russian Minister of Finance, has obtained a suspension of further repressive measures against the Jews by pointing out to the Czar the vexatious financial results which such measures might involve.

The Y.M.C.A.

H. B. Fraser, Toronto University, submitted the report of the College Department, showing that there are eight college associations in the two provinces. The work where established is in a very encouraging condition, financially and otherwise. Mr. Fraser read a memorial from the Canadian delegates at Northfield in 1890, recommending the appointment of a provincial college secretary. At the afternoon session there were various essays.

Unaccountable Suicide of the Master of the St. Pierre Treasury.

HALIFAX, Feb. 6.—M. Larive, Master of the Treasury at St. Pierre, suicided there by killing himself with a revolver. The deceased occupied a room immediately above the office occupied by the clerks. There was a small opening in the floor of M. Larive's room through which he watched the movements of the clerks. Just previous to his death M. Larive put his head through the opening and shouted "Good-bye." Almost immediately after a report was heard. In entering the deceased's room Larive was found on the floor in a pool of blood. The unfortunate man had put a bullet through his heart. His accounts were found to be all right.

Supposed Infanticide at Ingersoll.

INGERSOLL, Feb. 6.—The body of a newborn infant was found on the sidewalk in front of Mr. William Ross' residence, Bell-street, by some men while on their way to work. Some incline to the belief that the birth took place on the sidewalk where the body was found.

Amicably Arranged.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—The conference of delegates considering the difficulties between the trainmen of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the company is concluded. They had interview with Mr. Shaughnessy, the vice-president, and everything is amicably arranged.

Dropped Dead.

ORILLIA, Feb. 6.—G. W. Brimley of Fesserton, a well-known mill man, dropped dead of heart disease to-day.

A Green-Haired Girl.

A pretty Irish girl who arrived in New York recently on the White Star steamer Britanic, set the employes of the barge office in a commotion. She was tall, well developed, rosy cheeked, blue eyed and cherry lipped, and a mass of wavy sea green hair crowned her stately head. She was Emily Maud Higgins, twenty-one years old, of county Galway, Ireland, and she came to get employment, not to pose as a museum freak. There is nothing peculiar about Miss Higgins except the shade of her hair. When she was very young it was of a sulphurous hue. At the back of her head her parents noticed that when she was standing in certain positions the hair had a greenish tint. As time rolled on another discovery was made. On a sunny, bright day Miss Higgin's hair was always light. When it was foggy, frosty or rainy her hair always became darker and greener. When seen under the gas light the hair is of a nice chestnut. Father Cahill, of the mission, says that in Ireland there is an old tradition that any one who goes to the Lakes of Killarney and stands in a certain position just after midday will have hair of emerald hue. The color is caused by the reflection of the mountain on the lakes. The belief is held by everyone there.

His Logic Was Correct.

Policeman—Are you drunk?
Reclining Inebriate—You bet!
"Then you move off from here."
"Shay, are you drunk?"
"No, I am sober," was the indignant response.
"Then (hic) why don't you move off You can do it a blamed sight easier than I can. Shoo!"—Texas Siftings.

Baby's Face was Raw

Distressing Itching Skin Diseases Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got no better. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them faithfully, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, and now he is three years old and no sign of it remaining. The child was a mass of sores, and I had to tie him in a pillow-case and pin his hands down or else he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to the any one and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

DEVOURED BY WOLVES.

HORRIBLE STORY FROM MANITOBA AND RUSSIA.

Two Lovers in the Department of Kieff Meet a Terrible Fate—A Young Englishman Wounded in the Woods Is Torn to Pieces

WINNIPEG, Feb. 8.—Harry Robinson, son of a well-known wood and coal dealer, has returned from his father's wood camp at Poplar Point, bringing a report of the horrible fate of a young Englishman who was employed there. This Englishman and companion were chopping wood a few miles from camp, and in felling a tree his leg was very badly injured. His companion attempted to bring him into camp, and for a mile or so carried him on his back. Becoming tired, however, he was forced to rid himself of his burden and with all possible speed ran into camp for assistance accompanied by several others. He returned in an hour or so and the party were horrified to find only a few of the young fellow's bones in the place where he had been left. Wolves, which infest the district, had attacked and devoured him.

DEVOURED BY WOLVES.

A Terrible Tragedy in Russia—Hopeless Fight for Life.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 8.—News of a terrible tragedy which happened in the Government of Kieff has been received here. While two lovers were out walking they were attacked by a pack of wolves, which had been rendered desperate by hunger. The man tried to fight off the famished animals, but was finally compelled to abandon his sweetheart and take refuge in a tree. The wolves then attacked the girl, and from his place of safety the man was forced to witness the terrible sight of the girl he loved being torn to pieces by the snarling animals, which fought savagely over the body of their victim. The man was overcome by the horrible scene, and at last he loosened his hold on the limb of the tree and fell dead among the wolves, which soon devoured him.

The London Baccarat Scandal.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The military Baronet accused of having cheated while playing baccarat in company with the Prince of Wales at Arthur Wilson's house at Doncaster is Sir W. H. Cumming, a lieutenant-colonel in the Scots Guards. The Baronet has commenced an action for slander against Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, in whose house the offence is alleged to have been committed, and also against others present on the occasion. The plaintiff says the defendants have imputed to him dishonest playing. The case will be vigorously conducted on both sides. No damages are claimed.

Nine. Patti Arrested.

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—The police here served an order of arrest on Madame Patti in behalf of the St. Petersburg authorities for breach of contract in refusing to sing unless her advance money was deposited with her bankers. The serving of the order caused a sensational scene. Patti was compelled to deposit $2100 in order to obtain her liberty.

The Newfoundland Question.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Chronicle says: "Mail advices show that we have lately come dangerously near to forfeiting the allegiance of Newfoundland. We hope that Lord Salisbury has profited from the lesson of such a disregard of colonial wishes."

The New Chief of Staff.

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—Gen. Von Schleiffen has been appointed by the Emperor chief of staff of the imperial army, to succeed Count Von Waldersee.

THE MORIN-TUPPER SUIT.

The Testimony Closed for Both Sides—Summing Up to Begin To-Day.

BUFFALO, Feb. 8.—There was no abatement in the interest of the Tupper-Morin trial yesterday and the court room was crowded as on the previous days.

While Mr. Morin was testifying an affecting incident occurred. Mrs. Tupper suddenly burst into tears. Her husband beckoned Mrs. Sessions and the two ladies left the court room, Mrs. Tupper sobbing quietly with her handkerchief before her face. They returned in a few minutes, but Mrs. Tupper was far from being composed.

Mrs. Tupper was then called to give rebuttal testimony. She swore positively Cuddy had said nothing to her about Buffalo despatches and that he was one of three men who passed her on the station platform. Her testimony differed materially from that of the Canadian officers, and was important as tending to show that she was arrested because she carried a certain trunk check and not from any resemblance to the Wilson girl.

It was then announced that the evidence was all in, and Tracy Becker, addressing the court, asked for a verdict in favor of the defendant. Mr. Morin, he said, had reasonable grounds for ordering the arrest, believing the woman on her way to Toronto was the one who robbed Mr. Miller's house. Justice Lewis decided to allow the case to go to the jury. An adjournment was then taken until to-morrow morning at 10.30 o'clock.

Sawmills in Ashes.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—About 7.30 o'clock fire broke out in McLaren's sawmills, situated at the mouth of the Rideau River, near Edinburgh. The firemen were soon on the ground but their efforts in saving the mill were fruitless. The flames have spread to the adjacent lumber piles, which are now burning fiercely.

Several Irish bishops, following the example set by Archbishop Walsh, have written to the clergy of their diocese in opposition to Mr. Harrington's appeal to members of the National League to re-organize in view of the coming general elections. Mr. Harrington says that the archbishop misjudges the object of the league's circular, which is similar to those issued annually by the league.

The Parnell Leadership Committee have agreed to dissolve in view of the accession of Mr. Dillon.

Bob Fitzsimmons, the middleweight champion of the world, has signed a contract to travel under the management of Otto R. Ciato, who is backed by George R. Clark of Chicago. The contract is for $7500 and 15 weeks.

A prominent Scotch football player recently declined an offer of £250, to transfer his services to a wealthy English club, the reason for his refusal being that he receives the sum mentioned for playing at home, and will remains an amateur.

NONE LEFT TO TELL THE TALE.

Two Vessels Sunk, Probably by Collision, Off the Jersey Coast.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Another steamer is reported sunk almost on the spot where the Vizcaya went down a few months ago. The vessel is supposed to be the Norwegian fruit steamer, Simon Dumois, which left this port Wednesday last for Matanzas, Cuba. As yet nothing has been heard of any of the crew.

The first tidings of the disaster were brought here to-day by Frank Kelley, a pilot of the boat Ambrose Snow. Kelley reports that on the 5th inst. he passed close to the wreck of a vessel with three masts standing about 30 feet above the water. The vessel lay with her head to the north. A short distance away was a sunken three-masted schooner, whose cargo consisted wholly or in part of petroleum, as oil was floating on the sea. No wreckage was floating about. Inquiry among steamshipmen here brought out facts enough to fix beyond a doubt the identity of the vessel as the Simon Dumois. The Dumois is one of a fleet of five fruit steamers plying between New York and Cuban ports, all owned by Norwegians. Capt. Johan Kanitz was in charge of the Dumois, with a crew of 16 men.

AMPUTATED HIS OWN LEG.

The Desperate Work of a Man Who Had Been Caught By a Train.

HUNTSVILLE, Feb. 8.—Coroner Reeve held an inquest over the body of a young man named Edward McKinny who had been found dead by the section men in a ditch alongside the railway track in the vicinity of Novar. Deceased was considerably the worse of liquor when he left Novar on Wednesday evening to walk down the track, and before he had gone very far had been overtaken by the Atlantic express. The train crushed one leg, nearly severing it, but it is believed that the poor fellow with a jack knife cut through the remaining flesh, thus completely amputating the limb from the body, as it was found lying beside his dead body next morning.

BRAINED WITH A BOOTJACK.

What May Prove a Murder in North York.

NEWMARKET, Feb. 8.—Friday night at Keswick Chris Lepard and Jack Connell quarrelled. Lepard, it is said, struck Connell on the head with a bootjack, cracking his skull. There are small hopes of the injured man's recovery. Lepard has not yet been arrested.

OUT OF WORK AND DESPONDENT.

A Former Resident of Owen Sound Cuts His Throat in Detroit.

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—At 2.30 yesterday afternoon William Kinney, a boarder at the Western Hotel in Third-street, found John Gray, another boarder, lying on the bed in his room partially undressed with his throat cut from one ear almost to the other. The bed clothes were covered with blood and the razor that Gray had used on himself lay on the floor near by. Gray is 54 or 55 years old, a Scotchman by birth, and came here from Owen Sound six years ago, when he went to work for the Michigan Central Railroad Company as a checker in their city delivery office. Between two and three weeks ago he was discharged from his position, it is said, on account of irregular habits. He will die.

Sawmills Burned.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The sawmills owned by Mr. James McLaren at New Edinburgh, Rideau Ward, were destroyed by fire this morning; over half a million feet of lumber also went up in smoke. The loss will be over $125,000. The McLaren property included saw, planing and lathe mills and a machine shop, built on the rocky promontory at the confluence of the Rideau and Ottawa Rivers.

Cannon Challenges the World.

GLASGOW, Feb. 7.—Tom Cannon has arrived in Glasgow from New York. He appeared to be in excellent health and spirits, and in conversation said that he was eager to bring to a conclusion the matches that were so unsatisfactorily fought out last year in Manchester. He wishes The Sporting Life to hold £50 cash for a match with Antonio Pierri, Graeco-Roman style, best of three falls, for any sum up to £500 a side. Cannon weighs at the present time fully 15st. Cannon says he has come all the way entirely to make another match before setting out to fulfil engagements in France, Germany, Russia and Austria. Cannon will wrestle any man in the world for this stake.

The American Football Association Anxious for a Game Next August.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The local members of the American Football Association will urge the association to invite the Canadian team to play an exhibition match here prior to their embarking for Europe next August. The Nonpareils of Brooklyn are very anxious to have a game. The Association meets here to-morrow night.

[As the Canadian team will sail from New York it is more than probable that the Western Football Association which has charge of tour will agree to a date.]

Trotting and Pacing at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Feb. 7.—The second day's races of the winter meeting of the Hamilton Trotting Association came off this afternoon. The track was in poor condition and a blinding snowstorm prevailed throughout the progress of the races. Results:

Local race—Thomas Crook's Leslie C. 1, J. H. Filman's Jupiter Jr. 2, J. Burt's Bay Tom 3, D. Lambert's May Stanton 4. Best time 2.49½.

Open race, for trotters and pacers—Cyclone 1, Jennie Scott 2, Minnie Moore 3. Best time 2.45.

Fitzsimmons Challenged by Hall.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—The Australian bookmakers, Barney Allen and Joe Harris, now here, have issued a challenge, supported by a deposit of $1000, in behalf of Jim Hall, who defeated Bob Fitzsimmons in three and a half rounds for the middle-weight championship of Australia. They challenge Fitzsimmons to fight Hall to a finish before some athletic club for a purse and a side bet of $10,000, under Marquis of Queensberry rules. Hall is six feet one inch in height. His fighting weight is 153 pounds. He is 24 years old. It is said he has a longer reach than Fitzsimmons. He is on his way to this country from Australia.

The Canadian Knocked Out.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Maher, the Irish heavyweight champion, knocked out Lambert, the Canadian heavy-weight, in the first round to-night at the Pelican Club. The match was for £100 a side.

KILLED BY AN AVALANCHE

22 SWISS WOODCHOPPERS BURIED IN THE MOUNTAINS.

The New Italian Ministry Formed—Attempt to Blow Up the Leeds Gashouse with Dynamite—A Young Girl Murders Her Father—An Egglish Tragedy.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The steamer Chiswick, bound from Cardiff to St. Nazaire with a cargo of coal struck a sand bank off the Scilly Islands on Thursday morning and sank. The captain and ten seamen were drowned. Eight men who had life belts around them clung to an overturned lifeboat for seven hours until they were rescued by boats from a lightship. A steamer conveyed them to Penzance to-day.

DISTURBED SPAIN.

The Situation at Barcelona Considered Critical.

BARCELONA, Feb. 8.—The excitement caused by the recent electoral contest, by which the Republican leader Salmeron was, according to the Republicans, unfairly defeated by the Conservative candidate, Puig, has not abated. The troops of the garrison are confined to their barracks, and preparations are being made to send strong reinforcements to this city should the state of affairs call for an additional display of force. Thousands of people not connected with the Republican party have signed petitions, which have been forwarded to Madrid, asking the government to dismiss the civil governor and other officials from office, in consequence of the outrageous treatment upon the part of the mounted gendarmes of the crowd of people who gathered on Wednesday night to attend the reception given to Senor Salmeron.

CRUELTIES OF THE RUSSIANS.

Fearful Atrocities Perpetrated Upon Polish Suspects.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Two delegates of good Polish families now here report that the Russian authorities in Poland have revived the practice of the question by torture where it is desired to extort information from prisoners. At Warsaw the special tribunal tried and condemned 46 "suspects" without permitting them to call witnesses or to employ counsel. Before starting for the prisons in Central Russia the prisoners were flogged. While under the torture of the "question" a well-known teacher, Ladislas Guisbert, became a maniac from the terrible suffering brought on by want of sleep.

WHAT VILLAIN DID THIS?

The Mutilated Body of a Girl Found at Cricklewood, England.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The dead and horribly mutilated body of a girl, who was apparently about 15 years of age, was found early this morning by employes of the Midland Rail road, lying beside the track at Cricklewood.

The face had been cut away, both legs and arms were severed from the body, and the brains were scattered over the rails. Stab wounds, inflicted by some very sharp instrument, were found in the back and head.

Complete mystery surrounds the ghastly crime, and the police seem powerless to secure any clue to the perpetrator.

KILLED HER FATHER.

She Confesses to the Murder and Claims It Was Justifiable.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—A startling tragedy is reported from Blois. A wealthy man of high social standing and a member of the municipal council has been shot dead. The crime was committed by his daughter. She fired five shots from a revolver at her father with fatal effect, and he expired in a few moments.

The woman has surrendered herself to the police. It is reported that she has made a full confession to the authorities, acknowledging the crime and justifying it.

The New Italian Cabinet

ROME, Feb. 8.—The formation of a Cabinet is not yet completed. The Marquis di Rudini insists upon large economies in the military and public departments and the adoption of a policy of early dissolution of parliament, abolition of the scrutin de liste and better relations with France. The Marquis di Rduini assumes the Foreign portfolio while Signor Pelloux is assigned to that of War. The other members, including Signori Luzzati, Maraeco and Morin, are variously allotted.

A ministry has been formed as the result of the collapse of the projected combination having Signor Saracco at its head. Signor Crispi to-day took farewell of the officials of the interior and foreign offices.

The leading Italian newspapers do not look with favor upon the new ministry, and they express the opinion that it will be short-lived. Of the new ministers Sig. Nicotera and Sig. Branca are members of the Lefts, Sig. Pelloux is neutral and the others belong to the party of the Right. With Sig. Saracco not in the Cabinet, Catholic support of the new ministry is very uncertain.

An Important Liberal Measure.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Mr. Charles Seale-Havre, Liberal member for Ashburton, has prepared a bill providing that justices of the peace shall hereafter be elected instead of appointed by the Government. March 10 is set down for the second reading of the bill, which will be opposed by the Government, but receive the general support of the Liberals. The bill embodies an entire revolution in the minor administration of justice in England. The justices of the peace now are nearly all well-to-do squires who have their own way in dealing with the people brought before them. Sir William Harcourt has pronounced in favor of the reform and will support it.

An Avalanche's Terrible Work.

BERNE, Feb. 8.—News of a terrible disaster comes from the village of Ruetti, Canton Glarus. A large number of woodcutters were at work cutting wood on the side of a mountain near that village, when suddenly a rumbling, crashing sound was heard, and before many of the poor men could escape a huge avalanche thundered down on them, burying 22 of them beneath a mass of snow, ice, rocks and trees. Every effort is being made by the neighboring villagers to rescue the men who may be alive and to recover the bodies of the dead. Up to the present, however, only three bodies have been recovered.

Dynamite Discovered in a Gashouse.

LEEDS, Feb. 8.—A tin box containing dynamite was discovered yesterday concealed in the gasworks of this city. It is supposed that the dynamite was place where it was found by workmen who have recently been discharged from the gasworks. The police are investigating the outrage. The company has offered a reward for the arrest of the culprits.

Will Probably Result Fatally.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Simmons, aged 80, was walking from the house to the driving shed when she slipped and fell down a flight of steps and struck with terrible force on the ice below. She lay unconscious at the foot of the steps, and when raised from this position it was found that she had sustained terrible injuries. Blood was oozing from her mouth and ears and she had fractured her collarbone in three places besides sustaining many serious bruises. Her recovery is doubtful.

Arm and Leg Crushed.

WATFORD, Feb. 8.—Daniel, son of Mr. Duncan Campbell, of the 2nd line south, Adelaide, was coming to town with a load of wood, and when approaching the brow of the hill in Victoria-street the horses started on a trot. The lines became entangled around his legs, pulling him from the load, and in falling he grasped the right tug of the harness with one hand, the left arm being run over and crushed by the front wheel. In this position he was dragged through the mud and slush down the hill. While being dragged along Campbell's right leg was also run over and broken between the ankle and knee.

A CANADIAN HERCULES.

FEATS PERFORMED BY LOUIS CYR, THE QUEBEC GIANT.

Who is the Strongest Man in the World?—A Question Yet Unanswered—A Mighty Man of Muscle—The Arm of Hercules.

Who is the strongest man in the world? There are at least a dozen before public notice to-day who claim to be that man, and each performs certain feats of strength which would seem to warrant his right to that title. It is difficult to determine, however, which one of the lot is superior in physical strength, because, invariably, each is able to preform some particular feat which another cannot.

This popular regard for physical strength is inherent and undying. It was manifested by the people of the time of Milo of Croton, twenty-five centuries ago, and is shown to-day at all athletic games.

RIGHT ARM OF THE HERCULES.

The Samsons of modern times are men who have been naturally endowed with great muscles and enormous strength, but who have increased and added to both by constant training and practice. Attention is given particularly to their strongest muscles, and these actually become abnormally developed. Other muscles are neglected, so that the spectacle of a giant's arms and trunk upon an ordinary man's legs is very commonly presented. Few of the "strong men" of to-day are physically well proportioned, for they have given all their attention to the development of certain muscles.

The most remarkable of all the strong men is Louis Cyr, of Quebec, who is now in New York. He is a giant in strength and stature, as will be seen by a consideration of his measurements. He is only 27 years of age, but he weighs 323 pounds. The tape showed his physical dimensions to be as follows: Height, 6 feet 10½ inches; chest inflated, 58 inches; waist, 48 inches; biceps, 21½ inches; thigh, 32 inches; calf, 24 inches; neck, 22 inches. Cyr's specialty is the lifting of heavy weights and the putting up of big bells.

LOUIS CYR, CANADIAN HERCULES.

He can take an ordinary man and toss him about as if he were nothing more than a bag of oats. He scarcely knows his own strength. An idea of the enormous power of his arms can be gained through the statement that he lifted a dumb bell weighing 250 pounds, with one hand from the ground to the shoulder, and then slowly pushed it up from the shoulder to arm's length, using only the one hand. There is probably not another man in the world who could do this. Another time he tried a pair of bells together, which weighed 440 pounds, attached a string three feet long, and then lifted this great weight from the ground with one finger.

He also put up a 100-pound bell with one hand twenty-seven times in succession. His greatest display of strength was made about a year ago, in Montreal, in a lifting match with a man named Barre. On a small platform weighing 140 pounds were placed seven dumb-bells, weighing 589 pounds, a barrel of flour and seven heavy men. Cyr put his giant arms around the platform and lifted the lot. The aggregate weight was 2628 pounds. In another way he lifted 3260 pounds of pig iron at Berthierville, Quebec, on October 1, 1888. The iron was placed on a plank, which rested on a trestle. Cyr got under the plank, and pushing up with his back, arms and legs, raised the weight clear of the trestle. No other man in the world has been able to approach this performance.

The Y. M. C. A.

KINGSTON, Feb. 8.—The Y.M.C.A. convention concluded this evening with an impressive service in the city hall, conducted by Rev. Mr. Hall, state secretary for New York. The leading secretaries and delegates conducted services in many of the churches during the day. At Saturday's session it was decided to meet at Quebec in February, 1892. London was a strong rival for the gathering but Quebec led by three votes.

Crowds are the Fashion.

Three services were held at the Auditorium yesterday. At 10, Rev. J. M. Wilkinson addressed a large gathering of school children in the assembly room; at 3 Miss Lillian Phelps of St. Catharines spoke to a very large audience on the temperance question. In the evening the hall was once again crowded. Mr. Wilkinson was assisted by Miss Phelps and Mr. A. M. Robinson.

GREENSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 8.—The remains of two more victims of the Mammoth mine explosion were discovered under the debris in the mine this morning. They were Polanders. This makes a total of 109 found.

Disastrous Fire at Meaford.

MIDLAND, Feb. 8.—The factory of the Meaford Building and Manufacturing Company has been destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at about $10,000, and is partially covered by an insurance of about $2000 in the Gore.

Killed in Nevada.

MORRISBURG, Feb. 8.—A telegram says that Mr. William T. Casselman, who left last week for the West, was killed by the train while traveling through Nevada on his way to California. The body will be brought here for burial.

EAST vs. WEST PETERBOROUGH.

We have been asked by letter from Norwood to announce what townships comprise the electoral district of East Peterborough in the Dominion election contest. We do so with pleasure. They are as follows:—Asphodel, Belmont, Methuen, Burleigh, Asmuther, Chandos, Douro, Dummer, Dysart, Dudley, Harcourt, Guilford, Harbourne, Bruton, Havelock, Eyre, Clyde, Nightingale, Livingston, Lawrence, Cavendish, Glanmorgan, Cardiff, Monmouth, Otonabee and Harvey, and the villages of Ashburnham, Lakefield and Norwood.

[We might add that the following townships comprise the Dominion electoral district of West Peterborough. The town of Peterborough and the townships of Smith, Ennismore, and North and South Monaghan.

There are a pair of well balanced ridings indeed. In the west we have four townships in a bunch, while in the east there are twenty-nine townships, and it would keep the candidates to be nominated on the 10th every night from that day, including Sundays, to hold a meeting in each township, and then he will have to leave out four or five. To give a candidate a fair chance to meet his constituents and the constituents a fair chance to ascertain the views of the candidates, at least three or four meetings should be held in each township. No living candidate can get over the East Riding between the party nomination and the day of polling, unless, like Sir Boyle Roche's bird, he can be in two places at the same time.

Now, why did not Sir John postpone the elections till after the census had been taken, and re-adjust these two constituencies, so that there would be a decent balance? That, however, wouldn't do. It would be consulting the public interest, whereas Sir John consults only his own and the party's interests, so long as he gains his end. It is a sad commentary on the debased standard of public morality, created by a life-time of such example, that we find men who profess to be religious and hon arable men, applauding such miserable trickery, and calling it statesmanship.

SIR JOHN'S proposal to try and secure reciprocity in natural products, and to keep up the tariff tyranny on manufactured products and imported articles, shows that he still maintains the policy that every interest must be protected but that of the farmer. All the farmer is good for, according to the Tories, is to pay taxes and vote for the party that robs him.

Restriction Denounced.

A Conservative Farmer Tells Some Plain Truths—Results of High Taxation—He Will Not Support the Tory Party any More.

Mr. James Johnston, J. P., Carleton county, a life-long Conservative, and once an ardent admirer of Sir John Macdonald, has declared for unrestricted reciprocity, and is actively working in the Liberal interests. Mr. Johnston is one of the most successful and respected farmers of Carleton county, and his influence will tell against the Tories in the coming campaign. For magisterial and municipal purposes Gloucester township is in Carleton, but as a Federal electorate it is in Russell; and Mr. W. C. Edwards is the candidate of Mr. Johnston's choice. Speaking to the Ottawa Free Press this morning he said that he was confident that Mr. Edwards would consent to run and would defeat the strongest opponent the Tories can anywhere find. But whether he runs or is elected by acclamation, Mr. Johnston declares that the work of education on the trade question will go steadily on among the farmers. "I will do my very best," said he, "to convert some of the old hard-shell ones to the doctrine of reciprocity with the United States. What are my reasons for changing my mind on the trade question? Well, the biggest reason is hard experience. The farmers are away behind. Something is wrong. We cannot get anything like decent returns for our labor. The manufacturers and monopolists are rich, and are getting richer. We are working harder than they do. In fact, no man can work any harder or more intelligently, for we are not all fools. But although we really make much wealth by producing grain and everything that is most wanted in this world, still we only get the crumbs. No farmers are millionaires, though among the manufacturers and speculators millionaires are getting common. Well that simply means that somebody is stealing from us, and we are going to find out who the gang of thieves are. Why can't we sell our grain and horses to the dealers in the United States? Why are we not allowed to buy what we want from them? We only deal with them because we want to better ourselves. Then who has the power to keep us from bettering ourselves? The tariff keeps the farmers poor. When a farmer sees an opportunity to make a good bargain across the St. Lawrence, the custom house officer stands between him and the dealer who wants to buy his horse or grain. And they call that protection! I call it slavery, and it is slavery. No man is free who is afraid to sell what he makes on his own farm to whoever will pay him the best price. But we are afraid of the customs officers. If we take our goods to the American side the authorities call it "smuggling" and they have the law on their side. So we are forced to buy from men who charge us more than the goods are worth. If the Canadian manufacturers do not get higher prices on account of the tariff then how does the tariff protect them? Well, we are finding out who the thieves are and we see that Sir John is standing in with them; and that his national policy has helped them in their robbery for the last eleven years. At at Toronto the other day Sir John said it was "the same policy." Of course it was the same policy, but they call it by another name. They have christened it "reciprocity in an natural products." But "it is the same policy," and we are tired of being humbugged. "Reciprocity in natural products" will leave the monopolists with just as much power to get two prices for their goods as they have now. And even if it would be a better policy what chance is there to get it in force? None at all. But there is a chance to get unrestricted trade. Everybody knows that the Americans would give that; and everybody knows it would be fair to let them come over here and buy and sell as they please as long as they are willing to let us go to the States and do the same. "Protection" is no good except for the thieves. Speaking of the annexation cry, Mr. Johnston said it might frighten fools. The trade question is but, he said, a question of business. The whole "Protection" foolishness came from the bigots who imagined that a man across a river—across the St. Lawrence for instance—was an enemy who would fight and murder us with cheap goods. The loyalty cry has paid the monopolists big profits, but it is very nearly played out". Mr. Johnston says he is sixty-two years of age, but he hopes to live long enough to vote as often against the restrictionists as he has voted for them before. He has been considerably among the people and means what he says when he talks of "hard experience."

OLD ENOUGH TO KNOW BETTER.

A Lothario of 65 Elopes With His Daughter-in-Law.

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 8.—A man named Shumway, residing in the township of Tuscarora, Bradford county, Pa., died last fall leaving a young widow and a bright little child. The father-in-law of the widow, an old man of 65, whose name is Winslow Shumway, took her and her child to his home to support them. It was not long, however, before the old gentleman's wife observed certain irregularities between her spouse and her daughter-in-law. She remonstrated somewhat strongly, and the result was that a couple of days later the old gallant left Tuscarora on the evening train, the widow following the next night. They came here about Dec. 1 and, renting a house in Simcoe-street, settled down to housekeeping as husband and wife. Meanwhile the deserted wife kept her eyes and ears open, and at last observed at the railway station there a bundle of goods which she recognized as belonging to the runaway widow. The package was addressed to P. Tracy, Niagara Falls, Ont. Immediately the police were communicated with and the couple were located at their residence. The old lady and her son came here and swore out an information against the two. As the object of the prosecution was to induce Shumway to support his wife and send away his daughter-in-law, she was permitted to sleep that night in the house she had occupied, receiving a strong recommendation to skip out before morning. She took the hint and vamoosed, and when the old fellow was brought before Magistrate Hill he agreed to take his wife to live with him again, depositing a considerable sum of money as security that he would appear when called upon. The old couple then went to live in the house in Simcoe-street which had been so comfortably furnished for the young woman.

AGED TURTLE DOVES.

One Has Buried Five Husbands, the Other Four Wives.

SOUTH COLCHESTER, Feb. 8.—Milton Brown, aged 84, of Anderdon will next Tuesday lead to the altar a bride in the person of Mrs. Margaret Clickert, aged 67. The bridegroom-elect has buried four wives and the bride mourns the loss of five husbands. Her last husband died two years ago at the advanced age of 124 years.

An Age of Discovery.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Beware of imitations.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

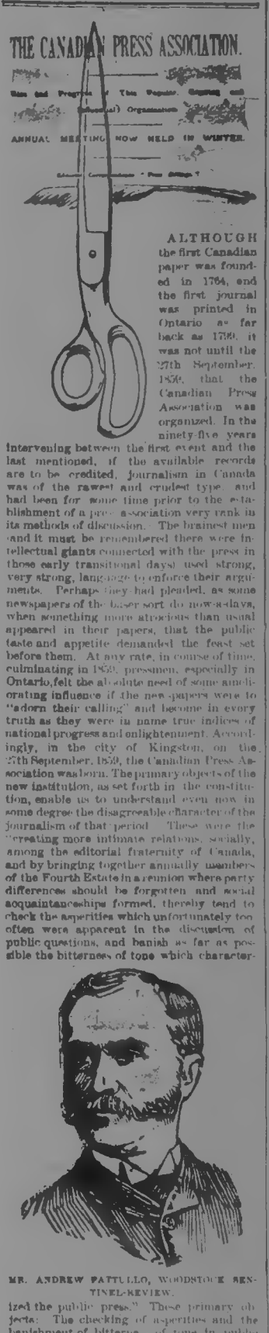
391 GEORGE STREET.



ALTHOUGH the first Canadian paper was founded in 1764, and the first journal was printed in Ontario as far back as 1799, it was not until the 27th September, 1859, that the Canadian Press Association was organized. In the ninety-five years intervening between the first event and the last mentioned, if the available records are to be credited, journalism in Canada was of the rawest and crudest type and had been for some time prior to the establishment of a press association very rank in its methods of discussion. The brainest men and it must be remembered there were intellectual giants connected with the press in those early transitional days) used strong, very strong, language to enforce their arguments. Perhaps they had pleaded, as some newspapers of the baser sort do now-a-days, when something more atrocious than usual appeared in their papers, that the public taste and appetite demanded the feast set before them. At any rate, in course of time, culminating in 1859, pressmen, especially in Ontario, felt the absolute need of some ameliorating influence if the newspapers were to "adorn their calling" and become in every truth as they were in name true indices of national progress and enlightenment. Accordingly, in the city of Kingston, on the 27th September, 1859, the Canadian Press Association was born. The primary objects of the new institution, as set forth in the constitution, enable us to understand even more in some degree the disagreeable influences of the journalism of that period. These were the "creating more intimate relations, socially, among the editorial fraternity of Canada, and by bringing together annually members of the Fourth Estate in a reunion where party differences should be forgotten and social acquaintanceships formed, thereby tend to check the asperities which unfortunately too often were apparent in the discussion of public questions, and banish as far as possible the bitterness of tone which characterized the public press." These primary objects: The checking of asperities and the banishment of bitterness of tone in public discussions have been in a great measure attained. While it cannot be said that the strong language of the early days has been entirely expunged from the columns of the newspaper press, it is now rare to find even heated discussions tainted with bitterness of tone. There can, therefore, be no reasonable doubt that the Canadian Press Association has done good work in the past in this regard, and is entitled to be credited with a large meed of praise for educating public opinion in the better way. Now-a-days no one mistakes abuse for argument, and the utilitarian spirit of the age is too highly developed to permit even the ignorant to be led away by a sound of words which signify nothing. Dearly as the average man loves a fight, he prefers to see full-grown prize fighter to a bludgeon-wielder. The initial board of officers of the new association were: W. Gillespy, president; J. G. Brown, first vice-president; Josiah Blackburn, second vice-president; Thomas Sellar, secretary and treasurer; D. McDougall, honorary secretary; George Sheppard, James Seymour, James Somerville, Thomas McIntosh and John Jacques, executive committee. These men, and their press colleagues of that time, builded, as we have seen, better than they knew, and in the yearly meetings which were always thereafter held the primary objects of the association were never lost sight of. President after president, in his annual address and these used to be prepared with elaborate care and study and include the details of palpable growth in grave congratulated the association upon the progress being made. And it is no wonder that improvement was apparent. The Canadian Press Association has numbered some very clever men among its officers—men who afterwards attained to the dignity of Ministers of the Crown. In 1863 a new departure, and one which revived and increased the interest of members, was taken. An excursion to some point or points of interest was added to the civilizing attractions of the annual meeting, which then their annual jaunts doubtless proved as near a "royal road to learning" as editors may ever expect to have in this world. In 1866 another change came o'er the spirit of the editorial dream. Original waste places had been fairly well cultivated, and several souls conspired to incite them to reach out after other and greater worlds to conquer. The great development of the country and especially of its railways, with the more modern methods inaugurated by the latter; the consequent multiplicity of journals during the past twenty years, the great increase in the membership of the association, the introduction of young blood which had been educated in the schools and colleges, and, last but not least, the combining spirit of the age as shown in every other walk of life, induced the newspaper man to move along with the modern procession. Then it was decided to hold a winter session of the association in Toronto, and it was accordingly held in the Press Club rooms on Feb. 22 and 23, 1869. The essayists seemed to be inspired, and the meeting was an unqualified success and this was followed by another in 1869 which also was characterized by mutual profit and advantage. The subjects discussed were live topics of interest to the fraternity, and many knotty points, unsolvable to the individual, were settled by the greater experience, freely given, of someone else who had met with similar difficulties and overcome them. The press trip, however suffered collapse last year, and it was decided at the annual meeting in July, 1890, to hold the annual meeting hereafter in February. The programme for this year surpasses in interest anything hitherto attempted, and of especial interest to every newspaper man in the province. Brilliant speakers of national note, practical subjects for discussion, fraternal intercourse with brethren of the press who have made names for themselves in the neighboring republic, and a dinner at which the guild will have free social interchange of thought and an opportunity to nob-nob over a square meal of victuals, furnish a combination of attractions for the newspaper men far and near from the Queen City. Those who are not already members of the association, and who are entitled to be such under the constitution, should become so at once. It will pay in more ways than one, especially in the added zest in the actual newspaper grind which will come to all members of the craft who will suffer the infatuation for their guild, possessed by most newspaper men to a degree seldom experienced by men of other crafts, to become beaming and gushy under the influences alluded to above.

To Keep Her Cake and Eat It.

A lady in the North Ward accidentally found a way to "keep her cake and eat it," too. She had cooked a fine fig cake for a church feed, intending to take it to the church herself. When the time came she found it too stormy to go out and decided to stay at home and eat her cake herself. When she went later to her pantry she made a discovery of a sad want, and the storm did not prevent her going down town that same night to get a supply of hawley bros'. tea.

Charged With Fraud.

Sunday evening a young man named Winfield Scott Lovelace, of Ashburnham, was arrested by Chief Rosel. He is accused of committing fraud at Trenton. The arrest was made on the strength of a message from Chief Hinde of Trenton. Lovelace has been away from town, and but recently returned. Chief Hinde arrived here this morning, and left at half past one with his prisoner for Trenton. Lovelace is alleged to have acted fraudently in connection with a note in a horse transaction.

Accused of Theft.

Frank Lefevre, a Frenchman, well known about town, was arrested Sunday evening on a charge of having stolen $25 from Gilbert Defoe. It seems that he and "Gil" were in the Ontario Bank Saturday, and the latter drew $25 of his savings to further continue the spree he had been carrying on for some time. He was not exactly sober at the time. Lefevre left the bank first, and then Defoe missed his money. The police were notified, and Sunday evening Lefevre was arrested on suspicion. He had a five dollar bill and eight ones in his pocket. He denies the theft, and at the police court this morning pleaded not guilty. He was remanded for trial till Wednesday.

The Conservative Nominee.

Mayor Stevenson Again Nominated by the Conservatives for the Commons.

The Conservatives of West Peterborough held a meeting in the Opera House Saturday afternoon for the purpose of nominating a candidate to contest the riding in the Dominion elections. There were about three hundred persons present. Mr. Moore, president of the Association, occupied the chair.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson, M.P., gave an account of his four years' stewardship. In the course of his address he touched upon some local topics. Referring to the Trent Valley Canal, he said the report of the Commission was in the Government's hands, and though he had been unable to get a copy of it, he understood, however, the report was favourable to the canal. That being the case, if he was again elected and the Government did not go on with the canal, Mr. Stevenson said he would feel compelled to resign his seat in the House and come back to the people.

Several resolutions of the usual character were then passed, teeming with flowery expressions of loyalty to Sir John and the policy of the government, and approval of Mr. Stevenson's course in parliament.

Mr. Stevenson was then nominated by Mr. Geo. Hilliard, seconded by Mr. T. Kelly. Mr. Stevenson proposed Mr. Jas. Kendry, but the latter declined the nomination, and Mr. Stevenson accepted it, though he said he did so with great reluctance. He had lost money already by being the representative and would like some one else to take the candidature.

MR. LARKE, Mayor of Ottawa, then spoke at considerable length on general topics, re-hashing to a large extent the addresses delivered by his leaders in Toronto the night before.

The meeting closed with the usual cheers.

The Winnipeg Bonspiel.

Flavelle, of Lindsay, Holding up His End in the Great Match.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 5.—Flavelle, of Lindsay, still continues his march to victory at the bonspiel. Late last night the crack Ontario skip defeated Dunsford, of Morden, in the international contest by 16 to 9. This morning the match for the Royal Caledonian Tankard was played, the contest being Manitoba against the world. The world, represented by Flavelle of Lindsay, and two St. Paul rinks, won. Score:—

All-Comers.		Manitoba.
Nettleton (St. Paul.	10	Sparling (Portage)	16
McCulloch (St. Paul)	18	Jamieson (Thistle)	11
Flavell (Lindsay)	18	Patterson (Granite)	15
Total	46	Total	42

Majority for All-Comers, 4 shots.

All the games were notly contested and the Manitobans were the leaders up to the time the last shot was played, when a beautiful draw by one of the St. Paul skips put out a five end, thus giving victory to the outsiders. The two St. Paul rinks and Flavelle will play down for possession of the tankard. Flavelle, with his usual good luck, has drawn the bye, and will play off with the best St. Paul rink. To-night Flavelle was beaten by Harstone, of Winnipeg, 17 to 13, which knocks him out of the Grand Challenge Cup competition. The trophy now lies between Harstone and Fortune, both of Winnipeg. Flavelle will play with Grant, of Calgary, for third prize.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 8.—Flavelle of Lindsay won three games at the bonspiel on Saturday. In the morning he defeated Cobb of Virden in the international competition, and will play to-morrow with McKechnie of the Winnipeg Thistles in the final. In the afternoon Flavelle won the Royal Caledonian Tankard from the St. Paul clan, and will carry the trophy to Lindsay on Wednesday. At night Flavelle played off with Grant of Calgary for third prize in the grand challenge cup competition and won 20 to 7. For first place Fortune of Winnipeg defeated Harstone 17 to 11. To-morrow the bonspiel will close with games in the Walkerville tankard and international series.

Church Chimes.

The annual meeting of the Bible Society takes place in the George street church Wednesday evening. Rev. Mr. Wellington, of Toronto, will deliver an address.

Rev. Henry Norris, of Glen Allen, Ont., occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's, and Mr. H. C. Priest, of McMaster Hall, preached in the Baptist Church Sunday.

Rev. J. S. Ivison Wilson, of Cobourg University, a son of Rev. A. C. Wilson, of Ashburnham, preached in the Charlotte street church Sunday, the pastor, Rev. S. J. Shorey, being in Trenton.

Mr. J. Churchill Arlidge, the new organist of St. Paul's church, assumed his duties Sunday. The congregation was pleased with his playing, as well as with the singing of his four-in-your-old son. The boy soprano sang a solo in the morning, and took solo part in the evening anthem.

Quite a Serious Accident.

Mr. James T. Fairweather has returned home from Harwood, where he has been held prisoner since Thursday last from the effects of an accident. He accompanied a sleighing party from town, to Harwood, and the bus in which he was riding was upset. Mr. Fairweather was on the front seat and jumped, but fell under the bus and was pinned to the ground. The top of the bus struck him on the back inflicting serious injuries. He was unable to return home at the time, and is yet considerably disabled, at least as far as walking is concerned. He will likely be compelled to forego business pursuits for some time yet. Mr. Fairweather's many friends will hope that no permanent injurious results may follow.

PROSPECTIVE INDUSTRIES.

Some Things We Might Do if We Tried.

Smelting Furnaces are Right in our Line—The Manufacture of Food Products an Important Possibility—Some Valuable Pointers for Manufacturers and Capitalists.

Much is being constantly said about Peterborough's unexcelled manufacturing facilities, but the fact cannot be too strongly impressed that our town is a natural industrial centre and must look mainly to its manufactures for the media of prosperity and growth. Rapid strides have recently been made in the development of our resources, but it is apparent that there is yet ample room for the exercise of business enterprise and speculation.

At the last meeting of the town council Mr. E. H. D. Hall mentioned the fact that the city of Hamilton was taking steps to establish a smelting furnace. The thought naturally arose, why should not Peterborough have one? There is no question that Peterborough has better facilities than Hamilton, and her business men are just as enterprising. Mr. J. J. English, now of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, a practical man whose world-wide experience and observation entitles his views to the most serious consideration, was spoken to on Saturday by the EXAMINER.

Mr. English said he had occasion some time ago to look the matter up, and he found from the Government statistics that $375,000,000 worth of iron has been imported into Canada since Confederation. Why should not Canada make her own iron and keep this money in the country?

Mr. English said he was informed there is ore available at Marmora and in the vicinity of the back lakes, which could be got out without much trouble to some central point like Peterborough. Our railway and water connections were unexcelled for the purpose. The difficulty of a coal supply, usually urged against the establishment of a smelting furnace in Canada, was not a serious one, for this reason. Ore is transported from back of Lake Superior, by rail and water, to Chicago or Cleveland, and used there or shipped to Pittsburg and other inland manufacturing centres. If it paid to bring ore that distance, surely it would pay to bring the necessary coal from Pennsylvania to Peterborough. One just offset the other. Pennsylvania has the coal and not the ore; we have the ore and no coal. Mr. English said he understood coke could be laid down here for from $3 to $4 per ton. If that was the case, there was no difficulty in the way of a smelting furnace. Such an industry must be situated in a central point with a large and constant labour supply, such as Peterborough. Mr. English said he believed for a certainty that the smelting of iron ore would pay here.

Another branch of the business that ought to be worked up was a

CHARCOAL SMELTING FURNACE.

There were vast forests in the back country, and, with the splendid water and railway facilities the wood could either be brought down here and made into charcoal or burned in the woods. The wood was suitable for the purpose, and every part of it from the topmost twig to the roots of the tree could be utilized. The cutting could also be carried on judiciously, and the forests conserved, by cutting only what was ready, and leaving the rest to grow.

The charcoal iron and steel business was an important one. There was a large demand for iron and steel made from charcoal. Apart from the smelting of mineral iron, a charcoal smelting furnace might easily be established. It was a separate industry. Charcoal iron and steel was requisite for a great number of manufactures. Files of all descriptions were made from charcoal steel. Car wheels are all made from charcoal iron; and there was no reason why these could not be made in Peterborough cheaper than in any point in the United States, with the exception perhaps of Alabama. It is a raw manufacture and requires only unskilled labor, that is available at any central point. The manufacture of car wheels is one that there are no better facilities for carrying on anywhere than right here in Peterborough. Competition must be left out altogether, because if there was a charcoal furnace here the United States could not legitimately outsell the home product. The manufacture of mineral iron is handicapped by the lack of coal, but our facilities for making charcoal iron are away ahead of any place where it is being made in Pennsylvania.

Peterborough was a better place than Hamilton to establish a smelting furnace. We have ore, and good ore at that, close around us, but Mr. English did not know of any in the vicinity of Hamilton. They would have to bring their ore a long distance. Mr. English said he understood the railways are perfectly willing to enter into a just arrangement for the transportation of raw material from the mines to Peterborough. Any man of ordinary sense, said Mr. English, has but to go into a town hardware store and see the infinite variety of steel pressed plateware, and other articles of iron and steel, all exotic manufacture, to realize what can be done here. Besides, if a smelting furnace was established it would lead to other industries, as a natural sequence. For one thing, the smelting of aluminium might also be carried on profitably.

Of course capital was required, and the capitalists should wake up and see their opportunities. There was plenty of room for a smelting furnace in Peterborough.

FOOD PRODUCTS.

Mr. ENGLISH advanced some further ideas which he said were the result of his personal observation and experience. There were other lines of manufacture which could be made paying. Peterborough is the centre of a district that produces an abundance of wholesome meat and other animal foods—pork, beef, mutton, butter, cheese, etc. There were a variety of ways of utilizing pork. It could be manufactured into what is known as Oxford sausage, the meat being selected and packed in small boxes about 4x1½ inches in size. A great quantity of these are used in warm countries, on shipboard, in camp and travelling. It could be manufactured cheaper here than in England. Potted ham was also a delicacy largely used in tropical countries by English-speaking people. Hogs heads made into "head cheese" also sells well abroad.

Beef also can be prepared in all its forms in Peterborough and a superior article produced to that in factories where the whole carcass is used. The tongue, heart and tripe when potted are a much sought-after delicacy.

Then, there is no place where a finer supply of sweet-meated turkeys and chickens can be procured than at the Peterborough market. These could also be canned and turned to greater profit than is the case now.

Cheese, if made here after the manner of Swiss cheese, in small spheres, 6 inches in diameter, would meet the wants of tropical countries and outdo competition. Butter put up in small pots, as is done in Denmark, three or four ounces in each pot, and shipped to non-producing countries like Brazil, would sell well. The Denmark butter brings about a dollar a pot in Brazil. Soups of all kinds could be made here from fresh meats and put up in portable form, as is being done now by large firms.

The objection is sometimes made that industries like these could not succeed because they could not sell their goods here. It could not be expected that they would. People will not buy potted meats when they can get them fresh. But there is a great demand for these meats in warm countries where they cannot be got fresh, and it was there the industry would find an almost limitless market. All it required was some to establish the business, and it would succeed.

The barley product was also touched on. Mr. English pointed out that there was a good market for malt in the Argentine Republic, Brazil, Japan, China and other countries which did not grow barley, but were importing malt from Germany. Canadian malt was equal to any, and there would be more money in making the malt here than shipping our barley abroad to be converted into malt.

As to beet sugar, Mr. English thought that, while, no doubt, the farmers here could make a success of the industry, still there were other parts of Canada better adapted for the purpose. Winnipeg was a much better place, in his opinion, for the cultivation of sugar beets and manufacture of beet sugar than Peterborough. Winnipeg would also be a good place to establish a potato starch factory. They had plenty of potatoes; here they had only enough to supply the demand.

There was no use, Mr. English said, in Peterborough trying to start a silk factory or coffee garden. She must do what she has facilities for doing, and no more. With smelting furnaces and the manufacture of canned meats, etc., a splendid start could be had in making Peterborough the great industrial centre she is naturally adapted to be, a different world bring more in their train. Mr. English began the address, and capitalists in particular, will see the force of his remarks and act accordingly.

Equal Rights to All.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I was one of the listeners at the Opera house on Saturday to the vaunted loyalty of Mr. Stevenson, how bravely he defended the honor of the Crown against Cartwright and Company's annexation policy, as he will term it. But where was he in defence of his own degrading actions and vote on the Jesuits' Estates Bill and Mr. Dalton McCarthy's French language legislation? He omitted making any reference to these matters, nor did he explain what will be his vote should Sir John undertake "to disallow the Manitoba's recent Act of Parliament in reference to the Roman Catholic separate schools for that Province. Mr. Stevenson will find before he gets though with his canvass that "the way of the transgressor is hard," and that quite a number of so good Conservatives as he are not to be so easily deluded by his Trent Valley business, etc., while his chief object is to raise a strictly party cry and bring the faithful into line; he at the same time will be required to make something more than a political pledge of his loyalty to our gracious Sovereign and thus restore our lost confidence in him through his act of bowing the knee to the will of a foreign and dangerous potentate. Explain your position in these vital matters, please, Mr. Stevenson, before you go any further, so that we will know where you stand.

Yours truly,
EQUAL RIGHTS.

Norwood.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A very successful and well-attended meeting of the Bible Society was held in the Presbyterian Church here on Thursday, Feb. 5th. Rev. J. G. Manly, agent of the Society, delivered a very interesting address on "Africa: Lost and Found." The secretary, depositor and treasurer submitted their reports, which were, on motion, adopted. The following are the officers appointed:—

PRESIDENT—Rev. W. Peer.

VICE-PRESIDENTS—The Protestant clergymen.

SECRETARY—W. E. Roxburgh.

TREASURER—Dr. Ford.

DIRECTORS—Presbyterian, A. R. Anderson, Richard Nicoll, Jas. Davidson; Methodist, W. H. Stephenson, P. W. Stevenson, W. R. Howson; English, Mr. Plant, W. G. Pattison, M. Bailey; Baptist, J. Raddon and J. Cummings.

DEPOSITOR—Mr. Gear.

About twenty of our young people availed themselves of the beautiful evening and splendid sleighing to visit Warsaw on Thursday last and attend the entertainment given by the Presbyterians of that place. The hospitality of the Warsaw people raised them to a high position in the estimation of the visitors.

We regret to learn that Mr J. N. Ackerman is confined for the past two or three days from the effects of a kick received from his colt. Although the injury is bad enough, it might have been worse as Mr. Ackerman remained in the cutter while the horse ran for about four miles.

A fawn which was caught and tamed by our local hunter, Mr. Tom Frazer, is now allowed free access to the street and elicits the public attention.

On the occasion of the departure of Miss Ryckman for London, Ont., an hour was spent in the High School in song and speech last Thursday afternoon. During the performance Miss Ryckman was made the recipient of a copy of Shakespere's works, accompanied by an address. Although Miss Ryckman's stay with us was short, she has won many friends and will be gladly welcomed should she ever find it convenient to pay us a visit again.

The Canadian Live Stock and Farm Journal.

The February number of THE CANADIAN LIVE STOCK AND FARM JOURNAL (published by the J. E. Bryant Co., Ltd., 53 Bay St., Toronto) contains a mine of information, from which many valuable hints, applicable to every branch of farming may be culled. "Echoes from England" is the heading of an able article on live stock matters, from the pen of Mr. A. Macdonald, which will be interesting to stockmen; while dairymen, amongst other useful information, are provided with reports of the recent Dairymen's and Creameries' Conventions. The pages devoted to prominent agriculturists is filled by a good portrait of Mr. Thos. Ballantyne, M.P.P., one of the most prominent patrons of the dairy interest, and who from the first has intimately connected with the cheese export trade. The eighth paper on the pure breeds of cattle, by Prof. Thos. Shaw, of the Ontario Agricultural College, gives at length the standard points of shorthorns; and in the Veterinary Department, Dr. Grenside touches on swollen legs in horses, together with the preventive and curative treatments thereof. The best method of raising bull calves is discussed in the Counsel Table, and should be of special value to farmers, as well known breeders of the different varieties all give their experiences. Other practical papers contained in the Departments of Horticulture the Farm, etc., all help to form an ample supply, from which each reader may glean some useful information.

Burned By Her Baby.

GUTHRIE, O.T., Feb. 7.—Mrs. William Grimes, after completing her domestic duties to-day, laid down on the bed in her room and went to sleep. Her 4-year-old daughter found a box of matches and with them set fire to the window curtains and the clothes in the closet. The child had previously locked the bedroom door and thrown the key out of the window. When the mother awoke the whole room was ablaze. She could not escape by the door and was obliged to leap from the window with her child in her arms. Her clothing had caught fire, and when she fell to the ground she was wrapped in flames. She died in terrible agony this evening. Her little daughter escaped severe injury.

Foreign Money Market.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Discount was in moderate demand during the week. The rates quoted were 1⅝ for three months and 1¾ for short. The Bank of England will pay back to the Bank of France at the end of the present month 3,000,000 bullion borrowed during the Baring's crisis. It will be returned as received, as it has never been unpacked since it was shipped to London. There has been a small daily inflow from the provinces, which strengthens the Bank of England's bullion stock. The stock exchange was inactive throughout the week, yet the tendency of the market was good. Silver securities were especially weak, owing to growing fears that nothing would be done with the silver bill in Congress this session. In foreign securities the features of the week has been the relapse in Argentines. American railway securities were firm and there was an all round rise on Paris and Berlin bourses. Prices were firm

The Team Was Lost.

WALLACEBURG, Feb. 7.—Charles Beck, a farmer [illegible] in the 10th concession of Sombra township, lost a $200 team here this evening. Beck was in town with a wagon. On leaving for home he drove on to the ice. Getting into a hole, horses and wagon went to the bottom of the Sydenham before assistance could reach them. The driver had a narrow escape from drowning himself.

They Think Well of It.

Baby's Face was Raw

Distressing Pustular Skin Disease Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got no better. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them faithfully, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, and now he is three years old and no mark of it remains. Mrs. Theobald was so bad I had to tie him to a pillow case and put his hands down so that he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to see any one and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

THE CAMPAIGN IS HOT.

SPEECHES BY CARTWRIGHT AND PREMIER MERCIER.

A Large Batch of Candidates Nominated in Various Constituencies — A Big Liberal Meeting to be Held in Toronto Friday Evening — General Political Notes.

OSHAWA, Feb. 9.—A meeting was held in the Music hall this evening in the Liberal interests which was addressed by Mr. Feador Boas, a woolen manufacturer of St. Hyacinthe, and Sir Richard Cartwright. Mr. Boas said that, as a manufacturer of large experience in his special line, he did not want protection, and was quite prepared to take his chances of success with the manufacturers of any country and that a market was all that he needed. Cartwright referred to the speeches of the four ministers in Toronto as indicating that party did not want to treat with the United States for reciprocity on grounds that would be acceptable to us, and in reply to a question by C. W. Scott as to whether Liberals favored discrimination against Great Britain by admitting American manufactures free and taxing manufactures of Great Britain, said, "Certainly we do," and intimated that it was more to the interest of Great Britain that Canada place herself in a position to pay interest on the eight hundred millions of British capital invested here than that her interests as a trader be considered.

PREMIER MERCIER.

He Declares Himself in Full Sympathy With Laurier.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9.—Hon. Premier Mercier addressed a meeting of 5000 people in the Bonsecours Hall to-night. He declared himself in entire sympathy with Hon. Mr. Laurier and the Liberal party and to the principles of unrestricted reciprocity and provincial autonomy. He was accompanied by the members of his executive, all of whom addressed the meeting. They will remain in Montreal till the campaign is over, and the Liberals here are much encouraged by their presence.

Glengarry—A proposition has been made by the Reform party of Glengarry to John McLennan, the former member for the county, to accept the representation as an Independent Conservative at the coming election. The proposition has been accepted with the provison that the Conservative party also accept him as their choice.

Resolutions were passed condemning the Government for attempting to snatch a verdict from the people and for thus disfranchising thousands of voters, and pledging the support of the party to the Opposition's policy of unrestricted reciprocity in trade.
North Lanark — The Reformers of this riding met at Almonte yesterday. Joseph Tait, member of the Local for Toronto, was the principal speaker, and was followed by W. C. Caldwell, R. J. Dowdall and D. Sir John Thompson left Ottawa yesterday for Halifax. Hon. C. H. Tupper started east yesterday.
Sir A. P. Caron has definitely decided to run in Chicoutimi county, and is now in that constituency.
Sir John's manifesto has created a decided sensation at Ottawa, but meets with the great disapproval of the Liberals.
S. S. Ryckman will in all likelihood be Alex. McKay's running mate in the Conservative team for Hamilton.
Finances Minister Foster arrived at St. John, N.B., last evening and proceeds to King's County to-morrow to open the campaign.

Mr. Lionel Clarke of Toronto will be married to-day, and to-morrow he will accept the Conservative nomination in his native county, North Wellington. The bridal trip will consequently be short.

FROM MANITOBA.

Sir John Macdonald May be Nominated for Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 9.—The Conservatives of Winnipeg are looking around for another candidate. Search having determined not to offer himself for renomination and Sir Donald Smith having declined a requisition, which was very largely singned, owing to his acceptance of Montreal West, E. L. Drury, a prominent brewer, was communicated with but he has declined on account of ill-health. Some want ex-Gov. Aikins and his name will probably be submitted at to-morrow evening's mass meeting as well as the names of Stewart Tupper and Hugh Sutherland and probably that of Sir John Macdonald. The Liberals meet Thursday night when it is presumed Isaac Campbell, M.L.A. for South Winnipeg, will be nominated. Findlay Young, Liberal whip in the Local Legislature, is spoken of as Liberal nominee in Selkirk. There is as yet no opposition to Dewdney in East Assiniboia, or Lariviere in Provencher.

THE SITUATION IN QUEBEC.

Sir Adolphe Caron Opens the Campaign at Levis.

QUEBEC, Feb. 9.—After vespers yesterday at Levis, Sir Adolphe Caron addressed a large meeting in the town hall. The meeting was opened by the Mayor, Mr. Belleau, Q.C. Sir Adolphe appealed to the intelligent electors to support a policy truly national which made the country prosperous, and which had received the almost unanimous support of the people since 1878, and to vote against a policy of unrestricted reciprocity, which must inevitably lead to direct taxation, and as a necessary consequence to annexation. He stated he was no annexationist but wanted Canada to remain what it was, regulating its own fiscal policy, instead of handing it over to Washington, and his fondest hope was that our country would still remain one of the brightest jewels of the British crown. The Mayor spoke after him and besought the electors to support a policy which had done so much for the industries of the town of Levis. T. C. Casgrain was followed by Mr. Roy of Levis, Mr. L. Tas-hereau, candidate for Beauce, Mr. Darveau, Captain Martineau, Mr. Joseph Roy and Mr. Darveau. At the close of the meeting the Mayor offered the candidature for Levis to Sir Adolphe, promising him the support of the Conservative party with the certainty of defeating any candidate who would run against him. Sir Adolphe promised to consider the question. The mayor of Levis recalled the fact yesterday that Mr. Chapleau's successful provincial campaign of 1881 was opened by him at Levis, and he anticipated that equally successful results would attend the present contest.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO FEB. 9.—Mr. Frank M. Midford, the well-known local reporter for Dun, Wiman & Co., is dead. Mr. Midford was a young man of 24, and up to last week was in the best of health. On Tuesday he complained of a severe cold, which developed into pleurisy and carried him off yesterday.
The first big Liberal mass meeting of the campaign will be held in the Auditorium Friday evening. Sir Richard Cartwright will be the speaker of the evening. S. H. Blake, Q.C., and William Patterson, the Liberal candidate for South Brant, it is expected, will address the meeting.
The re-arrangement of seats on the floor of the Legislative Hall for the first session of the new Assembly, which begins to-morrow, has been completed. Mr. Mowat will be supported on his right by Messrs. Fraser and Hardy as usual. Mr. G. W. Ross moves forward and takes the place vacated by his namesake, the ex-Treasurer. Mr. Harcourt moves into Mr. G. W. Ross' old place behind Mr. Fraser. The former Speaker, Mr. Baxter, takes Mr. Harcourt's place in the front row. Mr. Dryden takes the place vacated by Mr. Drury, and our Joe Tait takes Mr. Dryden's chair. Mr. Bronson, having been called to the Cabinet, assumes a Cabinet position, the seat immediately behind Mr. Mowat. Dr. Gilmour of West York moves along the old row to the seat rendered vacant by the death of Mr. Freeman. G. B. Smith keeps his old seat. Mr. Ingram is not assigned a seat on the floor because he will take a higher one, the Speaker's.
On the Opposition front row are many changes. Mr. Meredith having lost his first lieutenant, Mr. Creighton, will be supported by Mr. H. E. Clarke on his left. Then Mr. A. F. Wood moves forward one row and takes Mr. French's place, Mr. Clancy the place vacated by Mr. H. E. Clarke, Mayor Clarke takes Mr. Clancy's seat and Mr. Whitney moves forward from the back row to take Mayor Clarke's seat. Sol. White takes the seat vacated by Mr. A. F. Wood. Mr. R. Tooley takes the seat vacated by Mr. J. S. Cruess under the gallery and easy of exit.

THOUSANDS OF MINERS IDLE.

A Great Strike Inaugurated in the Connellsville Coke Regions.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 9.—The great strike in the Connellsville coke regions was inaugurated to-day, and by to-morrow every mine and coke works in the region will be closed. The miners, to the number of about 10,000, refused to go to work to-day, the only men now working being the coke drawers. There are 6000 men employed at this work, and as soon as they have drawn the coke from the ovens they will quit. The strike is for an advance in wages on 12½ cents per ton and against a 10 per cent reduction.
Both sides are firm and a long struggle appears to be inevitable. The workmen offered to continue at the present wages until March 1, provided the operators would arrange a satisfactory scale in the meantime, but this was refused. The independent or small operators then offered to pay their men the old wages until a settlement of the trouble, but this also was rejected. The operators claim it is necessary to make a reduction owing to the depression in the coke and iron trades. There are over 16,000 ovens and 70 coal and coke works in the region.

Hiccoughing Herself to Death.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 9.—Alice Woodward, a girl of about 19 years, a niece of J. D. Dayton, a prominent citizen of Shelton, has been hiccoughing incessantly for six weeks, and nothing has afforded her any relief. She is wasted to a skeleton, and death is but a question of a few days. Even electricity has no effect upon her. The medical profession is much puzzled.

DID HE CHEAT AT CARDS?

LONDON'S SCANDAL STILL CREATES EXCITEMENT.

A Baronet Accused of Cheating at a Card Table at Which the Prince of Wales Was Seated—The Part a Highly Polished Cigar Case is Alleged to Have Played in the Game.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The most strenuous efforts are being made to suppress the latest scandal in connection with the Prince of Wales' unfortunate stay at Mrs. Wilson's country seat, Tranby Croft, last autumn.
The unpleasantness at the card table at Tranby Croft is entirely different to the version published in the newspapers, and the charge made in print that Sir William was caught in the act of surreptitiously tampering with the stakes is devoid of truth. What occurred was this: Sir William had on the table before him a silver cigaret case with an exceedingly highly polished back, on which were reflected the faces of the cards as he dealt them. Whether this was intentional on his part or not is a question that has given rise to much discussion. It is probable, however, that no one would have given any attention to the matter had not Sir William been winning very heavily. So few men know how to lose at cards without betraying signs of ill-humor, and one of the unfortunate ones, more crusty than the rest and searching for some peg on which to hang his ill-temper, caught sight of the cigaret box and gruffly suggested its removal. Sir William, who has hitherto been known as a man of unblemished character and of great gallantry, is not blessed with a particularly patient or enduring character, and a full-fledged scrimmage was only averted by the presence of the Prince. At the suggestion of the latter the matter was submitted to the arbitration of three well-known clubmen present, who decided the matter by acquitting the baronet of taking any unfair advantage. Conscious, however, of the disagreeable position in which the fact of his having been a large winner that evening had placed him, he took an oath in the presence of the prince, and before the arbitrators had announced their decision, never to touch a card again. Sir William, who is a lieutenant-colonel of the Scots Guards, and who distinguished himself greatly in the Afghan, Zulu, Egyptian and Nile campaigns, is not a particularly popular man, and inasmuch as one or two of the men present were indiscreet enough to tell their wives of the incident the matter was soon bruited about in all the country houses and London clubs in a considerably exaggerated form. Sir William has succeeded in tracing his two fellow-guests at Tranby Croft to whose indiscretion he is indebted for the present rumors affecting his honor and has commenced libel suits against them, subpœnaing the Prince as a witness in his behalf. It is these lawsuits that are now in the act of being settled out of by court abject apologies on the part of the defendants in the two suits.
The scandal has, however, served to revive memories of similar incidents which have occurred in late years. The most notable cases are those of George Russell and Walter Harbord. Each of them was the son-in-law of a Duke and each of them a particular friend and crony of the Prince. George Russell, who is a first cousin of the late Duke of Bedford, and whose wife was the charming daughter of the Duke of Roxburghe, was formerly one of the best known and most popular men about town. He held the lucrative Government post of Secretary of the Public Works Department, and as such controlled all the Government parks. This privilege he made use of to convert the pretty park-keeper lodges in Hyde Park and St. James' Park into so many gambling hells, luxuriously furnished at the expense of his department. Not content with the profits obtained as the "runner" of these hells, he set to work to cheat, and was finally caught in the act at the Turf Club.

THE ENGLISH DERBY.

Betting Continues Slow The Decmster Orion and Peter Flower Bunched.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Betting on the English Derby continues to be slow. There is still no marked favorite. The best thought of are Gouverneur, The Decmster, Orion and Peter Flower, who are still bunched in the books. The recent declaration of forfeit shows that the runners will have to be drawn from the stables of no large number of trainers. Fifteen at least of them have only a single horse engaged, those candidates being Newcourt, Fife, Ben Hur, Bolam, Koorali, Husbandman, Benvenuto, Henry VIII., Lord Henry, The Decmster, St. David, Negotiator, Peter Flower, Martenhurst and Misraim. Four others are returned as being trained privately. A couple of Derby candidates are set down as being under F. Bates' care, three as being in the hands of Matthew Dawson and the same number in the care of Joseph Enoch, the last-mentioned lot being Cleator, King's Evil and Kirkstall. William Grey looks after Valuris and Hermence, and to young Tom Jennings are assigned the "crack" Gouverneur and Cordon Bleu. Richard Marsh can supply runners in Unicorn and Ammonite, while John Porter holds a hand numerically strong, at any rate, in Orion, Common (who has not yet appeared in public), Gone Coon, Ordinance and Adieu. Ryan will superintend the preparation of Orvieto and Patrician. The largest lot is that under the control of Robert Sherwood, consisting of Old Boots, Sir Frederick Roberts, Simonian, Penzance, Shieldrake, Colorado and Fitz Simon. Set down to Alec Taylor are Excalibur, a colt by Petrarch out of Doll Tearsheet, and another by Avontes from Panada. Wadlow has the dangerous Cuttlestone and Junius, and Percy Peck trains a couple about which little is known, namely Bonniral and Golden Garter. Material exists for a large field for the great race at Epsom, and it may be a more open affair than most people suppose.

Mitchell and Slavin will Box.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Charley Mitchell and Frank P. Slavin left for Dublin to-day. They will box four rounds there on Monday night, and on Thursday they will appear in Belfast. Peter Maher, who defeated Gus Lambert, the American pugilist, announces his willingness to fight Jem Smith for £300 a side. Sporting men here have lost faith in American fighters on account of the poor showing made by McAuliffe and Lambert. Both of these men are looked upon as "duffers."

Died in a League Hut.

CORK, Feb. 9.—A despatch from Rathcormack states that the parish priest of Castle Lyons, Father Ferries, died Saturday in a league hut erected in 1881, when he was evicted from his parochial residence for non-payment of rent.

SOUTH DUMFRIES' TRAGEDY.

Further Evidence Taken, But No New Facts Divulged.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—The inquest touching the death of Robert C. Wilson, the South Dumfries farmer who was found drowned in a cistern some time ago, was resumed to-day at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Bradley, Ogden Wilson, Mary McEwen and Mr. Carr were examined, but nothing new transpired. On account of the stomach and viscera not having been returned from Toronto, where they had been sent for analysis, the inquest was adjourned for two weeks.

LINED WITH WEALTH.

$10,000 Found by a Porter Concealed in a Pullman Car Seat.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Ten thousand dollars, half of which was in bills and half in Government bonds, was found last evening by Henry Prentice, an employe of the Pullman Company. The money was concealed beneath the cushions of a seat in the sleeping-car Atlanta. It is thought the funds were concealed by some one who came into possession of them in a criminal manner and was prevented from removing the packages owing to fear of discovery.

BELGIUM'S KING FAVORS UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE.

Salisbury Calls a Meeting of the Conservative Party—Is An Early Dissolution Probable — Signor Crispi Offered a Title of Nobility — The Northampton Election.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Lord Salisbury has summoned a general meeting of the leaders of the Conservative party throughout Great Britain, to take place early in March. It is understood the question of the dissolution of Parliament may then be decided upon.

Favors Universal Suffrage.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 9.—King Leopold received a delegation from the workmen's council of industry to-day. In a speech he said he had decided to pledge his support of the demand for universal suffrage. He had the cause of the working classes greatly at heart, he said, but not being a dictator he must leave the suffrage question to the nation. "Workingmen are wrong," he added, "in considering themselves a separate caste. We are all Belgians in different grades and all workmen." The delegates replied that the workmen had been made a separate class by being refused the right of voting. They trusted the King would assist in conciliating the classes in order to prevent unfortunate occurrences.

Collisions at Sea.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Several collisions between steamers occurred in a dense fog last night at Gravesend. The steamer Caroline, from Grangemouth for London, was in collision with the steamer Lambeth. The Caroline sank shortly afterward. The Lambeth subsequently collided with the steamer Malvina, and both vessels were badly damaged. The steamer Delamere, from London for Rio Janeiro, was run into by the steamer Schwan from Bremen, and so badly damaged that she soon filled and sank.

Candidates for Bradlaugh's Seat.

NORTHAMPTON, Feb. 9.—The Conservatives have nominated Mr. Germain to contest the seat in the House of Commons left vacant by the death of Bradlaugh. The Gladstone Liberals have nominated Mr. Manfield. The Socialists nominated Dr. Aveling, the labor agitator and Socialist leader, but Aveling's nomination was refused by the returning officer pending the depositing of the usual sum of £100 for election expenses. The nomination was then cancelled. The polling takes place Thursday.

Galway's Chief of Police Shoots Himself.

DUBLIN, Feb. 9.—A shocking suicide is reported from Galway, Ireland. The chief of police of that place killed himself by shooting with a revolver, owing to the fact that he was seriously charged with having been concerned in the recent rows between the soldiers and police in which a number of persons were injured. It is a coincidence of some interest that the former chief preceding the one who just shot himself ended his life by deliberately taking a dose of poison.

Watching the Workingmen.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Berlin police have been ordered not to permit workingmen to assemble in groups and to promptly arrest anyone found inciting a labor demonstration. The burgomaster was hissed in the street yesterday, owing to his opposition to establishing relief works for the poor.

Passed the Century Mark.

VIENNA, Feb. 9.—In the town of Trebinje, Herzegovina, there has just died at the age of 117 years Marie Petkovic, the mother of Luke Petkovic, who played so prominent a part in the insurrection against Turkey during the Austrian occupation in 1878.

The Alleged Murderer Arrested.

DUBLIN, Feb. 9.—William Buchanan has been arrested and held for trial on the charge of having murdered a man named Reilly and the latter's wife. The Reillys were caretakers on a farm at Ballyjamesduff, county Cavan. The motive of the crime is said to have originated in an agrarian dispute.

Unusual Ending of a Duel.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—Larroumet, director of fine arts, fought a duel to-day with Lordon of the editorial staff of The Echo de Paris. Larroumet had both his hands wounded.

Burglars at St. Thomas.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 9.—Sunday morning about 4:30 a lad named James Murray was captured in the act of robbing A. S. Smith's liquor store. He had with him twelve bottles and flasks of liquor, including rye and malt whiskies, Holland and Tom gin, and brandy. Last night the store of Asher & Leeson, in the Moore Block, was also burglarized. The burglars, which were evidently boys, made a big haul, carrying off four pieces of worsted, four watches, two large accordeons, three dozen ladies' rings, a lot of gentlemen's rings, and a large quantity of cuff buttons, ladies' brooches, ladies' and gentlemen's Albert and fob chains, and other articles. Albert Sare, aged 16, was arrested here this morning for a burglary at London.

CUPID SEALS AN ATONEMENT.

A Montana Stockman to Marry the Woman He Made a Widow.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 9.—Mrs. George Harkness has gone from the home of her sister, Mrs. Sarah Burton, of Bennett Station, this county, to her own home in Jersey City, where she will next week be married to James Henderson, who killed her first husband at Garfield, Warren county, in August, 1888.
Several weeks later his widow received an anonymous letter containing $100. The letter stated that the writer had been indirectly responsible for the death of her husband, and that she should not want as long as he lived. Every month she received from $50 to $100 and an anonymous letter. Six months ago the writer requested an interview. It was accorded. He proved to be a tall, handsome, full-bearded man of 38 or 40. He told how Harkness was in a gambling-room in the second floor of the building where he was killed, and had been knocked out of a window during a fight between the speaker and a stranger. He said his name was James Henderson, and that he had tried to atone for the accidental killing of Harkness. Cupid has sealed the atonement with his approval.

FROM NEWFOUNDLAND.

It Is Alleged That Premier Whiteway Is Guilty of Treachery.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 9.—Intense excitement prevails at what is claimed to be the treachery of Sir William Whiteway, Attorney-General and Premier, who was sent to England by the Islanders to interview the Imperial authorities concerning the seeking of redress on the French shore quest'n. Whiteway, it appears, on Saturday filed an intervention in behalf of the British Government in the suit of the lobster packing case of Bank against Sir Baldwin Walker, admiral of the British North American squadron. This is tantamount, it is claimed here, to going back on the Islanders. It is claimed he has received a promise of the governorship for his act of alleged treachery.

NOT A POINT AT ISSUE.

Sir John plays the pathetic in his manifesto to the electors when he makes his last appeal to the people, and he does it under the cover of loyalty too. We all remember the saying of Dr. Johnson; and, applying it to Sir John, "patriotism is the refuge of a—desperate man," who in default of nobler grounds of commendation to the electorate must make a namby-pamby appeal to a sentiment which is not at issue. Nobody with the slightest approach to honest motives has any doubt of the patriotism and loyalty of the Canadian people. The cry of disloyalty comes from the Red Parlor patriots, the "loyalist" leeches who are sucking the life-blood out of Canada, the combinesters, the monopolists, the boodlers, the Rykerts, the McGreevys. But this bogus talk of loyalty and patriotism is disgusting, coming from men who under cover of professions of loyalty are fattening on the labor of honest men and robbing the public chest at every opportunity. It may be that these rabid Tories have talked themselves into the belief that they are really loyal—so loyal that they are not to be judged by the ordinary standards. Some persons become so painfully religious, that it is no sin for them to do what is rank iniquity in less holy persons to do. And in the same manner, some of our good Tories become so patriotic, that it is no crime for them to rob the public chest. They are the truly loyal, and of such are the spoils of power. Sir John appeals to the loyalty and patriotism of the people to return him to power. If he should be defeated at the coming election, we should see these same patriotic boodlers signing an annexation manifesto, as their fellow Tories did in days gone by.

THE DISSOLUTION.

A Political Gambler Throwing His Dice.

Ministerial Reasons Insufficient—Popular Opinion Favoring Reciprocity—Stirring up Anti-American Feeling—The Conduct of Sir Charles Tupper—Goldwin Smith's Opinions.

Neither in the speech of the Minister of Justice (recently delivered in Toronto), who is the guardian of constitutional law, nor in those of his three colleagues, is there any attempt to justify the violence done to the Constitution by the dissolution of Parliament before the legal term and without constitutional cause. The Ministers seem to feel that they can safely trample on constitutional principle, secure in the indifference to public right which a long course of government by corruption and the frenzy of party combined have engendered in the Canadian people.

Is the doctrine to be accepted that a Parliament holds its life, not for the term for which it has been elected by the people, but during the pleasure of an unscrupulous politician? Is unprincipled ambition to be authorized as often as its ends can be served by snapping a national verdict to plunge the country into all the confusion, disturbance of trade, expense, and excitement of passions, scarcely less malignant than those of civil war, which attends upon a general election? Is the community to be convulsed as often as it suits a political gambler to throw his dice? Is the prerogative of dissolution to be used, as it has been on this occasion, for the purpose of preventing public opinion from ripening on a great question, and thus securing the election of a Parliament which shall belie the genuine sentiment of the people? Would any sane framer of a Constitution introduce such a provision into his work?

What the pundits of Ottawa may have to say upon this question I know not. I sat for many years at the feet of British statesmen who were perfectly informed on every point of constitutional right, and who, even if they had possessed an equivocal power, knew how, in their exercise of it, to keep their ambition under the control of their duty to the country. Whatever might be the precise opinion of these statesmen as to the constitutional causes for dissolution, sure I am that not one of them would have thought of asking the Sovereign to exercise the prerogative, without constitutional cause, as a mere move in the party game. I may add with equal confidence that whatever they did they would never have told their Sovereign or the nation an untruth.

INSUFFICIENT REASONS.

The reason assigned for the dissolution by the only one of the four Ministers who condescended to touch the subject was so transparently fictitious that he can scarcely be said to have paid public morality the homage even of an attempt at deception. He said that he and his colleagues were preparing to make overtures through a commission to the government at Washington for the extension of trade relations, and that they could not do this with advantage unless they had a freshly elected Parliament at their backs. Their statement as to the encouragement held out to them at Washington and the position of affairs there with regard to the trade question has been flatly contradicted by Mr. Blaine. But, setting that aside, have Ministers the face to tell us that the Executive Government cannot enter advantageously into negotiations with a foreign power about a commercial treaty or on any other subject without first dissolving Parliament? Have they not themselves been entering into negotiations with France and Spain and other countries for commercial treaties or commercial arrangements of some kind, without ever thinking of a dissolution? The mystery in which their intention of dissolving Parliament was wrapped, the false assurances floated to the country off its guard, the shortness of the time allowed for the election, and the choice of the season at which the farmers who are in favor of reciprocity cannot easily come to the polls, were all, we must suppose, not features of a scheme for snapping a verdict and keeping a Ministry in place, but conditions necessary to satisfy the mind of the government at Washington. Politicians less profound might have imagined that if the foreign power required a Parliamentary guarantee for the diplomatic authority of our Government at all, it would be the guarantee of a Parliament so elected as to clearly imply the mature opinion and deliberate will of the people.

RECIPROCITY BECOMING POPULAR.

Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues see plainly enough that the tide of popular opinion is rising in favour of reciprocity, and that a year hence it will certainly be strong enough to sweep away a Protectionist Government. They also see that the people are exasperated by the McKinley Act, while there has not yet been time for the farmer to feel its pressure. These are their real motives for dissolution. They try, without any fastidious regard for consistency, to pluck the bee out of the hand of the other party. If they win the election and are again installed in power, they will, no doubt, ostensibly redeem their reciprocity pledge by opening negotiations at Washington, but these negotiations will be predestined to failure. The very mention of the treaty of 1854, on which they throw that their proposals will be based, is enough, as they must well know, to make the Americans at once turn a deaf ear. The people of the United States have no mere taste for "a jug handled reciprocity" than the Canadian Premier. Sir John Macdonald is bound hand and foot to the interest of the protected manufacturers, whose subsidies to his election fund he has received, and will no doubt again receive. His Finance Minister not long ago nailed the colours of protection to the mast. Yet more recently a member of his Cabinet has declared against reciprocity, even in natural products. Some of his leading supporters, such as Mr. Heseon, Colonel O'Brien, Dr. Sproule, and Dr. Ferguson, are still holding the same language on the platform. His personal organ calls upon us to vote not only for "the old flag," and "the old leader," but for "the old policy." Under which thimble is the pea? Under that of "the old policy" or under that of reciprocity? Under that of "the old policy" without doubt.

THE "FIERCE" DEMOCRACY.

If Sir John really desired improved trade relations with the Americans he would not be inveighing against the "fierce democracy," nor would his partisans and organs be doing everything in their power to stir up anti-American feeling. It is to that feeling and to suspicion of American designs against us that the real appeal of Sir John Macdonald and his party is made. The Americans have no designs against us, but they can hardly be expected to play into the hands of a Government which is always allowing its hostility to them to appear, which is closely allied with the Tory aristocracy of Great Britain, and which avowedly makes it the object of its whole policy to build up, in what is supposed to be in the Imperial interest, a power antagonistic to the American Republic. If it is right for us, as we are always being told, to sacrifice commercial gain to political considerations, it is equally right for the Americans, who can much better afford the sacrifice. Let Canada be put into the hands of men who are under no extraneous influence, who have none but Canadian interests to serve, who look on the people of the United States not as our enemies, but as our partners on this continent, and sincerely desire to cultivate their good will—all will then go smoothly, without any peril to our independence. But with the reinstatement of an anti-American Government in power the hope of reciprocity for the present dies.

PARTY TACTICS ONLY.

I maintain then that for the dissolution which has been sprung upon the country there was not only no constitutional necessity, but no real ground of public policy. It is simply a stroke of party tactics inspired by selfish ambition, and evincing a total disregard for the integrity of national institutions and the highest interests of the country. That it is not more resented only proves that the political tone of our people has been fatally lowered by the treatment which they have undergone.

THE HIGH COMMISSIONER.

Another breach of the rules of public life which the people, if they had not been politically enslaved to a despotism of their own creation, would hardly endure, is the importation of the High Commissioner from England to take part in the election campaign. What would be said if the British Ambassador at Paris or Berlin came over to take part in an election campaign in England? The High Commissioner represents all Canadians alike, and it is his bounden duty to keep himself perfectly clear of party. He says that at this crisis of the national history the salvation of the country requires his presence. Let him resign his office, and then he will be perfectly at liberty to save his country. What his personal policy in regard to commercial questions between Canada and the United States may be we have not the means of certainly knowing, but we know that it must be that of an affiliated member of the British aristocracy, not that of a man whose interests and aspirations are Canadian. To hate the British aristocracy is irrational, but its political objects on this continent are not ours. The real motive for Sir Charles Tupper's patriotic disregard of official restraints is doubted by no human being. He comes to help in falsifying the national verdict on the subject of reciprocity, and to keep his confederates in power by debauching Nova Scotia as he debauched it before, with money or promises of money from the public purse. This to him and his friends and organs does not appear to be disloyal. His coming is a loud warning to good citizens that they are fighting, not only against monopoly, but against corruption. Yours, etc.,

GOLDWIN SMITH.

Toronto, Feb. 7th.

The Pace is Too Fast.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in editorial journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kin is, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A DEAD SHOT

right at the seat of difficulty, is accomplished by the sure and steady aim of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Don't fool around with a pop-gun, nor a "Flint-lock," when this reliable "Winchester" is within reach!

Dr. Sage's treatment of Catarrh in the Head is far superior to the ordinary, and when directions are reasonably well followed, results in a permanent cure. Don't longer be indifferent to the verified claims of this unfailing Remedy.

The worst forms of Catarrh disappear with the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties effect a perfect and permanent cure, no matter how bad the case, or of how long standing. It's a remedy that succeeds where everything else has failed. Thousands of such cases can be pointed out. That's the reason its makers back their faith in it with money. They offer $500 reward for a case of Catarrh which they cannot cure.

It's a medicine that allows them to take such a risk.

Doesn't common sense lead you to take such a medicine?

"An advertising fake" you say.

Funny, isn't it, how some people prefer sickness to health when the remedy is positive and the guarantee absolute.

Wise men don't put money back of "fakes."

And "faking" doesn't pay.

After dinner,

If you have discomfort and suffering, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, or Anti-Bilious Granules. They're made to assist Nature in her own way—quietly, but thoroughly. What the old-fashioned pill did forcibly, these do mildly and gently. They do more, too. Their effects are lasting; they regulate the system, as well as cleanse and renovate it. One little Pellet's a gentle laxative; three to four act as a cathartic. They're the smallest, cheapest, the easiest to take. Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system. I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

CANADIAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The people of the country may think that I have given too much importance to this new departure of the Canadian Press Association. Not so. A glance at what has already been accomplished for the betterment of mankind in Canada by this organization, can only be intensified in the future under the new and better conditions. It is to the interest of all readers of country newspapers that their editors should thus meet for social conference and counsel about the details of their semi-public business, and they will be making a mistake if they do not urge upon their newspaper men to avail themselves of this educating influence. The better qualified for their business the members of the press are, the more cosmopolitan-minded they become, the greater will be the progress they will incite the people of their respective constituencies to engage in.

MR A. F. PIRIE, DUNDAS BANNER.

The present executive of the Canadian Press Association is composed of gentlemen who are an honor to their guild, and with accompanying portraits I herewith append short sketches of their respective newspaper careers.

MR. ANDREW PATTULLO, president of the Canadian Press Association, was born on a farm in the township of Caledon, county of Peel, dangerously near forty years ago. His family removed to the County of Oxford when he was but a few years old, and consequently he may be said to have lived all his life among the people who are cognizant of his daily outgoings and incomings—an excellent thing for a country journalist. Mr. Pattullo had the unstimable advantage of good schooling, as he received his education at the public school and at the Dundas and St. Catharines grammar schools, under Edward Hunter, M. A., now Inspector of Insurance in Toronto. He was the winner of the Gilchrist Scholarship in 1873, which gave him the option of attending London or Edinburgh University for three years with £100 a year. He chose London, where he spent a year, but his health failed and he returned home. Afterwards he drifted into journalism like many another good man before and since—in The Woodstock Sentinel office in connection with his brother, now Registrar of Oxford. By and by the The Sentinel and The Review united forces, and in course of time Mr. Pattullo bought out his partner. For the past ten years he has had entire control of the Sentinel-Review, and, although he has done very considerable platform work, he has never sought any public position. His single eyed devotion to journalism told, however, and The Sentinel Review ranks amongst the foremost country newspapers in this province. He was one of the first to recognize the fact that the local newspaper has a distinct field in which it cannot find a rival or competitor in the large city newspapers. This is the field of local news, and to his belief, backed up as it is by an energetic working of the field, through local correspondence and devotion to home questions and interests, the notable success of Mr. Pattullo's paper is largely due. But it is not alone as a local paper that The Sentinel Review has prominence in the Canadian journalistic field. Some years ago, although it is allied to the same political party, The Sentinel Review led a most spirited and well conducted attack upon the Globe newspaper on the latter's free trade departure, and this stroke made it known outside as a paper which was backed by brains and independence. In the working up of the Birchall-Bennell murder case recently the editor of The Sentinel Review has by his good work, added to the laurels so well and worthily worn .. legitimate newspaper enterprise, and he has demonstrated that country journals may be relied upon to furnish the news of the topic of the hour as ably as their larger city confreres. The Sentinel Review is both daily and weekly, both of which enjoy large circulations—the weekly, I believe, having now some 5,000 old subscribers and the daily having doubled its clientele within a year.

MR. H. P. MOORE, first vice president of the Canadian Press Association, was born in the field of his newspaper work, Acton, on the 18th Oct., 1838. Although his paper, the Acton Free Press, has its home in a village, he is one of the best known and highly respected newspaper men in the province. His sterling integrity, his affable manner, and the fact that he turns out a paper second to no weekly in Canada for mechanical perfection could lead to no other result. Like the president of the association, he cultivates well the field of local news, and he knows his constituency like a book. He made use of all his advantages, and these were not few, as in addition to public school privileges, he received his education at the old Rockwood Academy and subsequently at Albert College, Belleville. In partnership with his brother, now Rev. T. Albert Moore, pastor simcoe street Methodist church, Hamilton, Mr. Moore began his successful newspaper career as successor to Mr. J. H. Hacking, now of Winnipeg, and founder of the Free Press, in 1878. A year later the partnership was dissolved, and Mr. Moore has had entire control ever since. The writer has had unusual opportunities for watching the course, the struggles and the growth of the Free Press, and he may be pardoned if he points there with with a moral and adorns a tale. It is of universal interest to country newspaperdom, else it were better left unsaid. From this study the lesson is taught, even more emphatically than it would be in Pica Boldface, that a man may, even in a village with limited opportunities, attain to a wide sphere of usefulness and may compel even enemies to bear witness that his methods are right and his work good. I don't know if Mr. Moore has a motto, but if he has not, his work emphasizes two that occur to me, namely, "Whatsoever thy hand find eth to do do it with thy might," and "Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well." These quotations seem to me to contain the kernel of the nut of the Free Press' success under Mr. Moore and there is nothing invidious in mentioning them, as there might be were his lot cast in a wider local sphere. But Mr. Moore has been a useful and honored citizen of this country as well as of Acton. For years he has occupied a position on the board of examiners of Albert College, Belleville, and it was with pleasure that I noticed that at the session of the General Conference of the Methodist church at Montreal last September he was appointed to the Board of Management of the same institution. Mr. Moore has been for the past ten years one of the most loyal and devoted members of the Canadian Press Association, and has done much to further its interests and make it popular with the craft. In 1881 he was elected a member of the Executive Committee and last year to the office of first vice-president.

MR. ALEX. F. PIRIE was born in his father's newspaper office in Guelph, Wellington County, in 1840, went to Toronto in 1874 and introduced the semi-humorous column of paragraphs in the Toronto Sun, which has since become a feature of some Canadian journals. Mr. Pirie was the first writer engaged on the Toronto Telegram, which he edited for twelve years, and its success was largely due to his facile pen. He spent many sessions in the press gallery of the Ontario Legislature, and did special correspondence in the press gallery of the House of Commons for the Montreal Star, which paper he afterwards edited for a year and a half. He was chairman of the press committee of the last Montreal carnival. Mr. Pirie has contributed to newspapers and magazines all the way from Grip to the North American Review, and is looked upon as one of the versatile writers of the Canadian press. He has been continually engaged in editorial writing on the daily press for nearly twenty years. In 1889 he bought the Dundas Banner. Mr. Pirie is not only a good writer, but is a good speaker, and he took an active platform part in the last Ontario campaign. Mr. Pirie is happily circumstanced. He has a good paper, a beautiful home, an accomplished wife and a five months' old baby, and is as happy as any newspaper man can reasonably expect to be.

A Standing Menace.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

To Keep Her Cake and Eat It.

A lady in the North Ward accidentally found a way to "keep her cake and eat it," too. She had cooked a fine fig cake for a church feed, intending to take it to the church herself. When the time came she found it too stormy to go out and decided to stay at home and eat her cake herself. When she went later to her pantry she made a discovery of a sad want, and the storm did not prevent her going down town that same night to get a supply of hawley bros'. tea.

Our Industries.

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee was held last night and the prospects of establishing a new industry discussed. Mr. Perkins, a member of a manufacturing firm in Michigan, has a patent on shingle mill machinery which is said to be of superior value and will enable him to outdo competition in shingle mill machinery. Mr. Perkins proposes, if the town will assist him, to build on the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co.'s property. He will put up buildings and put in machinery at an estimated cost of about $15,000, and employ at the start 30 or 40 hands. This is providing the town assists him with a bonus. The committee is not yet prepared to report on the matter.

The Edison siding difficulty is about settled, and it is expected work on the G. T. R. switch line will be soon begun.

The Late Frank Pettit.

Frank N. Pettit, a printer and publisher well known among the fraternity in town, died this morning at the residence of his sister-in-law, Miss Griffin, 202 Charlotte street. Deceased was 32 years of age, a first-class printer, and well liked for his genial and kindly disposition. He was for nine years publisher of the Jarvis Record and Delhi Reporter. He came to Peterborough two years ago, and, in connection with Mr. Mitchell, managed the Daily Times for some months. He then moved to Montreal, and worked in the Gazette and in Lovell's offices. He there fell a victim to la grippe, from a severe attack of which he never fully recovered. His health failing, he was advised by his physicians to try a change of air and scenes, and he started with his wife and family for Western Ontario. On his way he stopped at Peterborough, intending to recruit for a few weeks at the residence of his sister-in-law. His complaint, which was first of a pulmonary nature, developed into tuberculosis of the brain, this latter affliction proving fatal. About two weeks ago he fell seriously ill, and gradually grew worse until death ended his sufferings this morning. A wife and two children are left to mourn his loss. The funeral takes place to-morrow at four o'clock from 202 Charlotte street.

Christian Endeavor Union.

Monday of last week was Christian Endeavor day throughout that portion of the world where these societies are in existence. It is commemorated the tenth anniversary of the organization. In Peterborough a postponement was made for a week, and the exercises did not take place till last (Monday) evening. There was a large union gathering of the different local societies in the school-room of St. Paul's church. Dr. Scott, president, occupied the chair. Printed forms of the exercise were distributed to the members so that all might join heartily in it. After an opening hymn, "Calling for thee," a responsive reading took place, led by Mr. A. McCallum, followed by a recitation, "The Advancing Host," by Rev. Mr. Torrance. Then Mr. A. J. Johnston led a responsive Bible reading on the pledge. Brief prayers were offered by Messrs. McCallum and Colville, after which a hymn, "Our Pledge," was sung. Mr. Stanley Matthews recited "The Sweetest Gift," and four members from each Society represented gave Scripture verses bearing on the topics of the day. A responsive exercise followed, led by Mr. A. E. Scott, and another hymn was sung by the gathering. Different members then gave sentence prayers for societies throughout the world, especially remembering those in foreign lands. Mr. A. Hamilton gave an interesting history of the growth and purposes of the Christian Endeavour Society. A hymn, "Keep the Banner Flying," was sung. A collection for missionary purposes was then taken up. After a reading by Mr. A. E. Scott, the closing hymn, 'God be With You,' was sung, and the Mizpah benediction pronounced.

A Charming Cantata

To Be Charmingly Rendered by a Large and Select Company of Singers.

"Queen Esther," the queen of cantatas, will be presented at the opera house Thursday and Friday nights of this week. It was foreseen that one nights' performance would not be sufficient to meet the demands of the large crowds which will attend, so two nights were arranged, with a distinctly separate caste of the principal characters each night. This will make the second evening a performance quite as interesting as the first, and, besides, allow of a greater variety of local talent. Peterborough possesses some good vocalists and the best of them are in the cantata. The public may expect a rich musical treat in 'Queen Esther," as it will be presented this week. The cantata is one of the oldest and best of the kind in existence, and, like the Bible story from which it is drawn, never grows wearisome in repeating. The public have no doubt often witnessing its presentation before, but never in Peterborough on such a scale as it will be given Thursday and Friday nights. There will be a fine chorus of seventy voices, selected from the various choirs in the town, all those taking part being accurately and richly costumed. Indeed the dresses will be a most striking feature of the performances. The costumes were procured in Toronto and personally selected by Mrs. Ketchum. The solo parts have been distributed amongst the singers with special reference to their fitness and abilities, and their training carried on so diligently that their rendition of their parts cannot but please. Mr. Ketchum, the indefatigable conductor, feels confident that the cantata will please better than anything in the musical line that has been heard in Peterborough for years. He is making every effort to accomplish this purpose, and is receiving the unanimous and harmonious support of his company of singers. They are all most enthusiastic over the cantata, and at last night's rehearsal went through the whole piece from beginning to end with scarcely a slip. A final rehearsal takes place Wednesday night. The orchestra accompaniment will contribute materially to the success of the cantata. The Amateur Orchestra is lending its services and joining heartily in this great musical venture. Tickets are being sold rapidly; and full houses are expected. Seats at Greatrex's.

Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The Second Annual Convention—An Enthusiastic and Inspiring Gathering.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew in Canada opened its second annual convention in the school-house of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, Saturday evening. This society has for its object the spread of Christ's kingdom among young men. It is a young organization, founded only last June, and shows an amount of vigor lacking in many older societies. In response to the roll call a large number of delegates responded, coming from all parts of the Dominion. There were also present representatives from the parent brotherhood in the United States. In the unavoidable absence of the president the chair was occupied by Mr. S. Woodruff, of Woodstock, one of the vice-presidents. After the inaugural address by the chairman the report of the council was presented by Mr. Frank DuMoulin, the general secretary. The report showed the society to be in a very flourishing condition. There are now 28 chapters, with a membership of 350, with strong indications of a yet more rapid growth.

General business was then proceeded with, including the appointment of a committee to consider the advisability of increasing the number of the members of the Council from eight to fifteen and to nominate members of the Brotherhood for election. Rev. D. Adams, of Buffalo, and Mr. J. W. Wood, of New York, representing the parent society in the United States, received an enthusiastic welcome.

There were four special services for the Brotherhood on Sunday. At 8 a.m. the delegates assembled at the Church of the Holy Trinity, and received the Holy Communion in a body. About one hundred were present. At 11 a.m. they proceeded to the Church of the Redeemer, where a sermon upon St. Andrew as an example in bringing others to Christ, was preached by Rev. Canon DuMoulin. Fully one hundred and fifty of the Brotherhood were present, besides a large general congregation. At 3.30 there was a Litany Service at St. Stephen's, when addresses were delivered by Mr. Wood, general secretary of the American Brotherhood, and Rev. Prof. DuVernet, of Toronto. The singing of the large body of young men, led by an efficient surpliced choir was most inspiring. At 7 p.m. the last service for the day took place at St. James' Cathedral, when an immense congregation was present, the members of the Brotherhood, as at all the former services, occupying seats reserved for them at the front of the church. Once more the choir of men and boys were only the leaders of a great outburst of responding and singing. To describe the sermon by Dr. Adams, of Buffalo, a young man of thirty, and one of the best known Brotherhood workers, would be impossible. We can only say that the immense body of young men was completely carried away by the preacher's fiery eloquence. His subject was the living sympathy which should exist between man and man.

On Monday three meetings were held in St. James' school house. That in the morning at 10.30, following service in the Cathedral, was a conference on the subject, "What keeps men from church?"

In the afternoon there were two conferences on "Chapter work in town and country," and "A work to do and how to do it," led respectively by Mr. Wm. Arkman, jr., of Detroit, and Mr. H. W. Sill, of New York, editor of the Brotherhood organ, St. Andrew's Cross. There was also a business meeting.

Resolutions were carried adopting the St. Andrew's Cross, the organ of the American brotherhood, as the Canadian organ, and endorsing the action of the Canadian delegates at the Philadelphia convention and the concordat there formed between the American and Canadian brotherhoods. Messrs. DuMoulin and Heath were appointed Canadian representatives on the joint Committee.

The date and place for the next convention was left in the hands of the council, and Messrs. DuMoulin, Dymond and Code of Toronto, Garth of Montreal, and Bagwell of Hamilton were appointed the Editorial Committee to control the Canadian page in the St. Andrew's Cross. Rev. Dr. Adams presented the cordial fraternal greetings of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The following council of fifteen was elected:—

From Toronto—F. DuMoulin, St. James'; N. F. Davidson, St. Stephen's; W. Walkike, St. Margaret's; C. Evans Church of Redeemer; C. E. Rudge, Holy Trinity; C. D. Heath, St. George's; G. N. McKenzie, Christ Church.

From outside—F. Garth, Montreal; S. Woodroofe, Woodstock; E. B. Loucks, Peterborough; A. D. Bliss, Ottawa; A. E. Rennie (St. Thomas) and W. B. Holoombe (Christ's), Hamilton; A. K. Bunnell, Brantford; J. E. Perry, Guelph.

At a subsequent meeting of the new council Mr. G. A. McKenzie, of Toronto, was elected president; Mr. S. Woodroofe, of Woodstock, 1st vice-president, and Mr. N. F. Davidson, of Toronto (brother of the rector of Peterborough), 2nd vice-president.

In the evening the convention was brought to a close by a very successful open meeting, at which the Lord Bishop of Toronto presided, and, after the singing of a hymn and prayers, offered some words of congratulation and warm sympathy with the Brotherhood and its work.

Mr. Henry A. Sill, of New York, the editor of the Brotherhood organ, was the next speaker. His subject was to have been "Conflict of Interests in a Young Man's Life," but he spoke instead upon the nature of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, dwelling rather upon what it ought to be than what it was. He admitted that in connection with this work there had been failures and discouragements, oftentimes despair, if we had not a little faith in God left. Speaking of the characteristics of the Brotherhood, Mr. Sill described them as manliness, enthusiasm, sympathy, simplicity, fraternity and loyalty.

Rev. Dr. Adams, of Buffalo, was another American orator who succeeded in raising the enthusiasm of the audience. "The Social Crisis, and the Church's Opportunity" was his subject. The church, he said, had to realize the importance of the crisis and to do its duty. It would answer the purpose no longer to substitute charity for justice.

The Bishop of Niagara offered a few words of congratulation and encouragement—congratulation at what had been done in the past, encouragement and hope for the future.

Votes of thanks were also accorded to all who had taken part in the Sunday services and delivered addresses at the meetings, to the American visitors, and to the Bishop of Toronto for presiding.

After the general audience had dispersed, the Brotherhood men gathered together, and, kneeling down in a body, repeated the General Thanksgiving. If the heartiness of their response is any indication of their zeal and enthusiasm, the success of the society as a power in working for God is assured.

A Few Facts.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the results of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. CRYSTALVILLE.—As was announced in last week's issue, the entertainment, the "Life of Christ," was beautifully given Tuesday evening, Feb. 5th, in the Presbyterian church. The sacred edifice was crowded. "The Life of Christ," and "Ten Nights in a Bar-room," were strikingly illustrated, and gave due honor to the professor. The returns amounted to $32. Excellent order was kept during the evening, and it was very instructive as well as entertaining.

FRAZERVILLE.—Mr. Wm. Rodgers met with a painful accident on Tuesday, Feb. 3rd. He was drawing hay, and in some way the load upset. Mr. Rodgers jumped off and in so doing injured himself in several places. We tender him our deepest sympathy, and hope he will soon be able to resume his work.

We extract the following from the Victoria Warder, Lindsay. We think it will be of interest to your readers in this locality:—"A pleasing affair took place at 'The Poplars,' the residence of the bride's father, Woodville, on New Year's Day, being the marriage of Antionette, third daughter of Jas. F. Clarke, Esq., and J. Norman Shearer, principal of the Huntsville public school. The bride looked charming in a costume of pearl henrietta cloth, with trimmings of pearl satin and bouquet of moss roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Lillian Clarke, sister of the bride, who was attired in a costume of rose-coloured henrietta cloth, with pearl satin trimmings, and Miss Sadie M. Broadway, in a costume of cream henrietta cloth, with salmon plush trimmings. The bridegroom was supported by Dr. John Grant, of Woodville, and Rev. W. W. Walker, of Mono Road, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Marvin, of Woodville. Nearly one hundred guests were present. After the ceremony was performed the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, followed by music, games, etc., at which all had a pleasant time. The presents were numerous and costly, and included handsome oil paintings, steel engravings, silverware, and a valuable family Bible, besides various other useful and ornamental presents, amounting in value to fully $300, showing the high esteem in which the bride is held by her numerous friends. In addition to the above, the bridegroom presented the bride with the deed of a beautiful residence in Huntsville. The happy couple left, amid showers of rice and the good wishes of all, by the evening train for Huntsville. They have the best wishes of all in this locality for their future prosperity and happiness.

No Strikes Among the Wives and Mothers.

The dear wife and mother! Her devoted and loving nature knows no bounds. We do not hear of her organizing "strikes" for fewer hours of labor and extra remuneration! She does not show a sullen disposition and parade the streets in order to right imaginary wrongs! God help the dear children and the community if this ever occurs. How many men ever take seriously into consideration the amount of labor that the wife and mother must daily perform? It is truly amazing and wonderful when the whole is summed up and looked at with care. Is it any wonder that we see so many used up, broken down, pale and hollow cheeked women. Many of these dear devoted mothers are nervous, just getting irritable, they are sleepless, and many of them suffering from dyspepsia and impaired digestion. The lives of these mothers are precious to the children who cling daily to them in shadow and sunshine. Let these dear and devoted mothers know that Paine's Celery Compound will impart to their nervous system a strength, a vitality and a vigor that they sorely stand in need of. It will banish their dyspepsia, headaches, their mental and physical depression and their sleeplessness, and give them vivacity of spirits, refreshing sleep and good appetite, and fit them for the work and duties of life.

Disappearance of a Wealthy Southerner.

HAMILTON, Feb. 9.—A couple of months ago Col. Rogers, a wealthy southern gentleman, spent several days in this city, boarding at the Royal Hotel. He was a typical southerner and spent his money freely. He made many friends here. When he left here he went to Tonawanda, intending to go from there to the south, where his daughter lives. He remained at Tonawanda a few days, and then departed for the south. Since then he has not been heard of, and his friends fear that he has met with foul play. The colonel carried a large amount of money with him, and was in the habit of displaying his roll of bills.

The frantic animal continued to plunge and trampled the girl in a horrible manner. When rescued it was found that her nose was broken, her face badly cut, several ribs broken and numerous lesser injuries.

Prospects of Settlement Less Roseate

LONDON, Feb. 9.—In a letter to the chairman of the Irish leadership committee of Dublin Mr. Parnell says: "I regret exceedingly to inform you that the prospects of a settlement are less promising than they appeared at the beginning of last week. I shall continue, however, to do everything in my power to reunite Ireland while safeguarding national interests. I trust your committee and similar bodies will not relax exertions in my behalf."

Appomattox Downs a Good Field.

GLOUCESTER, Feb. 9.—The track was in very poor condition and a downpour of rain made the racing uncomfortable for spectators, bookmakers and horses. The fourth race was a cracker. It was a 5-furlong dash, with Carnegie the favorite at 9 to 10 on. Appomattox carried lowest weight and this told in the struggle at the finish, where Chieftain, Carnegie and the Canadian entry were bunched up. Appomattox, however, showed the front and beat Carnegie out.

First race, 6 furlongs—Amalgam 1, Marigold 2, McGregor 3. Time 1.33¾.

Second race, 6 furlong—Sir Rae 1, Cooee 2, Gildaway 3. Time 1.26¼.

Third race, 6½ furlongs—Lithbert 1, Glenola 2, Benedict 3. Time 1.41¾.

Fourth race, 5 furlongs—Appomattox, 105 (Myers), 8 to 5, 1, Carnegie 2, Chieftain 3. Time 1.15¾. Five others ran.

PATERSON, N.J., Feb. 9.—The patrons of the Clifton race track are jubilant over the announcement that the race track at Dundee is to be put in condition for racing and that bookmaking will be allowed there. The colonel carried a large amount of money with him, and was in the habit of displaying his roll of bills.

The Result of Neglect.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claims for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

Baby's Face was Raw

Distressing Itching Skin Disease Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his face. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got no better. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them faithfully, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, and now he is three years old and no trace of it remains. The child was so bad I had to tie him in a pillow case and pin his hands down so that he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to have any one call and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

Ottawa Gossip.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—The Liberal convention for the county of Ottawa will be held in Hull on Thursday when a candidate will be chosen who will redeem the county. Mr. J. M. McDougall has been selected as the Conservative candidate.

A few of the leading members of the Working men's Conservative Association proceeded to Larmeche and asked Sir John to deliver an address in Ottawa during the campaign under their auspices. The Premier agreed to accept the invitation and will probably speak next week.

The Conservative convention in Russell has been postponed until Tuesday.

There will probably not be any Conservative convention in Carleton.

Mayor Hull has decided to run as an independent candidate for Ottawa county.

The Liberals of Hull will hold a convention Feb. 12. Mr. E. B. Eddy will be asked to run as an Independent.

Mr. A. Wright has replied to the deputation that waited on him on Sunday that he cannot reconsider his resolution to resign. He left for New York this morning.

Echoes of the Fight.

Sir Charles Tupper is expected to arrive at Halifax to-day from Nova Scotia.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was offered the nomination for Quebec county but declined and Mayor Farmer was chosen.

The Minister of Finance opened the campaign in King's county, N.B., last night by a speech at Sussex. At Grand Falls Hon. John Costigan, Minister of the Interior, was banquieted.

A great deal of pressure is being brought to bear on Mr. Blake to induce him to allow his name to go to the West Durham electors, and it is just may happen, said one of his friends yesterday, that he will accept.

The Equal Righters in North Ontario are trying to persuade the Conservative party to throw Frank Madill, the late member, overboard and go in with them in nominating a candidate palatable to both. The gentleman in whom reposes the necessary qualifications, they claim, is Mr. W. H. Hoyle of Cannington. Mr. Hoyle is a Conservative, a life long temperance man and an Equal Righter. As a platform speaker he is unsurpassed in North Ontario. The Conservative convention will be held to-day.

The Equal Rights Association of Hamilton held a meeting at the coffee tavern last night. The question of the association taking part in the coming local and Dominion elections was discussed at length. It was resolved that the association would take part and assert itself. Whether the idea is for the association to have the candidates declare themselves on the platform of the Equal Righters or bring out independent candidates, the members would not say.

What The Chronicle Says

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The Chronicle declares that the American Government desires commercial and ultimately political union with Canada. On the authority of a personal friend of Mr. Blaine and who was a friend of General Garfield having been chiefly instrumental in securing the latter's nomination for the presidency, The Chronicle states that during the Garfield-Hancock contest in 1880 Mr. Blaine quietly made a tour of Quebec and the provinces, sounding representative men on the question of commercial and ultimately political union with America and that Mr. Blaine, satisfied with the results of the tour, entered Garfield's cabinet on the distinct understanding that this question would be pushed. It was only Garfield's death, says The Chronicle, that prevented the development of the policy which Mr. Blaine is now pursuing under President Harrison. Mr. Blaine having in each case the cordial approval of the President.

A PARIS BROKER'S GIGANTIC SWINDLING SCHEME.

He Leaves a Note Saying he Intended to Commit Suicide, but Nobody Believes Him—The Panacllite Crisis—The Czar and the Jews.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—A sensation has been caused in financial circles here by the disappearance of a well-known banker who is known to have left debts to the amount of 20,000,000 francs and who may have committed suicide. The banker is Victor Mace. He had a private bank in the Rue Cadet. Mace opened the bank five years ago and began business by offering to pay high interest for deposits, this interest in many cases averaging 10 per cent. monthly or 120 per cent. a year. He sent out piles of circulars all over the country and fitted up his offices in elegant style. Mace was a gentleman of the most pleasant address. His plausible offers, punctuality in fulfilling business engagements and the promptness with which he paid the high interest promised gradually drew the bank a numerous clientel. It is estimated he had the names of 20,000 depositors on his books. For some time, however, unfavorable rumors in regard to Mace have been circulated. Adverse criticisms of leading bankers were repeated to Mace, but he would shrug his shoulders, smile pityingly and intimate that the derogatory remarks were caused by business jealousy. This seemed to be the general opinion of his clients. Mace explained his ability to pay the high rate of interest by hinting that he had secret means of obtaining reliable "tips" as to what was going on in the financial world, especially as to future events. This, he claimed, enabled him to take advantage of many financial transactions and make large profits where his competitors not blessed with "tips" failed to act in time. On Friday numbers of Mace's clients, alarmed by fresh rumors, called at his bank and were put off by the clerks with stereotyped excuses. Saturday, however, the depositors besieged the bank in large numbers and were reinforced by crowds of other people. A strong force of police by vigorous measures saved the bank from being wrecked by the maddened depositors. To-day the police produced a letter from Mace, whose whereabouts seem to be unknown to even his most intimate friends. In this letter Mace announces he intends to commit suicide and says he has left his creditors all the money that remains to him, 1,000,000 francs, deposited in the Credit Lyonnais. A hasty examination of Mace's accounts shows he owes at least 20,000,000 francs to his dupes. Few people believe that Mace had any intention of committing suicide.

THE UNFORTUNATE JEWS.

Possible Result of the Return of the Guild Hall Memorial.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph telegraphs from St. Petersburg important facts in connection with the possible result of the return by the Czar without comment of the Guild Hall Memorial in favor of the suffering Hebrews of Russia. The correspondent says: British sympathy has aggravated the Jews' hard lot, which was already so wretched that it seemed impossible for it to be worse. The provincial governors have redoubled the severity of the laws. Where the statutes were inapplicable the governors have issued circulars and ukases to replace them. The Jews bitterly regret the British well-meaning but injudicious zeal which has exasperated instead of soothed the Russian Bear. The daily severities practised against [illegible] of unoffending men, women and children are incredible and wanton. Russia's reply to the Lord Mayor's respectful petition consists of secret circulars, ordering her officials to rigorously administer the anti-semitic laws and to supply the legal deficiency by their own decisions, harmonious with the Government's intolerant spirit. The Poles after the rebellion of 1863 were less cruelly and less inhumanely treated than the Jews after the London indignant meeting. Gen. Gourko, Governor of Warsaw, has issued a circular regulating how Jewish recruits are to be bought for medical inspection. The Jews, through the wretched lives they are forced to lead, are physically degenerate and become a most striking embodiment life continuing in spite of gradual decay of the vital functions. The majority of the Jewish recruits are found to be unfit for service. In the event of Christians being found unfit to perform the duties of a soldier they are sent home and are finally released from military service, but the Jewish recruits are worried to death. They are sent home and are subject during three years to be recalled at any moment on the suspicion of malingering. The recruit returns to his home hundreds of miles away, resumes his occupation and a month later is suddenly ordered to reappear for medical examination. This process is repeated at intervals of a few months during three years.

THE IRISH SITUATION.

Parnell Has No Intention of Retiring From the Leadership.

DUBLIN, Feb. 10.—Mr. Redmond, speaking at a league meeting to-day, said they had been told that only hillmen were on their side. He would rather have honest hillmen on their side than many of the Irishmen now in Parliament. Some of Parnell's opponents wanted to spit upon the memory of the men of 1867. Was the agitation for independence a movement implying that every one would be forgotten excepting Sir William Vernon Harcourt and the English Liberals. If so, it would be one from which men of spirit like Emmett and Fitzgerald would have shrunk.

Allusions made by other speakers to the effect that Parnell would maintain his position were loudly applauded. Mr. Redmond announced that £548 had been received from America since the last meeting. He declared it would be criminal to start a rival league if they failed to support evicted tenants.

Redmond and other league men started for Boulogne-sur-Mer this evening.

In spite of the hitch in the negotiations between the opposing sections of the Irish party the meeting called by Mr. McCarthy for Thursday next will be held.

Justin Huntley McCarthy, M.P., says he will not seek a re-election as he is absorbed in literary pursuits.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The News declares that since the deposition of Parnell neither Gladstone nor any leading Liberal has had any communication directly or indirectly with Parnell.

WERE RESCUED ALIVE.

THE THREE IMPRISONED MINERS AT NANTICOKE TAKEN OUT.

Thrilling Recitals of How the Men Faced Death Five Days—They Suffered Unimaginable Tortures from Hunger and Loss of Sleep, but Worse Than These Was Their Thirst.

NANTICOKE, Pa., Feb. 11.—The little villages of Grand Tunnel and West Nanticoke, which adjoin one another on the opposite side of the river from this place, and which were plunged into grief last Wednesday by the flooding of No. 3 slope of the Susquehanna Coal Company, imprisoning John Rineer, William Cragel and Michael Schilling, and who were believed to have perished in the overrushing tide of water which swept through the mine, are this evening filled with joy, for the men who were mourned in three homes as dead have been returned to them alive.

They were rescued shortly before 3 o'clock this morning but their escape from death was by a margin so narrow that it can be regarded a little less than miraculous.

John Rineer, a very intelligent miner, speaking for himself and companions after being rescued, gave the following story of how the flood hemmed them in the mine: They were working off the main gangway, probably 100 yards from where Foreman Lewis and Miners Davis and Evans were, when the former set off the blast which opened up the underground reservoir. In the abandoned working they heard these men call to to them to flee for their lives as they ran past the door which opened into Rineer's gangway. They dropped their tools and started to fly from the mine.

They prepared to meet the doom with which the furious water threatened them. One miner's lamp flickered and cast its dim light about them, and, looking down the heading, they could see the flood creeping towards them. On and on the water came slowly, it seemed, until it was almost within their reach. It came to within eight feet of them. Then it stopped, the water settled, the roar of the torrent ceased, the surging billow receded and the water stood about 10 feet below them.

The water was then coming in where they were, but when they got to the doorway the torrent was so strong they did not dare venture into the main gangway and so they turned about and then began a race for life up the gangway, which had a four degree pitch. Past the place where hung their coats and dinner-pails they rushed, with the water gaining upon them at every step. Ahead of them ninety feet was a cross-heading leading from Rineer's gangway to old workings. This heading was sixty feet long and pitched forty-five degrees, making it a hard place to enter and climb up. They climbed and climbed until the top was reached, the water following after them in vengeful haste. Then they stopped. They were at the old workings, which from this point pitched down in either direction and it was useless to proceed further.

Though hedged in by water on one side and no way of escape on the other, the men still cherished the hope that help would reach them from the outside, knowing that their fellow-workmen would leave nothing undone to rescue them. With this faith in their fellow-men they knelt down in prayer and lifted up their voices to God to keep them from further danger.

There was a little lagging built in platform shape close to the top of the heading and upon that the men crawled. It was their highest possible reach from the water. And there they awaited the signs which would tell them that the work of rescue was under way.

Soon the great mine pumps, 600 feet away, were heard throbbing and drawing upon the water. The moment was a thrilling one to them, for it gave them the encouragement that so long as there was life there was hope.

The solitary lamp which guided them in their flight from the flood now gave out and they were plunged into an inky darkness. They did not dare to move from the lagging which gave them rest for a single misstep upon the rough mass of broken rock that obstructed the heading would have plunged them down into the abyss below, which was filled 50 ft with water.

Sleep deserted them. In the first few hours of their imprisonment they began to feel the pangs of hunger, but the greater torture of thirst came over them. This they could only appease by wetting their faces against the rib of the heading, and taking the trickling water as it dropped from the roof and ran down the side of their prison walls.

Thus the men suffered from Wednesday until this morning, the time being spent in prayer and in keeping up each other's spirits by cheerful conversation, despite the grim reality of the fact that they were facing death.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Ex-Mayor J. E. Smith is seriously ill at No. 42 Wellesley st. Mr. Smith had been visiting friends in Montreal, getting home Monday night. Yesterday morning, however, he was seized with a severe shivering fit and his condition became so alarming that Dr. Strange was called in. At a late hour last night Mr. Smith was resting easier and his general condition slightly improved.

The champion match for the Thorburn curling stones between Portage City, Wis., and Yonkers, N.Y., takes place in Toronto next Friday. These rinks will arrive to-day or to-morrow and are anxious to arrange friendly matches. President Pettie of the Grand National will umpire Friday's match.

The death occurred Monday of Mrs. Rebecca McGee of Oakham House, Gould and Church-streets. She had been a resident of Toronto for nearly half a century and was the widow of the late John McGee, proprietor of the old Phœnix foundry, who died in 1867. His founder was in Yonge-street in the premises now occupied by Robertson Bros. Mrs. McGee, who was a native of Kingston, was 67 years of age. She was a Roman Catholic and very charitable. She leaves four sons and one daughter.

The Local Executive Committee of the National Educational Association met in the Public Library building yesterday afternoon. There were present: James L. Hughes in the chair, J. J. Tilley, C. Blackett Robinson, R. W. Doan, P. G. Close, H. A. E. Kent, Principal Kirkland and Secretary J. H. Hill. A committee consisting of Messrs. McCabe, Doan, Hughes and Hill was appointed to provide a staff of assistants for the secretary. The hall committee was given authority to secure the necessary number of halls for conventions near the Pavilion. D. Boyle was appointed to take charge of the unpacking and re-shipping of the school supplies and apparatus which will be exhibited. Secretary Hill announced that the arrangements for the big convention are progressing rapidly and that the expenses would amount to only $4000, as compared with $7,000 expended in St. Paul, where the convention was held last year. The City Council is informed that the St. Paul city fathers granted $2500 towards defraying the expenses of the convention, and the citizens are reminded that the liberal residents of St. Paul subscribed $[illegible].

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Man and Horses Precipitated Over a Bridge at Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—A fatal accident occurred in the outskirts of this town about noon to-day. Two brothers, Adam and Jacob Zimmer, farmers, were driving across an overhead bridge of the Galt branch of the Grand Trunk Railway, when the horse fell on the railing of the bridge, which gave way, allowing the animal and the cutter with its occupants to fall to the track below, a distance of about 25 feet. Jacob Zimmer and the horse were almost instantly killed, while Adam Zimmer sustained serious injuries.

Interesting Legal Cases.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Before the master in chambers application was made in the libel action of Frank H. Sangster, barrister, of Stouffville, against The Empire for security for costs on the ground that the action is a frivolous one and the plaintiff not in a good financial position. The Empire some time ago published a report of certain proceedings before Magistrate Wingfield, in which Sangster was accused of obtaining certain notes by false pretences. The evidence was taken in the case and the magistrate dismissed the case against Sangster, holding he was not guilty of fraud. Sangster alleges that the report of the case published was incorrect and a libel on him, and sues for $10,000 damages. The learned master reserved judgment.

Mr. Justice Falconbridge yesterday made an order allowing Adam Rossworm, of the township of Carrick, in the county of Bruce, to convey land under R. S. O. chap. 133 without his wife joining to bar dower. Rosseworm was married in 1876 to Emma Correll, and for some time resided on a farm in Carrick township and then removed to Walkerton, where he kept a hotel near the station. On Christmas day, 1888, Mrs. Rosseworm left her husband and family of seven children and went to Chicago with one Gilbert Porteous, a married man, where she has since resided. Mr. Rosseworm has given notice that he will at the next session of Parliament apply for a divorce from his wife.

A motion was made before Mr. Justice Rose in chambers yesterday by Mr. Aylesworth, Q.C., for an order allowing the plaintiff in the action of Howard v. City of St. Thomas to prosecute an appeal in forma pauperis. The action is a peculiar one and the motion one very seldom heard of in Ontario courts. One Oliver of St. Thomas was moving a house, by permission of the city, along one of the streets in St. Thomas when the corner of the house caught on a telephone wire and broke it. The wire struck a boy named Howard, who happened to be in the street, and severely injured him. The boy's father brought an action against Oliver, the city and the telephone company and at the trial recovered $500 damages. The defendants appealed to the Divisional Court, and the verdict was set aside against the defendants, the city and the telephone company. Neither the amount of the verdict nor the costs could be recovered from Oliver and the plaintiff served notice of appeal to the Court of Appeal. The time for perfecting security expired without the plaintiff being able to procure the required security. The motion is now made to allow the plaintiff to prosecute his appeal without giving security or paying any of the required fees on the ground that he is too poor otherwise to appeal. Mr. W. M. Douglas appeared for the city of St Thomas and Mr. McDougall, Q.C., for the telephone company. The learned judge, in giving judgment, said he was very doubtful if the statute under which the motion was made was in force in Ontario, and even if it were, this was not a case within it, it being clearly shown from the plaintiff's examination that he had more property than a person to come within the statute should have. The motion was dismissed with costs.

In the action of Beck v. The Town of Penetanguishene a motion was made to the Chancellor for an injunction to restrain the defendant corporation from expending some $4000 in the purchase of a fire engine. Some time ago a $30,000 bylaw was passed authorizing the council to expend that amount in procuring a waterworks system for the town. Of this amount the council wished to expend $4000 for a fire engine. The Chancellor refused the application for an injunction.

Hawat, Orangeville, and Master Herbert Palmer, Toronto.

Ask Your Friends

Who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla what they think of it, and the reply will be positive in its favor. One has been cured of indigestion and dyspepsia, another finds it indispensible for sick headache, others report remarkable cures of scrofula, salt rheum, etc. Truly, the best advertising which Hood's Sarsaparilla receives is the hearty endorsement of its army of friends.

THE EAST RIDING CANDIDATE.

At one of the largest and most enthusiastic mass meetings the Reform party ever held in East Peterborough, Mr. Thomas Rork, ex-reeve of Asphodel, received the unanimous, hearty and enthusiastic nomination as candidate for the East Riding in the Dominion election, and as heartily and enthusiastically accepted it, as he is certain to head the poll on March 5th. He is a strong candidate and will make a vigorous fight. He is a practical farmer and thus peculiarly fitted to be the representative of an essentially rural riding. A good test of the genuineness of his character is shown by the high respect he enjoys in his own township. He had a seat in the council for eleven years, three of which he held the office of reeve, being returned on every occasion at the head of the poll, and voluntarily resigning, when he retired from municipal politics. He is a successful practical farmer, a gentleman of broad liberal views, and a practical worker, who will make an admirable representative for a farming constituency. In the next Dominion Parliament no riding will have a more energetic, faithful and devoted representative than Thomas Rork. The platform he unequivocally adopts, is unrestricted reciprocity. As a practical farmer, he can see the benefits it would be to his class, whose interests have been long and systematically sacrificed. The government of the day has consulted almost every interest but that of the farmer and workingman, and in Mr. Rork both classes will have a staunch, unswerving and hard-working friend. We very much mistake the good sense of the intelligent electors of the East Riding of Peterborough if they do not return Mr. Rork by a majority so decisive that the voice of the honest yeomanry will secure that respect which has been withheld for so many years. Farmers comprise seven-tenths of the wealth and influence of the country, and it is their own blame if they fail to accept the present opportunity of securing attention to their just rights and strong claims upon the Government for the promotion and protection of their interests.

A SPECIMEN BRICK OF "MARVELLOUS DEVELOPMENT."

Sir John's manifesto speaks of the Canadian Pacific Railway "opening up and developing the country at a marvellous rate." Let us look a moment at the "marvellous rate of development." "Development" of the North-west is only another name for settlement—the terms are convertible. Sir John has repeatedly assured the country that the Canandian Pacific Railway would never cost the country a cent—it would all be paid for from the receipts from Dominion lands. What is the fact? Sir John's "marvellous development" has been so great that last year the Dominion lands, instead of yielding a revenue, fell short of paying the expenses of administration by $87,265. The receipts for Dominion land sales in the North-west are certainly a fair index of the settlement and development of the country. The receipts from this source were only $220 151—less than the last year of the Reform government, 1878, when, to quote Sir John, "a profound depression hung like a pall over the country." After nearly thirteen years of the developing N. P.; after the expenditure of millions upon millions upon the Canadian Pacific; after maintaintaing abroad a costly immigration staff; after paying a large corps of greedy officials—we find that the rate of settlement is less than it was under Reform rule, when settlers did not have to fight land sharks and did not have to yield half the products of their toil in taxes. Again, so slow is the "marvellous development" of the North-west that the Government has been compelled to offer a bonus to settle in one of the most fertile spots in the world, which has been rendered repulsive by high taxation. Such are the facts of the "marvellous development" of which Sir John Macdonald boasts, and one stands aghast at the assurance of a Minister of the Crown who will make such a palpable and absurd suggestio falsi as that contained in his statement of the "opening up and development of the country at a marvellous rate." The premier's whole address is of a similar tissue—exaggerated statement, bombastic boast, buncombe and clap-trap. This is but a single sample of a manifesto, which is either the product of dotage or a cool and deliberate attempt to fool the electorate of the nation in a manner of which a British statesman would rather face political extinction than be guilty of.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD in his misleading clap-trap appeal ad misericordiam to the electors, speaks of his policy of "foster" the resources. "Fostering" the resources in the past is another name for bleeding the public pocket by taxation for the McGreevy contract brokers and that class of patriots and loyalists.

East Peterborough Conservatives.

Mr. John Burnham Will Oppose Mr. Rork

A small number of East Peterborough Conservatives, about a hundred in all, met in Norwood Tuesday to nominate a candidate. The greater number of delegates were from Lakefield, Ashburnham and Norwood. The usual loyalty resolutions were passed, and after the pros and cons of the different candidates mentioned were discussed, Mr. John Burnham was tendered the nomination, which he accepted.

To Sportsmen and Others.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—As your columns are very widely read throughout the Province, will you kindly allow me space to say to sportsmen and others interested in the protection and preservation of game and fish in Ontario that I would be glad, as secretary of the Commission appointed by the Ontario Government to enquire into these matters, to furnish any who may desire them with printed copies of the questions prepared by the Commissioners for distribution.

It is impossible, of course, without some such plan as I now make through your columns, to reach all those who may desire to answer the questions and thus help the Commissioners in their enquiry.

I venture to hope that, with your usual good nature, you will give this letter space, as I am certain that it will attract attention and procure many valuable correspondents who would not otherwise be heard from.

I am, dear sir, yours truly,

A. D. STEWART,
Sec'y Game and Fish Commission.

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rossway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

No Shadow of Doubt.

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2w6d

A True Bill.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

MR. L. G. JACKSON was born next door to a printing press. At his birth his father's residence was in the same building as the printing office, so that Mr Jackson not unjustly claims that he has lived all his life in a printing office. He received his educational attainments at the local institutions of his native town. His father, the present Mayor of Newmarket, ran The Era for 30 years, during which time he was thirteen years a member of the executive committee of the Canadian Press Association, for three years discharged the duties of secretary-treasurer without compensation, and was one year favored with the presidency. The Era has made some stir in the world, as might be expected from the vigorous and capable men who have controlled its destinies for the past forty years. Some years ago, although it had always been an outspoken Reform journal, it attained a party dignity never bestowed upon papers of no account. Believing the Reform convention to have been packed in favor of a nominee it refused to submit and met with the fate which has made and established its position as an untrammelled and independent Reform journal ever since. During the past seven years, Mr. Jackson has had sole control of The Era which is just entering its 40th year of useful ness. And these years have not been they of the lean kine, for the circulation of the paper has increased during that period by 750 copies weekly, and not a paper is sent out of the riding in which it is published without first being paid in advance. It has always been an all home print paper, and as a local journal has no superiors. Mr. Jackson is now putting in his third year on the Canadian Press Association executive, and if he has a fault it is that he is too modest for the excellent work he does both in his own office and in this important position.

MR W. R. CLIMIE is also a member of the executive committee. He is probably the best known member of the association, having been first elected second vice president in 1872, then a member of the executive committee in 1874, and subsequently secretary and treasurer in 1876, which position he held with honor to himself and profit to the association for the long period of fourteen years. He resigned the secretary-treasurership at the annual meeting of 1890, and was deservedly accorded a sincere vote of thanks for his continuous service in that position, during which period he did a very large amount of the executive work and generally served the association with zeal and devotion. He is editor and proprietor of this Bowmanville Sun, a paper known to every member of the association. Mr. Climie has been one of the most familiar figures at the regular and special meetings of the association, and his official position has brought him into direct contact with all the members, who all highly respect him.

MR T H PRESTON, proprietor of the Brantford Expositor, is another member of the executive committee of the Canadian Press Association. He served his apprenticeship some twenty or more years ago with the Woodstock Sentinel and the Stratford Beacon. He was a printer in Toronto at the time of the great general strike in 1872, and while the strike was still on left for the United States, where he remained until 1874. Part of this time was spent on the Springfield (Mass) Republican, which was then owned by Samuel Bowles. In September, 1874, he joined the reportorial staff of the Ottawa (Ont.) Free Press, remaining with that paper till 1881. During these years his face was a familiar one in the press gallery of the House of Commons, and he had an extensive connection with Canadian and U. S. newspapers. In 1881 he bought the Walkerton Telescope, but sold it almost immediately thereafter in order to accept the night editorship of the Toronto Globe. He was acting as Ottawa correspondent for the same paper at Ottawa, when, in August, 1882, he became interested with others in the purchase of the Winnipeg Sun. For nearly eight years he was connected with Manitoba journalism as managing director of the above paper, and after he and his associates had sold out at a large profit he bought the Brantford Expositor, which he has recently greatly improved. The Expositor, indeed, is now one of the most enterprising and successful of the Provincial dailies.

MR. J. B. MCLEAN, secretary of the association, left school in his 20th year, and immediately afterwards began newspaper work in the best of training schools, The World. Here were instilled into him the principles that are required to make a successful newspaper man. From there he went to The Mail, and three years afterwards became its assistant commercial man. When The Empire started he was appointed its commercial editor. It is, however, as proprietor of several trade journals that he holds membership in the association. In 1887 he started The Canadian Grocer, the first weekly special trade paper in Canada. This was followed in 1890 by Hardware, another weekly and last month by The Dry Goods Review. In the latter he has associated with him Mr. Chas. Morrison, formerly city editor of The Mail. He owns Books and Notions, the organ of the book and stationery trade in Canada, and is also interested in two out-of-town newspapers. All his ventures have been successful; is trade journal business especially has grown in extent and influence. The editorial and business staff has grown from two persons in 1888 to seventeen at the present time, exclusive of special writers. Mr. McLean is supposed to work very hard to to keep his various enterprises booming but he does not; his success is more owing to his thorough knowledge of every department of a paper and his ability to direct others to do the work. He learned to set type and make up forms when at school; he spent his spare time on The Mail with the pressmen and electrotypers, and during his nine years experience has filled every editorial and reportorial position on a paper. As a commercial editor Mr. McLean has perhaps no superior on the Canadian press. Though but three years in existence, he has made The Empire a recognized authority on commercial matters. He knows almost every prominent merchant and manufacturer in the province, and is thus able to keep posted on doings in the business world. He takes a deep interest in military matters, being a captain in the Royal Grenadiers, and was recently appointed adjutant. Though he is yet only in his 29th year, he has had several very tempting offers from American newspaper publishers, but none so far have been sufficient to induce him to leave Canada. He was treasurer of the Toronto Press Club for some years, and was elected secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Press Association at the last annual meeting.

An Annoying Error.

"Look here, young man," said the lately resigned conductor to the railroad editor, "I've always treated you white, haven't I?"

"You have."

"And when I resigned the other day didn't I tell you I'd worked for the company twenty years?"

"I believe so."

"And yet this is the kind of send-off you give me."

And he laid the last issue of the paper on the table and pointed to the notice of his retirement, which stated that he "had worked the company for twenty years."

A GEM FOR EVERY MONTH.

JANUARY—
By her who in this month is born
No gem save Garnets should be worn:
They will insure her constancy,
True friendship, and fidelity.

FEBRUARY—
The February-born will find
Sincerity and peace of mind,
Freedom from passion and care,
If they the Amethyst will wear.

MARCH—
Who on this world of ours their eyes
In March first open, shall be wise,
In days of peril firm and brave,
And wear a Bloodstone to their grave.

APRIL—
She who from April dates her years
Diamonds should wear, lest bitter tears
For vain repentance flow: this stone
Emblem of innocence, is known.

MAY—
Who first beholds the light of day
In Spring's sweet flowery month of May
And wears an Emerald all her life,
Shall be a loved and happy wife.

JUNE—
Who comes with Summer to this earth,
And owes to June her day of birth,
With ring of Agate on her hand,
Can health wealth and long life command.

JULY—
The glowing Ruby should adorn
Those who in warm July are born:
They will they be exempt and free.
From love's doubts and anxiety.

AUGUST—
Wear a Sardonyx, or for thee
No conjugal felicity:
The August-born without this stone,
'Tis said must live unloved and lone.

SEPTEMBER—
A maiden born when Autumn leaves
Are rustling in September's breeze
A Sapphire on her brow should bind—
'Twill cure diseases of the mind.

OCTOBER—
October's child is born for woe.
And life's vicissitudes must know,
But lay an Opal on her breast,
And hope will lull those woes to rest.

NOVEMBER—
Who first comes to this world below
With drear November's fog and snow
Should prize the Topaz's amber hue—
Emblem of friends and lovers true.

DECEMBER—
If cold December gave you birth—
The month of snow and ice and mirth—
Place on your hand a Turquoise blue.
Success will bless whate'er you do

To Keep Her Cake and Eat It.

A lady in the North Ward accidentally found a way to "keep her cake and eat it," too. She had cooked a fine fig cake for a church feed, intending to take it to the church herself. When the time came she found it too stormy to go out and decided to stay at home and eat her cake herself. When she went later to her pantry she made a discovery of a sad want, and the storm did not prevent her going down town that same night to get a supply of hawley bros'. tea.

Trade Reception.

The printers and book-binders of the town are indebted to the Y.M.C.A. for the reception tendered them Tuesday night. It was the first of a series of trade "at homes" which the directors propose to give this spring. It is not probable any more will be held till after the elections. There was a fair attendance of members of the craft, and a pleasant evening was spent. Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, the ladies present being Mrs. Griffin, Mrs Stratton, Mrs. Fairbairn, Mrs. Wm. Robinson and Mrs. W. J. Green. Family prayer concluded the evening, but before the company dispersed a vote of thanks was passed to the Association for their kindness in entertaining the printers, who were so well used that they will doubtless frequently visit the cheerful rooms of the Y.M.C.A. in the future.

THE CENTRAL CANADA.

In this issue is printed the report of the seventh annual meeting of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company. The report is of the most satisfactory character, showing solid progress in every department. We have a more economical issue of debentures, increased facility in making choice investments and a fair repayment of loans and interest. There is a very gratifying significance in the addition to the assets of the the company of $361,885 24, which makes an aggregate of investments of over three millions of dollars, a record of which a company in its seventh year of operation has good reason to feel proud. This is one among the many circumstances which indicate cautious and conservative management and a careful regard to the interest of shareholders, which must give investors increasing confidence in the eligibility of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company as a medium for investments, combining the best of security with good profits. The annual statement is so plain that comment upon its contents is superfluous.

Farewell to Mr. Howson.

Mr. Geo. H. Howson is Leaving for Montana.

A complimentary farewell gathering of the Royal Templars of Temperance was held in the Templars' Hall last night to bid adieu to one of the members, Mr. Geo. H. Howson, who is about to leave for Montana. Mr. Howson has for some time past been actively associated with temperance work in Peterborough, and his loss will be keenly felt in the society to which he belonged. There was a good attendance at Thursday nights' gathering. Dr. Stephenson occupied the chair. An informal programme of musical and literary selections was rendered, after which a farewell presentation was made to Mr. Howson. Mr. F. S. Hill read this address:—

MR. GEO H. HOWSON,—

DEAR BROTHER,—In meeting together this evening we are conscious of mingled feelings. Glancing back over many hours spent with you in helpful intercourse there is not one unpleasant memory to cast its shadow upon the finished picture. We turn from it with regret to face the fact that hereafter in our weekly gatherings we shall miss the familiar face, as well as the dispassionate judgment and consistent courtesy, which have characterized your association with our Council.

But here the comforting assurance presents itself, that the power of influence never dies, and so while the bodily presence may be removed, there must linger with us the subtle, but more enduring, intercourse of spirit.

This earthly home is not so very large after all, and while you merely move into another wing and catch glorious glimpses from its western windows, taking up fresh work amid new surroundings, our Immanuel shall abide with each of us, and His conscious encircling presence be a never-failing "Refuge and strength."

We unite in earnest prayer that in temporal affairs you may be prospered, and above all, that from the new home there shall go forth such a power of Christian devotion and practical sympathy, as shall restore in many straying ones a saving faith in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

We ask your acceptance of this badge as a memento of your membership, and a copy of that Word, the unfailing resources of which have been so often proved in your own experience.

As we clasp your hand in parting, we will not say good-bye, but just good night, and "God be with you till we meet again."

From Peterborough Council No. 97, R. T. of T.

Feb. 10th, 1891.

The accompanying badge and Bible were presented by Mrs. Stephenson.

Mr. Howson made a suitable reply.

Refreshments were then served and a pleasant evening concluded with final words of farewell to Mr. Howson, who bears away with him the best wishes of many friends.

THE NEW RAILWAY.—The Young's Point correspondent of the Review again brings in his allusions to the new road at McKee's Corners, but this time under the railway project.

Truly, his idea is a good one, for the Dominion Government could get no better foundation than that laid by the Ontario Government. We accept the propositions made and would be pleased to advise that the talked-of flagerboard be taken as one of the planks of their new platform. But how about the report, Mr. Editor?

Convicted of Theft.

Frank Lefevre, the burly Frenchman accused of the larceny of $25 from Gilbert Defoe in the Ontario Bank building last Saturday, received trial before P. M. Dumble this morning. Mr. E. E. Wood, C. C. A., prosecuted. The prisoner stated to the court that he had picked the money off the floor. "Why didn't you give it back to the man" asked the magistrate. "That's so," replied the prisoner with a despondent shake of his head. Evidence was taken showing that Lefevre was with Defoe when he drew the money out of the savings bank department, and Defoe says Lefevre fumbled with the money and pestled him around. Then his money disappeared. The magistrate said that Lefevre had practically committed larceny in picking up the money and keeping it, and sentenced him to six months in gaol at hard labour.

Sociability Among the Workmen.

The local lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen have decided to institute a series of social reunions of members, to be held every two or three months, for the purpose of promoting livelier interest and better attendance on the part of the members. It is the intention to have refreshments and short programmes on these occasions, so that the meeting will be one of pleasure as well as business. The first of these was held on Tuesday night, and proved highly successful.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. Thos. Rork, of Norwood, the Reform Nominee.

A Large and Enthusiastic Liberal Convention at Norwood—The Unanimous Choice of the Party in Mr. Rork—Meeting Speeches and Telling Resolutions—Officers and Committee Men Elected.

One of the largest mass meetings for the nomination of a candidate ever held in East Peterborough took place in Norwood Tuesday afternoon. There were between three and four hundred present, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Mr. J. M. Drummond, President of the East Riding Reform Association, occupied the chair.

The first business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:—

PRESIDENT—J. M. Drummond, Otonabee.
SECRETARY-TREASURER—W. E. Roxburgh, Norwood.
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT — Wm. Moher, Douro.
SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT—Geo. Elliott, Asphodel.
THIRD VICE-PRESIDENT—Robt. Graham, Lakefield.

The presidents of all township organizations were appointed Vice-Presidents and members of the Executive Committee.

The following gentlemen were appointed to organize the different townships:—

OTONABEE.—Wm. Hastie, Geo. Stewart, Timothy Walsh, H. Nelson, Wm. Anderson, Robt. Deyell.

DOURO.—John. M. Walsh, John Quinn, G. Garner, M. O'Sullivan, Thos. Porter, Wm. Lesson, G. J. Galvin.

THE GOVERNMENT CENSURED.

This resolution was adopted unanimously: Moved by Mr. WM. MOHER, of Douro, and seconded by Mr. JAS. MOORE, of Asphodel,—Whereas the Dominion Government has without cause, and in defiance of the Constitution, dissolved the house a year before the legal limit of its existence, it is desirable that the Liberals place on record at this meeting, and hereby do, their condemnation of this unwarranted and unconstitutional course, their utter detestation of the methods of the Dominion Government, as shown in its extravagant and corrupt expenditure of public money; its diversion of public funds to the promotion of schemes that bring political support to the Government; its trafficking by one of its members in contract broking, a minister of the crown pocketing his share of the spoil of the McGreevy steals; its Rykertism; its disregard of the real interests of the people; its oppressive system of so called protection, in the enriching of the few at the expense of the farmers of this Dominion; the restriction of our trade, and oppressive tariffs; the denial of the slightest semblance of protection to the interests of the farming community, and the final insult of pretending to give a jug-handled measure of reciprocity, which will bring only increased competition to the farmer, while confirming the burden of the monopolists and combineaters upon his back; and further resolved that this Convention approves of the Liberal policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity as the one measure by which the prosperity of the people may be enlarged, and one section relieved from the burden of paying taxes to enrich another class; and it also pledges itself to use its most earnest endeavor to promote the election of the Liberal who may be selected to carry the Reform banner to victory in this riding at the present election.

THE LATE MEMBER APPROVED.

This motion was also proposed, and carried with applause:

Moved by Mr. HASTIE, seconded by Mr. GEO ELLIOTT,—That this meeting of Liberals desire to place on record its approval of the course pursued by the Liberal party at Ottawa, and to express its thanks to our late member, Mr. John Lang, for his services to the Liberal party in East Peterborough.

THE CANDIDATE CHOSEN.

Nominations for candidates then took place.

Mr. JOHN LANG, ex-M.P., was re-nominated by Mr. W. E. Roxburgh, seconded by Mr. John Hall.

Mr. LANG made a short address, giving an account of his stewardship for the past four years, and expressing his loyalty to the Liberal principles which he had always held and advocated. He said he did not desired the nomination at the last election, nor did he wish to be the candidate now. He, therefore, withdrew.

Mr. THOS. RORK, of Norwood, was then nominated by Mr. Thos. Buck, and seconded by Mr. H. Humphries.

Mr. ALEXANDER NEVIN, of Haliburton, was proposed by Mr. Robt. Graham, and seconded by Mr. F. Austin, of Haliburton.

Mr. JOHN HULL was moved by Mr. Jas. Moore, and seconded by Mr. Moher.

Mr. HULL and Mr. NEVIN withdrew from the contest, and Mr. Rork received the enthusiastic and unanimous nomination of the meeting, which he said he accepted with a great deal of pleasure and with a determination to fight to win.

AN IMPORTANT ELECTION.

Mr. THOMAS BLEARD, M.PP., took occasion to thank the Liberals of East Peterborough for the hearty support they had given him at the last provincial election. He said that although his election was to him an important one, there never was an election in this country so important to the farmers as the contest they were just entering upon. He hoped they would weigh well the subject of unrestricted reciprocity and that they would go to the polls and vote not as party men but as men who were anxious to look after their own interests.

THE LIBERAL POLICY.

Mr. J. R. STRATTON, M.P.P., Mr. HUGH O'LEARY, of Lindsay, and Mr. PATULLO, of Woodstock, also delivered addresses, pointing out how Sir John in the Dominion election contests for the past dozen years has been so prodigal in promise and so barren in fulfilment. When making his first plea for the National Policy in 1878, with his advocacy of that measure he gave a promise of reciprocity. In 1882 he appealed for endorsation of that policy on the ground that foreign capitalists were only waiting for a reendorsation of that policy to invest their capital by the million in manufacturing industries, thereby developing the country and providing for the farmer a home market at his door. Now, seeing that the people are beginning to lose faith in his promises and that the farming community especially have begun to resolve to be no longer the tools of the government, and the hewers of wood and drawers of water for the combinesters and monopolist manufacturers, and that reciprocity is becoming popular, Sir John, as he had done in the past in other respects, has stolen the policy of the Liberal party and insulted the intelligence of the electorate of Canada by the offer of a bogus reciprocity which would be acceptable neither to the people of Canada nor the United States. On the contrary, the reciprocity he proposes means additional burdens on the farmers. They are to be subjected to competition in natural products while at the same time the burden of taxation upon everything they use, either by the fireside or in the field, is maintained with the same galling vigor in the interest of the "Red Parlour patriots" and that ilk. Mr. Rork was worthy of their support, for he appealed to them on the grounds of an enlarged trade policy, which would removed the burden from the farmer, restore general prosperity, and destroy the anomaly of one class of the community becoming rich by preying upon the labour and earnings of others—the farmers and the workingmen.

The meeting closed with rousing cheers for the candidate, for the local representatives, and for the Queen.

THE CAMPAIGN OPENED.

Dr. Mallory, of East Northumberland, opened the campaign by addressing a large meeting at Norwood Tuesday night.

Hundreds and thousands can testify to the wonderful effects of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, combined with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. dw

THE REPORT APPROVED.

The President, in moving the adoption of the report, said:—

GENTLEMEN,—It is always a pleasant duty to move the adoption of an annual statement that so clearly indicates a year of marked progress and prosperity as does the report that is now submitted for your approval. The business of the year has been gratifying in every particular. We have had no difficulty whatever in procuring choice investments at fairly remunerative rates. The repayment of matured loans and collection of interest has also been quite up to our expectations. I am glad to be able to state that Currency Debentures were issued during the year to the amount $228,000, and Sterling Debentures to the amount of $359,715.32. These large amounts were obtained at lower rates of interest than was paid on maturing obligations. An increase during the year of no less than $361,885 34 in the assets of the Company, making our total investments $3,003,696.14 at the close of our seventh year's business, will, I venture to hope, be highly satisfactory to our shareholders. We are much indebted to Messrs. Finlayson & Auld, our chief agents in Great Britain, for the gratifying increase in our Sterling Debentures. Mr. Jaffray and myself had the pleasure of seeing them when in Scotland during the past summer, and we have every reason to hope that the strong position the Company has now attained, and the active interest they are taking in it, will lead to a still greater extension of our business during the year upon which we have entered.

The average rate of interest earned upon our investments the past year is 6.35 per cent., showing a slight decrease as compared with the previous year. This is the natural result of the repayment of some of our older mortgages, because the rate that can now be obtained upon first-class security in the Province of Ontario, to which our business is confined, is steadily declining. This, we think, is not to be regretted. Those who have money to lend can better afford to take the lower rate, than those who are obliged to borrow can afford to pay the higher rate. While we borrow our money upon better terms, because we offer absolute security to our depositors and debenture-holders, we must also be content to lend it at a lower rate to those who have absolute security to offer; no rate justifies the loan where the security is not adequate.

The profit and loss account for the year, from which only $12,000 has been transferred to the reserve fund, may at first thought be somewhat disappointing, but that feeling will, I am sure, pass away when it is remembered that all the expenses incident to the issue and renewal of $787,715.00 of debentures have been charged against the profits of the year.

There are no other items in the statement that cover to me as requiring explanation, and I will now move the adoption of the report.

RICHARD HALL, Esqire, the Vice-President has been in your hands for some weeks is so satisfactory that I do not know that it is necessary to dent, said: The Annual Statement add anything to what has already been said. There is, however, one matter to which I called your special attention last year, and to which I again desire to refer. The large issue of Sterling Debentures during the year is certainly gratifying, but the rapid accumulation of Canadian Capital Reserve Deposits, and Debentures, amounting of the close of our seventh year to no less than $1,870,920.40, is to my mind still more gratifying, as affording evidence not only of the increasing wealth and prosperity of this community, but affording evidence of the increasing confidence which the Company enjoys where its business are best known. I beg to second the adoption of the report.

The report was adopted.

Important Meeting for Farmers

Mr. Lauder, representing a syndicate of capitalists, will address a meeting of the farmers of Peterborough in relation to the establishment of a beet root sugar factory in this district. As this is a subject involving the interests of the farmers to a very great degree, it is hoped that there will be a very large attendance. The meeting takes place in the new market building Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

A Few Facts.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. PECULIAR OPERATION.

Is Performed in Order to Reclaim a Child From Idiocy.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 10.—An unusual surgical operation was performed yesterday at the Cincinnati hospital, the object of which is to reclaim a child from idiocy. The patient was four years old. She cannot talk and has all the appearance of confirmed idiocy. A sister 16 years is an idiot. It was found that the skull was abnormally compressed and prematurely ossified. The physicians decided to remove a portion of the skull so as to allow the brain to develop. The operation was successfully performed, a strip half an inch wide and five inches long being removed, the scalp neatly pulled over the space. The child rallied and appears to be doing well.

Britain's Sons in Session.

HAMILTON, Feb. 10.—The Supreme Grand Lodge of the Sons of England opened this afternoon in the Royal Templars' Hall, James-street north. It is a very important and representative body, the delegates coming from British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec. About 80 delegates are expected and they have been arriving since yesterday afternoon.

The naval brigade is an important division of the Sons of England. In Toronto it is a very flourishing branch and the battalion numbers 780, of whom 152 are uniformed men. There are branches of the first battalion in various other places.

The opening of the supreme grand lodge took place at 2 o'clock, and it will remain in session three days. On Wednesday afternoon the naval brigade will have a banquet at James' hotel, and on Thursday the supreme grand lodge will be entertained at a banquet in the Arcade hall. This afternoon the convention opened in the Royal Templars of Temperance hall. The arrangements were admirable. Tables were placed throughout the hall for the convenience of the delegates with a card bearing the name of each member, indicating his place.

The supreme grand president occupied the chair, and an address of welcome was read on behalf of the Reception Committee.

Baby's Face was Raw

Distressing Itching Skin Disease Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got worse. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them faithfully, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, and now he is three years old and free from any of its returning. The child was so bad I had to tie him in a pillow-case and put his hands down so that he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to see any one call and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

OPENING OF THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Mr. Ballantyne Elected Speaker—The Speech From the Throne—What the Lieutenant-Governor Had to Say.

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Campbell proceeded to the Legislative Assembly Chamber, where the members of the new Legislature were in waiting to receive him. Being seated His Honor directed the members to choose a Speaker from among their number and after stating that he would come down again to-morrow and inform them why they had been called together, the Lieutenant-Governor took his departure. On motion of Attorney-General Mowat the House then elected Hon. Thomas Ballantyne, member for South Perth, as Speaker of the Legislature of Ontario, and adjourned until to-day.

The Speech From the Throne.

In the Speech from the Throne this afternoon the Lieutenant-Governor referred to proposed regulations relating to the sale of mining lands in the great nickel-bearing regions which have been temporarily withdrawn from sale.

He also referred to the agitation respecting compulsory education and free text books.

The speech further announces that considerable advance has been made towards a settlement of the financial and constitutional differences between the province and the Dominion; that at the recent conference between representatives of Canada, Ontario and Quebec arrangements were made for an arbitration to settle questions of account and for referring constitutional questions to the courts in friendly actions, and that a measure providing for the proposed arbitration will be submitted to the Legislature.

The land improvement fund was referred to and the suggestion made that the share chargeable against this province be paid over to the municipalities, without waiting longer for a settlement of the balance, which is claimed to be chargeable against Quebec.

The speech referred to the commission on prison reform and the commission on the fish and game laws issued during the recess, and promised legislation.

Reference to the state of public health wound up the short address.

The latest political rumor is that the Equal Rights Association will put two candidates in the field for the Dominion election in Hamilton.

AGED BUT CLEVER.

Demise of Mrs. Barnes, the Witch of Plum Hollow.

KINGSTON, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Barnes, the witch of Plum Hollow, is dead. She lived in a little log cabin four or five miles northwest of the village of Athens, and in the midst of a thickly populated farming community. Though upwards of 90 years of age and generally conceded to possess wonderful divining powers, she was a mild-mannered, pleasant-voiced, and exceedingly intelligent woman, who, when she had told your fortune from the cup, was not averse to a quiet chat on such commonplace topics as society or the state of the crops. She was also the possessor of a charitable disposition, and though actively engaged in fortune telling for upwards of 50 years, during which time she has earned thousands and thousands of dollars, it is currently reported that none of the wealth thus gained has been hoarded. She raised quite a large family, the eldest son, Mr. Samuel Barnes of Smith's Falls, being well known in that section.

NO AGREEMENT REACHED.

O'BRIEN AND DILLON FAIL IN THEIR MISSION.

And Will Surrender Themselves to the English Police To-day—Circulars From O'Brien and Parnell—The Reasons Why the Negotiations Failed.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The prospects of an amicable settlement of the Irish imbroglio grow darker as the time for the proposed final meeting draws near.

The Gladstonian assurances are not considered adequate by Parnell, and it is said he refuses to bind himself to retire for a period longer than the present session of Parliament.

He also insists upon remaining in control of the Irish party until the next general election. Some of the Healyites intend to demand at the meeting that negotiations be broken for the reason, as they assert, that too much deference is paid to Parnell's position and claims.

The McCarthyite members seen in the lobby of the House of Common to-day say Parnell's refusal to come to amicable terms will stiffen their attitude and increase their resolve to resist his claims. It is not certain that all the points will be settled at to-morrow's meeting.

The Evening Telegraph says: Parnell will at the proper moment disclose matters upon which he is backed by his supporters. The Telegraph adds that Parnell insisted from the outset that he favored peace, unity and safety, but peace and unity without safety for Home Rule is something a responsible statesman and leader would be unable to ratify without an act of betrayal.

The Pall Mall Gazette says heavy responsibility rests upon O'Brien and Dillon, who, according to The Gazette, have shown strange vacillation in treating Parnell as co-equal with the Irish representatives, and in negotiating on the lines of Committee Room 15 as if no deposition of Kilkenny election had occurred. The Gazette adds that when Parnell's defeat promised to become final it was incredible weakness to consent to a one-sided truce, leaving Parnell to prosecute his ends while O'Brien suppressed the only organ of Dublin opinion left to the Irish people. Parnell has haughtily ruptured the negotiations his opponents humbly initiated. The Gazette does not doubt that O'Brien and Dillon will repair the mischief done and revert to the anti-Parnellite position which they assumed in their December manifesto.

In an interview to-day Mr. Parnell declared he would not recede from his position, which he said was consistent. He would not submit, he said, to the dictation of Mr. Gladstone and the priests. He believed the general election would not be held for two years yet.

A CIRCULAR FROM O'BRIEN.

He Reviews the Situation at Length — His Suggestions.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—William O'Brien has issued a long statement on the Irish situation. He says: "In an otherwise difficult position the delegates to America had the advantage that they were free from beat of partisanship and could offer themselves as mediators. The experience of the past five weeks gathered from personal interviews, letters and newspapers of all sides completely confirms the conviction that only a hearty re-union can save the Irish cause. It is my duty to solemnly declare that no difficulty has existed which a little more sacrifice of personal feelings on both sides might not have surmounted."

Mr. O'Brien explains that the idea of a public truce was abandoned because both sides declared it was impossible and no useful purpose would follow the publishing of the details of the negotiations. Therefore it had been decided to regard the negotiations as confidental. Mr. O'Brien thinks, however, that none of the parties concerned will seriously question that upon the main points contended for on both sides a substantial agreement was established. "I cannot too strongly express," continues Mr. O'Brien, "with what feelings we found a settlement so vital shipwrecked at the last moment by mere contests of words and phrases—contests which with a little more magnanimity and less suspiciousness on both sides might easily have been arranged and which to my mind offer a shockingly inadequate excuse for committing the country to a struggle involving consequences so appalling. We are hampered at every step. Not merely by the malignant tittle-tattle and giddy mischief-making of a section of the English press but by the more serious impediments placed in our way by responsible persons, who under the influence of some extraordinary infatuation have seemed to grudge every hour devoted to peace-making and to resent every attempt to give a less barbarous character to the conflict."

In conclusion Mr. O'Brien says one of the saddest things in this tragic business is that circumstances have rendered it impossible to give organized effect to the overwhelming public longing for a reconciliation, while the field is held by heated partisans, who, impelled by motives which I do not question, but who are fatally deceived as to their own and their opponents strength, and the consequences of continued discord, have done their worst by exasperating language and insulting suspicions scarcely veiled threats and rumors and intrigues to make the work of peacemaking impossible." Continuing, Mr. O'Brien said: "The irreconcilables of all sections have carried the day. Mr. Dillon and myself can no longer stand between them and their deplorable work. We should have been more sensitive to the obloquy we incur by refusing to participate in such a conflict had we ever shrunk from a conflict with Ireland's enemies. We can do nothing more till we have recovered freedom of action by getting through with the sentence standing against us. On the expiration of that term I shall be happy to submit myself to the judgment of my constituents, and if I cannot otherwise assist I can enable them to commit their interests to other hands." Mr. O'Brien expressed the hope that the inevitable conflict forced upon the country may be conducted without personal bitterness and degrading personalities, so that when the unhappy passions of the hour have exhausted themselves all may again co-operate in the nation's cause.

A Statement by Dillon.

Mr. Dillon in a shorter statement admits he had been largely influenced in mediate by the action of Parnell's most prominent opponents. Mr. Parnell, he says, had been assailed with shocking personal vindictiveness and brutality in utter disregard of what was due him in return for his splendid services. This moment of moment had to many minds been utterly obscured the grand public issues and driven thousands in Ireland and America into Parnell's camp who otherwise would have opposed his continued leadership.

Mr. Dillon continues: "I have resented unceasingly the whole of Mr. Parnell's proceedings. I was utterly unable to accept his leadership after the famous manifesto, yet had I been free from the sentence of imprisonment I should have found it difficult, if not impossible to throw myself heartily into a struggle conducted in a method utterly abhorrent to me. The Havre conference found myself in perfect accord with Mr. O'Brien on the facts submitted to me: that no alternative but the arrangement he suggested would free our cause from disaster. I therefore felt it to be my duty, cordially and loyally, to support him in the difficult task he had undertaken. Events have fully borne out Mr. O'Brien's views and proven that the arrangement he contemplated was perfectly possible, but from the beginning of the negotiations powerful influences were working on both sides against peace, and we are now compelled sorrowfully to announce failure. Those who either from ignorance or malice sneered at and misconstrued our efforts will before long realize the full extent of their responsibility. For my own part I cannot even now abandon the hope that the good sense of the Irish people will assert itself and insist upon an end to the insane conflict that can result only in her humiliation and ruin."

WHAT PARNELL SAYS.

The Uncrowned King to Continue as Leader of the Party.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Mr. Parnell has written to Mr. O'Brien as follows: The last information Mr. Gill conveyed to me on our negotiations being of a final character I conclude that nothing is left to be done on my part but to bring our endeavors to a close. I regret that it has not been rendered possible for me to consider national interests so safeguarded that I could feel that there would be no danger to the cause in my now surrendering the responsibility which has been placed upon me, and which I have accepted from the hands of our nation and race. I have been ready to act up to the letter and spirit of our understanding to the last moment and I regret that no course is left but to withdraw from the negotiations. The seal of confidence which covers what has passed between us prevents inviting a public judgment, but if it is ever removed I am confident that it will be held that I have done everything in my power consistent with national interests to promote peace and re-union. Do not fear that the cause is lost. Although these negotiations have failed they have not been entirely unsuccessful in advancing it. On this at least you may congratulate yourself. The country has recovered considerably from its painful distraction and panic and the controversy is raised to a plane whereon unless it sinks again it can be conducted without national humiliation and discredit, although I regret to have perceived in the last few days the existence, in quarters where one might have least expected it, a spirit breathing the deadliest hostility to peace. But whatever side true Irishmen take they owe you thanks for your beneficent efforts. I am sure that the country will agree that you have acted throughout in the spirit of a true patriot.

O'Brien and Dillon Leave for England To-Day.

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, Feb. 11.—William O'Brien left for Paris to-night. He will return here to-morrow. John Dillon says Mr. O'Brien and himself will go to England to-morrow but not with the intention of attending the McCarthyite meeting to be held in London Thursday.

The Reason.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The News says: We assume Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien have withdrawn from the negotiations with Mr. Parnell because the Liberal leaders declined to give any assurance in regard to the Home Rule bill.

MONTREAL'S BIG BLAZE.

The Bonaventure Station Buildings and Freight Sheds Totally Destroyed.

MONTREAL, Feb. 11.—Fire broke out this morning at 11 o'clock in the Grand Trunk Railway freight sheds at Bonaventure station, and by noon the whole building with all its contents was completely destroyed, the fire ending only when it had burned itself out with all the material within its reach. The flames were first noticed bursting from the windows of the customs department. The sheds, which extended parallel with the tracks from the station down to Mountain-street, being of wood soon caught fire all along their length and gave out so fierce a heat that the hose was burned even while filled with water. When the firemen entered the building they found two men, J. B. Flynn and C. T. Tough, who had become unconscious from the smoke. They were at once removed to the hospital. The only goods destroyed were those which arrived last night. The total loss will not exceed $50,000.

Postoffice Burned.

WINDSOR, Feb. 11.—Fire broke out at mid night last night at Sandwich, in rear part of Lassaline & Sons' furniture factory and storerooms, a two-story frame on the front street. The postoffice, which was separated from the furniture factory by a 20 foot alley, caught fire and was totally burned together with all its contents, except the mail matter, which was carried out. The furniture factory and contents were also burned to the ground. Proprietors estimate their loss at $4000; insurance, $2000.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

A G. T. R. Passenger Gashes His Jugular Near Brampton.

BRAMPTON, Feb. 11.—Michael Norton, a passenger on the Grand Trunk train going west this morning, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat. Soon after the train had left Malton he was seen by some of the passengers and his hand stayed, but not till he had cut a deep gash in his throat. The conductor put him off here and telephoned for a doctor and the police officer, and after the wound was dressed he was lodged in jail. He says he lives near Orillia and is a farmer. He is thought to be mentally weak; $98 was found on his person. His friends have been wired for.

THE BEHRING SEA.

He'll Talk Canadian Reciprocity After the Sealing Squabble is Ended.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The British Minister had a protracted conference with Secretary Blaine to-day. It is understood that it related to some very important matters, including the Sayward case, now before the Supreme Court, and the Behring Sea controversy. There was also some discussion concerning the proposed Canadian reciprocity schemes. The Secretary explained to the Minister what he meant by his letter to Representative Baker, in which he denied that any negotiations were pending looking to reciprocal trade with the Canadian provinces. It appears that at that time nothing had been done in that direction. The Secretary, however, is aware that some of the Canadian authorities are anxious to enter into trade relations, but from some cause or other the secretary is not disposed to entertain any propositions of that sort until some definite settlement is made of the Behring Sea dispute.

The proposed arbitration of Lord Salisbury, and the propositions mentioned in Mr. Blaine's letter, which are to be submitted for consideration, will, it is understood, not be taken up until the pending suit in the Supreme Court is out of the way.

Tecumseth's Condition.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—At 11.15 to-night Drs. Alexander and Janeway held a consultation, after which Dr. Alexander issued a bulletin stating there had been no change in Gen. Sherman's condition.

THE PARIS SWINDLING BANKER'S GREAT HEAD.

The Pope sent Him a Picture—A Curious Libel Suit Arising Out of a Canvass—Church and State in England—The Strikes in England and Wales.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—The real name of the banker known as Victor Maco, whose disappearance was announced yesterday, is Bernaau. Among his clientele were about 6000 priests. The Pope recently sent to Bernaau the papal benediction and a photograph of His Holiness bearing his autograph. This had the effect of increasing the banker's credit among the clergy. The money deposited with Bernaau amounted to 1,000,000 francs monthly. The banker kept no books and made no record beyond the simple entry of deposits made. He gambled on the bourse, on the turf and at cards. His luck turned recently and he lost 250,000 francs monthly. As a last resort he went to Monte Carlo.

CURIOUS LIBEL SUIT.

How the Cobden Club Bought Advocates in Sweden.

LONDON, Feb. 11. A curious libel case has just been before the law courts in Sweden. It appears that a Swedish newspaper, Motala Posten, accused certain persons of high social position, one being the late General Director of Customs, and another the present Lord Lieutenant of the county of Stockholm, with having received subsidies from the Cobden Club amounting to £12,000 for carrying on a free trade agitation in their country.

The court dismissed the libel, the writer pleading that all the statements were true and claiming that Prince Bismarck had been able through the German Embassy in London to obtain a copy of the club's secret accounts, and that these accounts fully bore out the statements that had been made.

The writer of the article received his information in such a way that there could be no question about its authenticity, and he further alleged that these secret accounts would be very soon published in Berlin.

CHURCH AND STATE.

An Open Question About Catholics and Two British Offices.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—In the House of Commons Mr. R. K. Austen, Gladstonian, member for West Southwark, asked whether Catholics would be eligible to occupy the position of Lord Chancellor of England or Viceroy of Ireland. Sir Richard Everard Webster, the Attorney-General, declined to answer, on the ground that eminent lawyers differed on the question, which would become practical if any Government appointed a Catholic to either of those positions.

REVOLUTION IN BULGARIA.

An Alleged Treasonable Plot Unearthed at Sofia.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 11.—Many conflicting rumors are circulating here in regard to a treasonable plot alleged to have been discovered in Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria. The conspiracy is said to aim at the overthrow of Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria and his Cabinet. A Bulgarian, Servian and a Macedonian have been arrested at Sofia and judicial enquiry is in progress. Some think one of the prisoners concocted the story of the conspiracy in order to be revenged for some fancied injury upon his fellow-prisoners.

What Caused Prince Bandonin's Death.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The sensational and unfounded rumors as to the death of Prince Bandouin, some of them of the wildest kind, have not subsided with the funeral. There seems, however, some ground for believing that the immediate cause of death was, after all, suppressed smallpox. Every member of the royal household, from the grand marshal down to the brushers, has since been carefully vaccinated; and the example thus set has been widely followed in Brussels, where the increase of the smallpox epidemic occasions considerable alarm. Prince Albert is already at St. Raphael, and as soon as Princess Henrietta is strong enough to move the whole of the Count of Flanders' family will migrate to the Riviera. During their absence from home an attempt will be made to place their whole abode in thorough sanitary repair.

Strikes in Europe.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The strike situation on the Albert docks is becoming critical. The striking laborers are only restrained from overt acts by the presence of a formidable body of police. Work on the steamers Lydian Monarch and Sorrento has ceased and the companies charge the laborers and stevedores who had been engaged on the vessels with having broken faith with their employers.

CARDIFF, Feb. 11.—The dock laborers strike grows in bitterness although free labor is plentiful.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—A great strike at the glass works of Lyons and the vicinity is impending. A desire for an increase of wages is the cause of the agitation.

The U. S. Minister and the Premier Discuss Behring Sea.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—United States Minister Lincoln had his first interview today with Lord Salisbury since the former's return to this country. The interview lasted a long time and gave rise to the rumor that the main subjects discussed were those connected with the Behring Sea question.

Goschen on the McKinley Tariff.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—In the House of Commons to-day the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Goschen, in reply to questions on the subject, intimated that he would not promote the passage of a gold-coinage bill until he saw his way clear to proceed with other measures dealing with the currency.

Later on, replying to a question as to the effects of the McKinley bill upon British trade, Mr. Goschen said that the Government had no intention to start a policy of retaliation against the United States protective tariff, especially as it was hoped that the Americans themselves would perceive the mistake they had made of adopting the McKinley tariff.

Drew on the Reserve.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The management of the Nottingham & Nottingshire Banking Company has found it necessary to withdraw $125,000 from the reserve fund in order to cover the defalcations of Robert James Beard, one of its managers, who disappeared some time ago and whose body was subsequently found in the River Trent.

A Grand Trunk Express Narrowly Escapes Being Ditched.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—A dastardly attempt at train-wrecking has come to light. It appears that on Monday night two rails were placed across the track of the St. Thomas and Port Stanley road a short distance south of the Port Stanley bridge, between this city and St. Thomas, evidently intended for the M.C.R. passenger train passing about 9 p.m., but a heavy freight train went over just previously and forced the rails off the track. G.T.R. detectives are working on the affair.

ON SOAP,
IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.
FROM AN ARTICLE BY
Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,
Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the "Combe Trust," Editor of "Health."

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting of the Peterborough Branch.

Reports Not Very Satisfactory—Some Efforts Must be Made to Increase the Collections—A Disappointment for the Audience.

The largest gathering that has attended the annual meeting of the Bible Society in Peterborough, for many years, assembled in in the George Street Church, Wednesday night, but they were considerably disappointed in not hearing the expected speaker, Rev. Mr. Milligan, of Toronto, who telegraphed at six o'clock that he had missed the train. However, an interesting meeting was held, notwithstanding the disappointment. Mr. Sheriff Hall presided, and the ministers present were Rev. Messrs. Torrance, Shorey and Locke.

After the opening exercises, in which the choir gave efficient service, Rev. Mr. Shorey, in the absence, through illness, of Mr. J. D. Collins, secretary, read the annual report, as follows:—

of the committee of the Peterborough Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society for 1890:

Your committee submit herewith the statements of the Depository and of your Treasurer; the first showing a balance of $118.30 carried forward on the present occasion, as compared with $126 90 brought forward from the preceding year, and that 144 Bibles and 61 Testaments have been issued during the year, and the latter statement showing that the sum of $63 each has been forwarded to the Upper Canada and British and Foreign Bible Societies, the total collections for the year being only $116.52. This amount was augmented by the sum of $12.75, which was collected in the Hall settlement in 1889, and was not sent to the Treasurer in time to be forwarded to Toronto for that year.

The Treasurer's statement show a steady decrease in the subscriptions to the Society for some years past, and it appears to your committee that unless some extra means are used to lay the claims of the Society before the people of the town and country, and some improvement made in the manner of collecting for the Society, that the total subscriptions of town and country will soon dwindle down to a very small sum.

Your committee recommend the appointment of the following officers and committee for the year 1891:

Rev. Mr. SHOREY said the decrease in contributions referred to in the report was emphasized by a glance at the figures of past years. He quoted from past reports showing that the contributions had fallen from $380 in 1883, to $153 in 1890. Rev. Mr. Shorey said he could not explain the circumstance, but hoped this year's contributions would amount to a larger sum than had ever been raised before, in recompense for past shortcomings.

The report was then adopted by the unanimous vote of the audience, after which the choir rendered another anthem.

HOLY BIBLE, BOOK DIVINE.

Rev. Mr. TORRANCE then delivered an interesting address concerning the importance of the Bible—a book which contained the thoughts of the infinite God as expressed though his prophets and apostles. Among the many great gifts of God to man is his Holy Word, and ought we not therefore to send it to those who have it not? We owe a debt to mankind, said Rev. Mr. Torrance, and we ought to pay that debt by sending the Bible to those who have it not. The Bible Society, he said, deserved support because it brought together the different Christian denominations and gained their united assistance in sending the Word of God, pure and without any comments whatever, to all classes of mankind who are not in possession of the holy book. Rev. Mr. Torrance concluded his address by reading a few extracts from the last annual report of the Society, giving an encouraging account of the spread of Christianity in France, Spain, Italy, Germany, China, India, etc., through the efforts of the Society. Mr. Torrance urged the people to support the Society and not have a continuance of the decrease mentioned in the Peterborough report. The difficulty was that the laymen did not take hold of the Society of late years as they should. They wanted men of energy to take an active interest in the Society and push it forward. There was also a difficulty last year in the mode of gathering in the collections. Mr. Torrance appealed to the leading laymen to come forward and assist. He pointed out that in Brantford the annual collections were very large simply because a few earnest laymen interested themselves.

MORE WORKERS WANTED.

After the collection had been taken up, Mr. SHERIFF HALL said one reason why the Bible Society was not more successful, was because the people did not take an interest in the Society, and the reason for that was because the people did not know much about the Society. As a general thing, very little information is given at these meetings about the work of the Society, and how the money was expended. It was done in former years, and people took a more active interest in the affairs of the Society. If this information was given, people would see the grand work being done by the Society, and they would be willing to give their money to help it along. The Sheriff spoke of the reference which had been made by some of the speakers to this meeting as being an unusually large one, and told the audience of a couple of great meetings he had attended in Toronto, when the churches were crowded and great enthusiasm was manifested. The reason for this was that the speakers gave information concerning the work accomplished, the steps proposed to be taken, how money had been expended and what it was wanted for, etc. The Sheriff asked for suggestions from laymen in the audience as to the best way of raising the funds.

Mr. DUMBLE proposed special collections in the churches on appointed Sundays, but Rev. Mr. Torrance said that plan had been tried and it had not worked satisfactorily. Mr. Torrance thought the best way was to get twelve or fourteen persons to volunteer to make a thorough canvass of the town by sections. Rev. Mr. Shorey and Rev. Mr. Locke endorsed this plan, the latter also proposing a meeting of the Society in a couple of weeks for the purpose of organizing for a thorough canvass of the town. Rev. Mr. Shorey volunteered to find two young ladies who would do their share of the work.

After a hymn had been sung the benediction was pronounced.

The Result of Neglect.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claim for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

Familiar Family Friends.

The Pace is Too Fast.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of passions and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MUNCASTER'S

391 GEORGE STREET.

OONA SAVED HIM.

They sat at the door of the little cottage together. All about them spread the emerald sward of a patch of Ireland.

Oona, with her red-gold hair, her fair pink and white face and her white arms, with dimples at the elbows, looked very, very pretty, though her gown was green and not new and her small feet dressed in clumsy boots and roughly knitted stockings.

The grandmother, withered and toothless, was witch-like enough, in her cap, with its great ruffles, and her short gown of muslin, yellow with age, over a short frieze petticoat.

Before them the ground lay level for miles and miles, dotted with little shealings and dark bogs.

Two geese waddled in and out of a little pond not far from the door, and a dog snored in the shadow of the furze bushes. Oona was speaking.

"I want to go to Americay and be airning, grannie," she said; "airnin' and sendin' home the bit of money like the other girls. I'm weary suppin' milk and atin' praties I niver help to buy. I'll take this bit of money me uncle left me—God rest his soul—and buy me ticket to Americay with it and get a service place. Patsy and Beesy are goin', and I'll not be me lee lane on the great stame-ship. It's a foine toime to be startin' along with the two of thim."

"Are you forgettin' Jamesie, darlin' C" asked the old woman.

"Forget Jamesie! It's him I think of day an' night, slapin' or wakin'," said Oona, with two big tears in her eyes.

"An' thin, where is the promise ye made him?" asked the old woman, rocking to and fro.

"Ye promised to bide until he sint for ye, or came to make ye his wife. Grannie O'Lynn, ye'll mind that she stays safe in the home nist,' says he, 'until she flies to mine.' Thim's his words, darlin'; an' I tuk me oath to him. Bide hame till Jamesie comes, lassie; there's enough for all."

"Jamesie will never come, grannie," said Oona. "Jamesie is passed out of my life like the flowers that faded last year. I'll see no more of him, unless it may be in Hivin. Some ill has come to him. It's three years since he wint away, an' there's no news of him. He's dead, grannie. He's a schollard, is Jamesie; an' he'd write once a week, he said; an' niver a line—niver wan line! The sea is deep, grannie, an' what is a steerage passenger to a big company, dead or alive! He's no more!"

"I've thought the same at times," said grannie; "but I don't seem to see him dead. I dream of white candles at the head of folks that are dead, an' thim lyin' quiet; an' whin I drame of him, it's not like that. There's breath an' life in him, but he's troubled—troubled, darlin'."

"It may be some other woman has sthole his heart away from me. He might have been ashamed to let me know it, after the oaths he swore to be thrue to me while there'd be the breath of life in him," said Oona. "But how an iver that may be, I've bided without airnin' too long. You've no son, grannie; and it's fittin' your daughter's daughter, that you've mithered since she was a babe, should take the place of them that's gone."

And then they both wept together, almost as women weep over the dead; for it was hard to part. Hard, too, to put away the hope of Jamse O'Donnel sending for them to come to him, for both were to go—grannie to live with them at ease.

Alas! it must needs be done, for cold and hunger, those two wolves who are forever on the track of the Irish peasant, had been very near them of late. So Oona left the cabin and crossed the ocean, with no mischance; and her bright face won her a place, in spite of her "greenness," and she learned fast, and soon there was no want of meat or of fire in the cabin. And Oona did not tell her old grannie how sore her heart was. She had hoped against hope, believing that, after all, she would find her Jamesie in America, still true to her, or that at least she would hear of him. Now she was aware of the vast distances of the land to which she had come. It was like looking for a needle in a haystack to look for anyone even in New York. A year convinced her that she should never see Jamesie in this life, and all her hope was to be able to bring grannie over before age made the old woman too feeble to come.

It was Sunday. Oona, who had nothing to spare for finery, had been to church in her simple cotton gown and neat straw hat, in which she looked better than many other girls in their ribbons and feathers, for she was as fresh and sweet as a daisy. And now she had the rest of the afternoon to herself. Oona was on Sunday, also on week-days, her employer was not far from Central Park, and her steps turned into its shaded paths quite naturally.

There were plenty of people there. Girls and their lovers in plenty. The thought of her Jamesie arose within her, and she felt her throat swell. Oh, where was he? If he were dead, where had he perished, and how! If he were false, what fair face had won him!

"There's many a prettier girl, Jamesie," poor Oona said to herself, "but none that loves you so true as me, or ever will."

Tears arose to her eyes; she turned into a less frequented path, and wandered on until she came to a little rustic summer-house that stands alone on a projecting rock, not far from the block-house. Hoping to find herself alone, she entered, but saw in an instant that a man lay there asleep on the bench—a man in ragged clothes, with unkempt hair and a stubby beard, with soiled linen, and shoes that were all crushed and trodden aside, with a face that wore the flush of intoxication—a man to run from and to fear, from a woman's point of view. But Oona did not run. She stood still and clasped her hands together, and gazed down upon him, for the face was a face she knew. Changed, degraded as it was, it was James O'Donnel who lay there; her Jamesie, whose silver betrothal ring she wore, the tidiest boy in the parish when he left old Ireland.

"Oh, Mother of Mercy, what has happened to bring him to this?" Oona moaned. "Him that nivir took a dhrop too much! Oh, why did I live to see this: Why?"

She looked at him, sick at heart. The smell of stale liquor lingering about him revolted her. But his head was in an uncomfortable position; his breath was laborod.

"Maybe it was sickness brought him to this," she said; and took off her shawl and folded it up to make a pillow for his head.

"Jamesie," she said.

And suddenly it came to her that, though it was Jamesie, the worse for liquor, very dirty, utterly debased, it was at least Jamesie alive, and that it might be in the power of one who loved him, with the grace of God, to bring him back to his old self. Jamesie alive, and in trouble! She knelt down beside him. She was no fine lady, and was well used to the soiled garb of laboring men, and touched him softly with her hand.

"Jamesie!" she said softly, "Jamesie! Waken up! It's Oona!"

The man stirred, opened his eyes, and stared at her, then shut them.

"Jamesie!" she said again.

This time he started up, and cried:

"Who is this!" in a strange, unnatural ing voice, like one who had seen a ghost.

"It's Oona, Jamesie," said the girl. "Look, and you'll know me."

"I know you well," he said.

He sat up now; rested his elbows on his knees, and his chin in his hands, and uttered a groan.

"I'm not [illegible] ah, I suppose," he said, "but I'm your own work. You can get comfort out of that, ma'am, an' ye plase."

He spoke with a sneer, and looked at her crossly, but with so much reproach in his eyes that her heart told her he thought some ill thing of her.

"My work!" she said. "Oh, Jamesie! whativer did I do but be as thrue to you as a girl could be! Whativer do you mane wid it's bein' my work!"

"Thrue!" he responded. "Yes, until a better man came. Oh! he was better; I knew it. But I loved you, and I had your promise, and I toiled, and wrought, and saved, and prayed to all the saints to help me, just for you, Oona: and that you'd come to me was day was all my thought: and aven whin no answers to me letthers came, I wrote again, thinkin' it some mishtake of the post, until here comes Barry Muldoon, an' greets me in the street, an' shakes me by the hand. 'Och!' says he: 'did ye hear the news from Ballybofay?'

"'I did not,' says I.

"'Oona Malone is married to the young quireen,' says he. 'Sure her face was her fortune,' he says.

"That's bein' thrue, is it? I've not seen a sober day since that hour, and dhrink brings rags and dirt wid it. But it's your doin', Oona, yours. I thrusted you, and you desaved me."

"O, Jamesie," moaned Oona, "did you believe that of me? Of me, Jamesie! Why, it's a lie Barry Muldoon told you, and all because I would not let him court me. 'That's the ring James O'Donnel put upon my finger,' says I, 'and I'll think of none but him until I go marry him in Americay. Why, the squireen niver came nigh us but once, to get a dhrink of butthermilk from grannie, and took no heed of me. Why should he, with a foine young lady of his own, and thim like turtle doves? And it's him sthole the letthers, na doubt, for he promised to bring them over, grannie having no cart or horse at all. And, oh! if it had been so, Jamesie, what right had ye to change the man God made you to what you've come to now? I'd not have been worth it, Jamesie, if I was a queen."

Jamesie looked at her a moment, and broke down. The tears came dropping through his fingers.

"Not thrue!" he sobbed. "And I've come to this for naught."

"And I've mourned ye for dead, Jamesie, and find ye worse," sighed Oona.

"How did you come here?" Jamesie asked, when he had conquered his emotion.

"I jist walked in unknownst," said Oona.

"I'm livin' at sarvice this year here in Americay."

"I suppose you hate me now, Oona?" said Jamesie.

The girl looked steadily and sadly at him.

"I'm very discontented wid ye," she said, "at present. How can I help but be so?"

She reached out her hand for her shawl.

"Did you put that under me durthy head, Oona?" asked Jamesie.

"Yis," said Oona. "Yis Jamesie."

"You don't hate me, Oona," said the man. "And look ye, my girl, that thought is enough to make me sthrong again the drink. I only took it to drown me sorrows. I hate the stuff.

"I'll not touch ye now, nor be seen wid ye to disgrace ye; but twelve weeks from this day mate me on the stheps of St. Ann's church and ye'll find me ould self there, sober and dacent. Give your promise for that, Oona. I'll not come unless all is as it should be."

"God bless and help ye, Jamesie," sobbed the girl. "I'll be there."

She took a little rosary from her bosom and handed it to him.

"Let this be for a token betwixt us," she said

Then he left her, and she dared not look after him.

But every night she prayed that Jamesie might have strength to do as he promised, and on the twelfth Sunday she stood on the church steps. She did not see him at first, but suddenly an arm was thrust through the crowd, and a rosary was dropped into her hand, and turning she looked on Jamesie, the old Jamesie, sober and in his right mind.

"Never a drop has passed my lips since we met, Oona," said he, "nor ever shall. Are you discontented with me still, Oona—me faithful Oona, mavourneen?"

But she was quite content, and he knew that before she said it. And in a year from that day, the old grandmother came to them, and they were married.

SATURDAY'S CONVENTION.

The Liberals of Peterborough are earnestly reminded of the adjourned convention of the Reformers of West Peterborough, which is to meet in Bradburn's Opera House, on Saturday next, at 2 o'clock p. m., to receive the report of a nominating committee as to a candidate to contest the riding in the coming elections. We have every reason to be certain that the name of a strong candidate, who will command the confidence of the convention and the respect of the electors, will be submitted to the meeting for approval, and who will heartily accept a nomination and enter vigorously into the campaign. It is, therefore, exceedingly important that there be a large attendance at the convention, so that steps at organization, both in town and country, may be entered upon at once and perfected. The time is short and every hour should be improved. The prospects for victory to the cause of the Liberals were never brighter in West Peterborough than at present, and every Liberal will see the necessity of getting their candidate into the field and organization entered upon without delay.

An Awful Disaster.

Immense Loss of Life in a Quebec Explosion.

Special to the Examiner.

QUEBEC, Feb. 12.—About 9 45 this morning the boiler in the Quebec Worsted Company's factory at Hare Point exploded, completely destroying the engine house and about half of the building. A large number of the employees were buried in the ruins. So far 30 bodies have been taken out. The work of removing the bodies is going on actively.

Political Notes From the East—Etshusiastic Reformers—The Equal Righters in the Field.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The political campaign was opened in this riding with great vigor on Tuesday, Feb. 10. During the day political lights from all over the riding, as well as a number from the West, gathered at Norwood to make preparations for the fray. The Reform Convention was held in the town hall at one o'clock, and the meeting was both large and enthusiastic. Mr. Thos. Rork, of the village, was made the unanimous choice of the electors, and if his supporters continue, as they have begun, his election will be certain on the fifth of March. At a Conservative meeting held in Metcalfe block for the same purpose, Mr. John Burnham, of Ashburnham, was prevailed upon to accept the nomination. In the evening the Reformers again had possession of the hall, and by means of excellent speakers laid the position of the country before the minds of the large audience. Mr. Thomas Fraser occupied the chair. Mr. Rork in a few words expressed his disapproval of the N. P. and his intention of supporting free trade with the United States. Mr. Webb, from Northumberland county, held the meeting for a short time and made known his views with well chosen words. Dr. Mallory, ex-M.P. for Northumberland, was the announced speaker of the evening. The Reform policy of unrestricted reciprocity occupied most of his time. The doctor made a good impression upon the audience, among whom were a number of old Conservatives. Mr. Patullo, of Woodstock, wound up the proceedings by dwelling on the condition of our various markets compared with what they might be under Free Trade conditions. With three cheers for the Queen and Mr. Rork, the first meeting of the campaign in this riding was brought to an end.

THE EQUAL RIGHTS' CANDIDATE.

On Wednesday, the 11th, a score of Equal Righters, together with a large crowd of inquisitive Grits and Tories, assembled in the town hall for the purpose of discussing the prospects in the coming elections, and the advisability of placing a candidate in the field. Mr. Hugh Drain, sr., occupied the chair. After deciding to place a man in the field, nominations were received resulting in the following:—Messrs. Armstrong, (Oonabee), P. W. Reynolds, A. R. Kidd, E. B. Stone and Dawson Kennedy. Each in turn refused with thanks, after expressing his opinion on the prospect, sometimes favorable, more often unfavorable, until the name of Mr. A. R. Kidd was reached. Mr. Kidd was full of confidence as to the result, but most absolutely refused to run unless his expenses were paid. Whether his supporters will accede to his request, or not, is the question upon which Equal Rights' prospects hang at present.

THE AGRICULTURISTS.

At a meeting of the directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society on Tuesday, the 10th, Messrs. John Knox, Chas. O'Reilly and T. Blezard, M. P. P., were appointed a delegation to wait on the Minister of Agriculture, in conjunction with delegates from other societies, for the purpose of urging increased Government aid in the direction of agricultural societies.

To Keep Her Cake and Eat It.

A lady in the North Ward accidentally found a way to "keep her cake and eat it," too. She had cooked a fine fig cake for a church feed, intending to take it to the church herself. When the time came she found it too stormy to go out and decided to stay at home and eat her cake herself. When she went later to her pantry she made a discovery of a sad want, and the storm did not prevent her going down town that same night to get a supply of hawley bros'. tea.

The Horse Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Feb. 10.—The weekly horse market is assuming great proportions. Some Canadian horses are coming, but the number is being restricted by the tariff, and the bulk of the offerings are from the Western States. About 400 head were on sale yesterday, and 261 were sold at auction and private sale. Many out of town buyers were present. Some horses were bought in car load lots at a shade higher prices than any previous week this season.

DOMINION ELECTIONS.

West Riding Liberal Convention.

A Largely Attended Convention—Brief Addresses—Candidates Proposed—Adjournment Till Next Saturday.

Mr. Michael Sanderson, reeve of the township of Smith, and president of the West Riding Reform Association, occupied the chair and called the meeting to order, and pointed out how the elections had been prematurely brought upon the country, in face of which the Liberals had a duty to perform towards the country in the nomination of a candidate to contest this riding.

A FEW SHORT SPEECHES.

Mr. J. R. STRATTON, who was called on, said he took the earliest opportunity of thanking the Liberal electors for the support they had given him in the late election, not forgetting those Conservatives who had given him their much appreciated support. He alluded to the circumstances under which the convention was called to nominate a candidate to contest the west riding in the interest of the Liberal party and of the country, whose policy of unrestricted reciprocity, he declared amidst cheers, was, he believed, to the best interests of the country. Dealing further with the advantages of reciprocal trade with the United States, he quoted figures to show that on Feb. 7th barley was 40 cents a bushel in Toronto, and on the same day it was 80 cents a bushel in Buffalo. He asked if the promises of increased prosperity made by Sir John and his friends as a result of his policy had been realized, and showed that in no sense had these promises been fulfilled. Reference was made to the promises in 1882 of millions of capital that was to come into Canada, but which never came. He pointed out that reciprocity would bring no injury to the manufacturers of Peterborough, for the very establishments whose ruin was quoted and predicted by those whose interests was to speak that way—these very industries were the result of American capital and enterprise, which had overcome a high tariff wall in its entry into town, and if all trade barriers were removed, it stood to reason that such establishments as the Brooks Manufacturing Company and the new Edison Company and the Carbon works Company would be multiplied ten fold—employment would be enlarged and hundreds of now idle men find profitable employment. He went on to point out the advantages that would result from enlarged trade relations. He thought the Liberal policy was the best in the interests of the country, but at the same time he did not call those who differed from these views, disloyal and unpatriotic. The question now at issue before the country could be peacefully and quietly settled. He hoped that this Convention would by no means separate without putting a candidate in the field, who could be easily returned on the fifth of March next. The speaker resumed his seat amidst cheers.

Dr. BELL, who was warmly received, pointed out the inconsistency manifested, and the sharp curve taken by Sir John in declaring for reciprocity, which he knew would not be entertained by the Government he proposed to deal with. He urged united action, promising his best efforts to secure the return of the nominee of the convention.

Mr. PETER HAMILTON referred to the power delegated by the Constitution to the people of Canada, who should decide who was to represent them in Parliament, something that was rendered impossible by the Dominion Franchise Act, which stole away the rights of the people. He was a Canadian, and though he had a warm feeling for the land of his forefathers, yet he was thoroughly Canadian in feeling and sentiment, (cheers) and he thought the unrighteous Dominion Franchise Act, and that Act alone, was enough justification for sweeping the Dominion Government from power. It was a very serious thing to trifle with the free voice of the people. He pointed out that the National Policy meant a device for getting money for the Dominion Government to spend recklessly. He was told that he as a manufacturer ought to be satisfied with a 35 per cent. duty on machines, but this was spoiled by a duty of 65 per cent. on a part of his raw material—bar iron. It was high time that the reckless expenditure of money and the terrible addition to the public debt was ended. There was something dark and hidden in Sir John demanding a verdict from the people at this time. The dissolution of the House under the present circumstances shows that there was something crooked—something that would not stand the light of investigation.

Mr. WALTER PATERSON was received with applause and gave instances to show the benefit that would arise from unrestricted trade. In his own business he knew that a larger market would be of great benefit to him, as, what leathers he manufactured had to remain unsold if he could not sell them in Toronto or Montreal, whereas if he had access to the United States market he could not only meet with ready sale for his goods but he would be able to largely increase the capacity of his factory and give employment to a large number of additional hands.

NOMINATIONS.

The following gentlemen were in turn duly nominated:—Mr. Peter Hamilton, Mr. Richard Hall, Dr. Bell, Mr. Walter Paterson, and Mr. Michael Sanderson.

Mr. PETER HAMILTON said nothing would give him greater pleasure than to be a candidate at the present election, but owing to circumstances he must decline. Very few could understand how hard it had been for him to decline the nomination. His sympathy was with the Liberal party, and he would decline in favour of Mr. Richard Hall, and do all he could to secure his return.

Mr. SANDERSON, said he was 76 years of age and too old to enter an election fight.

Dr. BELL and Mr. W. PATERSON also declined to become candidates retiring in favour of Mr. Richard Hall, and a deputation was appointed, consisting of these gentlemen and Mr. Waram, to wait upon Mr. Hall, who was present at a meeting of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, to tender the nomination and learn his decision.

INTERIM SPEECHES.

While waiting for the deputation, Dr. GOLDSMITH made a short address, showing the necessity of the people rising to the importance of the occasion, and declaring that the misgovernment of the country should come to an end. That Canada has come through the extravagant and reckless expenditure in as good shape as she had done, was a magnificent tribute to the resources of the country and its ability to stand misgovernment. He showed that the farmers, especially, were injured by high tariffs, and that the bogus offer of reciprocity by Sir John Macdonald was a feint to get the electors to declare in favor of his so-called National Policy.

Mr. WM. GRAHAM, of Smith, stated that for the past thirty years he had been struggling to get a home for himself, and he showed that the state of the country is bad from his experience in trying to sell a farm, that farm lands were depreciated in value, and the state of the farmer is one of unceasing struggle for subsistence. He advocated free trade with our neighbors, and it was only a certain class that said that reciprocity would be an injury to the country. He called on the farmers to rise in their might and declare that the time was past when farmers could be kept down.

Mr. WM. CUMMING, of Ennismore, made a vigorous speech in favor of reciprocity, and characterized the accusation that Liberals were wanting annexation as "a downright lie. (Loud cheers.) He said that that the Government were the oppressors of the poor. He criticized the platform of Mr. Stevenson, and pointed out the different baits employed by the Government to catch the votes of the people.

Mr. Hall in the meantime arrived and was called to the platform.

Mr. HALL on coming forward was received with loud cheers. While thanking the convention for the nomination, which he very much appreciated, he did not find it in his power to accept, and was therefore inclined to decline the nomination. He thought Mr. Hamilton would be a much stronger candidate, and better qualified to undertake the candidature.

Mr. HAMILTON said he was compelled for personal reasons to re-iterate his declining of the nomination.

Mr. T. G. HAZLITT, speaking of the present time, said it was one that should not be allowed to pass. The Government had sprung the elections on the country because they feared the developments which another session would bring forth. He did not think the matter should be decided now, but that an adjournment should be made, and a committee appointed to confer with eligible candidates and report at the convention.

Mr. STRATTON thought it was better to have the matter brought to a point at the present meeting, but it was decided that the committee mentioned by Mr. Hazlitt should consist of Messrs. Peter Hamilton, T. G. Hazlitt, C. J. Leonard, F. Fahrn, Dr. Bell, Walter Paterson and D Bethune, should report at the adjourned convention to be held in the Opera House next Saturday at 2 o'clock p m.

EXAMPLE AND INFLUENCE.

The Subject of the First Lenten Lecture.

Delivered by Rev. Dr. Sweeney, St. Philip's Toronto—A Large Congregation—A Hearty Service—An Eloquent and Edifying Lecture.

There was a large congregation at the first of the series of Wednesday evening Lenten lectures, held in St. Joan's on Ash Wednesday evening. After evensong, in which the choir of St. Andrew's Brotherhood led the singing,

Rev. Dr. SWEENEY entered the pulpit to speak on the subject of "Our Example and Influence." The reverend lecturer, who is Rector of St. Philip's church, Toronto, is a tall bearded young man of pleasing address, the chief characteristic of which is earnestness. His mode of speaking is distinct and deliberate, with a tendency to ornateness, restrained, however, within the limits of good taste.

The speaker began by relating an incident (selected with reference to "your flourishing town of Peterborough"), referring to the influence upon Lord Peterborough which, the personal intercourse of the pious life and godly example of Archbishop Fenelon had had upon him. This was the preface and groundwork of his address—Example and Influence.

THE RELATION OF INFLUENCE AND EXAMPLE.

After pointing out that example and influence were related to each other as cause and effect, Scriptural examples in proof of this position of this, were adduced. The subtle principle of the receptivity of the human heart for the effects of human example and influence were indicated as showing the truthfulness of the apostolic declaration—"No man liveth to himself." There was a mutual interdependence and relationship amongst all things in the material, animal and moral world, and the speaker gave eloquent passages of word-painting to illustrate this statement. This law of the natural world was of equally constant and higher application in the spiritual world. There was a constant interchange and operation of the influences of mind upon mind and of heart upon heart, either for good or evil, sometimes of a permanent and infinite character. If we have viewed man in all the relations of life we have seen that this secret working of the principle of influence has never ceased its exercise.

A recognition of these sublime truths had influenced the minds of the greatest men, and had been tributary to their producing their greatest works.

THE HIDDEN INFLUENCE OF EXAMPLE

emanated from a single individual, and, like electricity, flashed through the almost endless chain of human connection and association in this world for either weal or woe. The grandest example of an influence for the highest good as exercied by Christ and its effect on millions and millions of the human race, had never ceased and never could cease, but was ever flowing and elevating mankind wherever it touched. The working of this principle of influence was shown in a minor degree in the lives of the saints, whose festivals the Church observed, and remained long after they have passed away. From the influence of the examples of these holy men had sprung, the speaker graphically showed, the zeal, the toil, the self sacrifice that has evangelized the world, and stirred the hearts of the philanthropists who have been powers for good in the world. The radiating of influence from its centre was immeasurably and infinitely great. As a pebble dropped in a lake, the influence of a single example spread from one human heart and life to another, insofar as known, in infinite series. An instance given of the wide influence for evil, was that of a man placed high in a position of trust, who proved recreant to that trust, and had given an example of dishonest action, who by his high position and widely known personality exerted a correspondingly wide and baneful influence. Teachers of error and evil principles exercised an influence through their works long after they have passed away. These evil influences moved on in an till they merged into the ocean of eternity. In private life the impressions of early childhood were shown to be of lasting character for good or for evil. "Give me," said Shaftesbury, "a generation of Christian mothers and I will change the face of society in a twelvemonth." All of us, when we view the past with reference to our present condition, could trace back our several characteristics to the influences of such and such a one we had met in life. How sweet was the retrospect of even the aged of beneficial influences of early years, which have survived the shock of the rude scenes of long years; and how bitter was the shuddering glance thrown back over the past evil influences that had been suffered not. Those who come after us or are associated with us will receive casts of character and tones of life from our daily actions. We receive and make impressions constantly, and either give or receive good or evil according to our actions and environments. Our influence was like leaven, always at work, benefiting or injuring others, and this power for good or evil passes from one to the other in an ever-widening and, as far as we know, an ever-moving circle.

INFLUENCE IS A TALENT,

which we have to account for, and in view of this accountability, how solemn is the eternal future that confronts us with the immense consequences of our influences. In view of this, the lesson was impressed of the great responsibility that rested upon Christians. The influence of our speech and our practice of the Christian graces or the neglect of that practice had a great power for evil or good upon those around us. The speaker closed an excellent address by urging his hearers to improve the holy season upon which they had that day entered; to draw nigh and converse to the Great Example; to be themselves examples of godly living, and draw others by the influence of Christ shewn forth in their lives. After the singing of the hymn, "Stand up!—stand up for Jesus," and prayer by the lecturer, the congregation dispersed, the large attendance, earnest, hearty, service and close attention to the edifying words of the speaker, being a very pleasing augury of the success of the Wednesday evening series of Lenten lectures.

A Few Facts.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. An Ill-Assorted Elopement.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 11.—Hiram Kent, aged 70, and Rebecca Donnelly, handsome and only 23 years old, eloped from Greene county and were married by a Pittsburg alderman to-day. The groom has been a bachelor, and is the owner of many broad acres. The bride is the daughter of a neighbor, and Kent had fondled her on his knee when she was a baby. The girl's parents objected, and Kent, with the ardor of a youth, planned the elopement.

They gathered in St. Andrew's Market and marched thence to the City Hall, preceded by a drummer and a man bearing a flag, with the motto, "Bread or Work." At the City Hall delegates were sent to the Mayor asking him to say what the city could do to relieve the distress. In a speech delivered from the City Hall steps, the Mayor said the collapse of the building boom was a principal cause of the trouble, and said that the City Engineer had under construction all the works sanctioned by the council.

Sons of England Grand Lodge.

HAMILTON, Feb. 11.—The sixteenth annual session of the Supreme Grand Lodge Sons of England is now in full session. Nearly 150 delegates are present, and they are about as jolly a crowd as have struck the city for some time.

The lodge was opened by the supreme grand president, assisted by Rev. W. C. Clarke, M.A., Toronto, who acted as chaplain.

These officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Richard Ivans, Toronto, supreme grand president.

Ald. W. Hancock, Hamilton, S.G.P.

J. W. Carter, Toronto, S.G.S. (re-elected).

B. Hinchcliffe, Toronto, S.V.T. (re-elected).

The Seals Not Dying Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 11.—According to officers of the Bear and well-informed gentlemen familiar with the subject, the statements of the treasury agents on the Seal Islands presented to Congress to-day are biased. The agents, Nettleton and Goff, left the islands in July and do not know anything about the seals after that time.

In September, October and November thousands of seals were on the rookeries, more than in June and July. The story that the natives are suffering is untrue.

The Lesses had plenty of flour and all kinds of food. Before the cutter Bear left in November over 3000 seals were killed on St. George and 3500 on St. Paul's Island for winter food.

To Blow Up a Brewery.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—A man named Gibson has been arrested here on a charge of conspiracy to blow up the brewery of the Shufeldts Company. An infernal machine, the materials to make it effective, etc., were found in Gibson's possession.

Died Drunk in a Ditch.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 11.—A colored man was frozen to death near Edgar's Mills on Monday night. He, with a companion, started for home while drunk, and yesterday morning he was found in a railroad ditch with his head and shoulders out of the water, frozen stiff.

A Standing Menace.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Barley Markets.

BUFFALO, Feb. 10—The barley market was dull and weaker to-day, although there were no anxious holders to sell, but maltsters as a rule predicted lower prices, though with the large stocks of malt in their hands it would not be for their interest to have barley go lower. Baby's Face was Raw Distressing Itching Skin Disease Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got no better. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them. It is truly, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, and now he is three years old and no signs of it returning. The child was so bad I had to tie him in a pillowcase and pin his hands down so that he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA whenever I can. I would be pleased to see any one and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

FULL TEXT OF THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

A Passage of Arms Between Mowat and Meredith Respecting the Bruce Election Ontario Ministers to Take No Part in the Dominion Elections.

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—There was a large attendance in the House yesterday when His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, accompanied by Commander Law, A.D.C., drove down to open proceedings at the House by reading the Speech from the Throne. At 3 the gubernatorial equipage passed by the lines of "C" School Infantry drawn up before the main entrance of the House under command of Major Vidal. The time-honored and ever-welcome strains of "God Save the Queen" floated on the gentle and almost balmy breeze, and a minute later His Honor, piloted by Commander Law, entered the Legislative chamber and took his seat.

Mr. Speaker-elect Ballantyne announced his election to His Honor in the usual set phrases.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt, on behalf of the Throne, informed the honorable Speaker that His Honor freely confided in the duty and attachment of the Assembly to Her Majesty's person and Government, that he doubted not their prudence and wisdom, and that he would recognize and allow their constitutional privileges. His Honor would also be accessible to the Assembly on all seasonable occasions and their proceedings would receive from him the most favorable construction.

All of which being said, His Honor read the anxiously awaited annual message.

Speech From the Throne.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I have great pleasure in welcoming you to your legislative duties as members of a new Parliament.

I am happy to state that a considerable advance has been made since the last session of the Legislature towards a settlement of most of the long-pending differences between the Province and the Dominion. At a recent conference which took place between my Government and the representatives of the Governments of the Dominion and Quebec, definite arrangements were made for an arbitration to settle questions of account, and for referring to the courts in friendly actions some of the constitutional questions which have arisen; other differences are still the subject of negotiation. A settlement of most of these matters during the present year may reasonably be expected. A bill as to the proposed arbitration will be laid before you.

I regret that the Government of Quebec retains its old attitude with respect to the Land Improvement Fund, and in view of the continued delay and of the arrangements effected for the amicable settlement by arbitration and otherwise of most of the other questions in which the two Provinces are interested, I commend to your consideration the propriety of now paying over to the municipalities concerned the share chargeable against this Province without waiting longer for a settlement of the balance which is claimed to be chargeable as the share of Quebec.

I am greatly pleased to observe the increasing interest which is taken in improved methods of agriculture as evinced by the marked success which attends the sessions of farmers' institutes and by the growing demand for the reports and bulletins of the Department of Agriculture.

I take pleasure in directing your attention to the work done in promoting the public health. Through the operations of the Provincial Board, the dissemination of sanitary literature and the increasing efficiency of local boards, endemic disease has been notably less, and an impetus has been given to the construction of public waterworks and sewage systems. To aid efficient work of a scientific nature, a laboratory has been established, in connection with the Provincial Board, for investigations into the causes of disease. A bill will probably be laid before you suppl ying some defects, ascertained by experience, in the present statutory provisions, respecting the Boards of Health.

It having recently been ascertained beyond doubt that the province possesses immense deposits of nickel, a metal which is likely to be of great economic use and value in the immediate future, my advisers deemed the time opportune for making some changes in the laws relating to the sale of mining lands; and a part of the districts of Algoma and Nipissing in and near the nickel-bearing region was withdrawn from sale and location until you could be consulted. I commend to your attention a measure respecting our mining lands which is to be submitted for your consideration.

During the recess I issued a commission to inquire into the subject of prison reform, and another into the subject of the fish and game laws. The reports of the commissioners on both subjects are expected to be completed and ready for distribution during the present session, and, in case of their being received in time, bills will be laid before you for consideration.

Among other bills to be submitted for your consideration are a bill making certain improvements in the election law which another general election has suggested; bills making some amendments of our education Laws, in the light of the five years' experience which has been had since the last revision; a bill regulating the charters to be granted to loan companies; a bill securing a lien to workmen on sawlogs in the western districts of the province, and a bill to make provision respecting the marriages of Quakers and others.

The public interests and the wants of those engaged in lumbering in the northwest part of the Province appeared recently to require that a limited number of timber berths west of Port Arthur should be offered for sale. A public sale was therefore held in October last, and fair prices were realized. A return of the particulars will be presented for your information.

The public accounts for the past year will be laid before you. You will be pleased to learn that the expenditure has been kept within the appropriations, and that the aggregate revenue has exceeded the amount anticipated.

The estimates for the current year will be presented for your approval. They will be found to be framed with a due regard to economy, and to the necessities of the public service.

I feel assured that your deliberations will be characterized by wisdom and patriotism, and will conduce to the happiness and prosperity of the people.

Greek Meets Greek.

Immediately on reading the above His Honor retired, his measured and dignified steps keeping time to the clanking of the aide-de-camp's sword.

When the Speaker announced the issue of a writ for a bye-election in North Perth Mr Meredith arose. He said the writ had been irregularly dated back.

Hon. Mr. Mowat: It is a mistake.

Mr. Meredith did not think so. He did not intend to take the matter up at present, but to mention it so as to give the Government an opportunity to explain. A number of the electors of Stratford had been disfranchised.

The Hon. Oliver said if a mistake was made it was purely accidental. He would be greatly surprised if his honorable friend were right.

Hon. Mr. Mowat moved that the Speech from the Throne be considered March 10.

Mr. Meredith both acquiesced in and regretted the necessity of postponement. It made the House a kind of donkey-engine to the Dominion House. He thought, however, that under the circumstances business would not receive proper attention. He wished to call the attention of the Honorable Attorney-General to a statement made by a gentleman occupying a position in another province similar to that of his honorable friend in this province. Mr. Mercier had said that he considered it his duty to enter upon the present Dominion campaign in an official capacity. He wished to know if his honorable friend opposite held the same view. The object of the men of Quebec was, in Mr. Mercier's words, "to avenge themselves on the central authority for its refusal to give effect to the resolution of the interprovincial conference." He protested against such a thing as taking an official part in Dominion politics. Mr. Mercier wanted more money from the Dominion Government according to the proposals. The money would be spent in Quebec. It ought to be well understood that the people of this province would oppose any attempt to disturb the finances. [Applause.]

Hon. Oliver said his honorable friend knew he was not responsible for Mr. Mercier's words. He would not, however, be drawn into disclaiming hostility to the Dominion Government. He thought a change there would be a good thing. [Applause.] Sir John had disturbed the finances by grants. The proposal of the conference was the only fair and permanent basis of apportionment. An unequal increase in populations had upset the basis agreed upon at Confederation. They wished to prevent arbitrary grants.

Will Take No Part in the Elections.

The Premier added he was glad his honorable friend was now more anxious about the dignity of the House than formerly. He agreed with him that it was a bad thing to bring on the elections just now. He was glad his honorable friend thought so. He did not think his honorable friend had made much out of his observations on the motion.

Mr. Meredith replied that what he objected to was the official nature of Mr. Mercier's intentions. He had hoped the honorable Attorney-General would have disavowed sympathy with Mr. Mercier as usual when in the wrong, but he had not met him fairly.

Hon. Mr. Mowat said he was sorry his honorable friend neither expressed himself so as to be understood nor could he understand others.

Mr. Meredith: "That's very parliamentary, very."

Hon. Mr. Mowat proceeded to explain that neither he nor his ministers would take any official part in the campaign.

Mr. Meredith: "Your Quebec colleague will."

The motion carried and the House adjourned at 4.45 p.m.

FOR ARSON.

Two Years For Burning a House Belonging to His Wife.

WHITBY, Feb. 12.—Joseph Gegg of Goodwood has been sentenced by Judge Burnham to two years in Kingston Penitentiary on a charge of setting fire to a house belonging to his wife. He got drunk and chased his wife and family out of the house with a gun. He then burnt the house.

Confessed His Guilt.

LYNDEN, Feb. 12.—A young lad named James Weir of Harrisburg has confessed that he was responsible for the burning of the barns and house of Robert Nesbitt, with whom he was formerly employed. Weir's story is that he entered the house to obtain food, and while there he let the lamp fall on the floor and the burning oil set fire to the carpet. Weir then said that he returned to the barn, and whilst groping about in the dark struck his head against a beam, and in order to learn his whereabouts he lit a match, which fell amongst the straw, the fire immediately spreading over the whole building. He has been committed for trial.

For Burning His Store.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 12.—A. C. Jandall of Marshall, Mich., was taken east yesterday for trial. About three months ago the store of Jandall was burned, and shortly after the fire Jandall disappeared under circumstances which seemed to point suspiciously toward him as the author of the fire. Jandall was located at Winnipeg and arrested. Extradition was waived and Jandall agreed to return to Marshall.

Eight Hour Day for Miners.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 12.—The National Convention to-day adopted a resolution that all miners and mine workers in the United States demand the 8-hour work day May 1 next and that no miner shall remain in the mines longer than eight hours. The system of idle coal days is to be abolished and the executive committee is instructed to provide means for the enforcement of the eight hours per day system.

THE QUEBEC CALAMITY.

THE DEATH ROLL NOW NUMBERS NINETEEN,

And Will in all Likelihood be Swelled by Half a Dozen More—List of the Victims of the Explosion—Heartrending scenes.

QUEBEC, Feb. 12.—About 9.45 this morning the boiler in the Quebec Worsted Company's factory at Hare Point, on the northeastern outskirts of the city, exploded, completely demolishing the engine house and about half of the factory. The works had been closed down for two weeks while boilers and machinery were being overhauled and refitted. Preparations were to have resumed this morning and about 300 of the operators were on hand, but owing to some cause the machinery was not started and they were dismissed. Most of them, fortunately, went back to their homes, but a number remained about the building, many of them keeping in the vicinity of the engine room for the sake of the warmth. About 9.45 there was a sudden explosion, which completely wrecked engine house and dye house and damaged a large part of the main building. An immense crowd gathered immediately and the work of rescue commenced.

EMILIE BEAULI, aged 14, both legs broken and internal injuries; recovery doubtful.

W. STOYLES, dangerously bruised; recovery doubtful.

Seventeen others were slightly injured.

The cause of the disaster is not yet known, perhaps will never be known, as those that were interested in it are cold in death. It is well known, however, that some time ago one of the boilers was leaky and the company decided to have it repaired. Accordingly the hands were told that work would be suspended until the boiler would be repaired. This morning the hands returned to the works under the impression that work would be resumed. It was determined to try the newly repaired boiler, but owing to the recent severe cold the water had frozen in one of the injectors, and in order to melt it fires were put under the boiler, but when it got hot it was found that there was no water in it. Some was poured in and the disastrous explosion occurred.

A Scheme that Failed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 12.—An attempt was made to rob the Citizens' Bank to-day. The robber leaped over the counter rail and pulled a revolver on Assistant Cashier McCuaig and ordered him to hold up his hands. The robber then gathered up the loose money and putting it in a satchel started for the door. The cashier yelled police and the man was arrested.

O'BRIEN AND DILLON SURRENDER THEMSELVES TO THE POLICE.

A Meeting of the McCarthyites Decides to Fight Independent of Parnell, who Will Continue to Pose as Leader of His Party—Press Comments on the Situation.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Mr. Parnell will start for Ireland Friday, as another campaign will commence with a meeting at Roscommon Sunday. On the following Sunday a meeting will be held at Navan and on the succeeding Sundays at Drogheda, Dundalk and Newry. It is reported Parnell will speak shortly in London and Manchester.

The Times says: Mr. Parnell will make the most of the interval before the general election. He will be constantly in parliament watching the interests of the Irish people. His Sundays will be spent in addressing meetings in Ireland. Later in the year he will probably address a series of meetings in the north of England.

In an editorial The Times says: Mr. O'Brien's manifesto may rank as his first production. His lachrymose genius wails through turgid and inflated sentences like a literary banshee. Perhaps it is to reward Dillon and O'Brien's neutrality that Mr. Parnell pays Mr. O'Brien a somewhat offensive compliment.

The Standard says: It is understood Mr. Parnell took exception to the inadequate assurances given in regard to the right of Imperial veto and the question of Irish representation at Westminster. When the negotiations are definitely ended Mr. Parnell will issue a manifesto to the Irish people. The Irish campaign will be based upon the principle of resistance to clerical dictation.

The Telegraph says: Considering the circumstances, it is a serious question whether Lord Zetland might not consistently with his duty and for the safety of the Irish people forthwith quash the conviction of Dillon and O'Brien, to enable them to take such an active part in the coming war as they and their constituents may consider best for mutual protection.

The Anti-Parnellites Meet.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The meeting of the anti-Parnellite members of the House of Commons was held to-day in the committee-room of the House. Justin McCarthy presided, and was warmly cheered by his supporters. All the prominent members of the anti-Parnell faction were present. The rupture of negotiations with the Parnellites has caused considerable excitement in the political clubs. The anti-Parnellites, however, have long discounted the failure. The meeting passed resolutions of regret at the failures of the negotiations and adjourned until evening.

It was decided to convene the National committee immediately at Dublin in order to deal with the situation. Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Sexton have issued a brief official statement declaring the Boulogne negotiations were conducted upon their sole responsibility uninfluenced by any other members of their section and specifically upon the basis that Mr. Parnell's leadership was impossible. Mr. Sexton said, "Mr. McCarthy and myself had interviews this evening with Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien. Mr. Dillon expressed himself as strongly against Parnell's leadership as any member of the McCarthy section saying that under no possible circumstances would he ever again serve under Parnell and that rather than do so he would quit politics altogether.

Dillon and O'Brien Surrender.

FOLKESTONE, Feb. 12.—Dillon and O'Brien upon their arrival here voluntarily surrendered themselves to the police authorities.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Dillon and O'Brien arrived in London this afternoon and were warmly greeted by their friends. They will be taken to Ireland to-night to serve out their terms.

While Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien were held in custody at Scotland Yard, Mr. Parnell, Thomas Sexton, Sir Thomas Esmonde and Sir Henry Roscoe called there to see the prisoners.

Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien will start for Ireland on the morning train.

The Tipperary Prosecutions.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The sittings of the House of Commons on Monday and Tuesday of next week will be given up to debate on Morley's motion to censure the Irish executive for its action in the Tipperary prosecutions. On Thursday a division on the motion will be had.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Woman's Vengeance—Sudden Death of a Stock Broker.

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—A. N. Merrian of Tilt & Co., stock brokers of this city, died suddenly at 9 30 o'clock yesterday morning at his residence, 66 Isabella-street. Deceased was afflicted with varicose veins and on 4th instant, while on his way to the office, was taken with a fainting fit. Dr. Burns was summoned and he said the fainting was the result of spasm of the heart caused by interruption of circulation. Since then he has only been at the office once.

Yesterday morning he arose, washed his hands and immediately laid down upon a sofa. His wife, noticing a strange look in his face, summoned a neighboring physician. When they returned Mr. Merrian stretched out his hand and said "God bless my wife." He immediately expired. The cause of death was a clot of blood on the brain.

The Newfoundland Case.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Times' Paris correspondent says: Judging from a semi-official note, France and England appear to have agreed to arbitrate regarding Newfoundland, but a definition of what is to be submitted to arbitration is still unsettled. Both sides are very conciliatory, and in any case there will be established a modus vivendi this year, a full solution before the end of the season being impossible.

A Sudbury Miner Killed.

SUDBURY, Feb. 12.—John Hall, aged 38, was accidentally killed by the fall of a quantity of loose rock from the overhanging wall of Copper Cliff shaft, in which he along with several other men were engaged sinking. He was married only about six months ago.

Local Option Carried.

LEAMINGTON, Feb. 12.—Voting on the local option bylaw took place here. Every available vote was polled. At the close the vote stood: For the bylaw 185; against bylaw 168—majority for 15.

Diphtheria's Ravages.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Six of the children of Mr. James Perkins of Dufferin-avenue who are stricken down with diphtheria have been removed to the hospital. The oldest child, a girl of 16 years, is too low to be moved. Two deaths have already occurred in the family during the past few days.

Over an Embankment.

MASON CITY, Ia., Feb. 9.—A passenger train on the Burlington & Cedar Rapids & Northern road went down an embankment near Randalla to-day. The 250 passengers on board were badly shaken up and some were badly hurt, but none were killed. The cars took fire and burned. The mail was consumed.

Charged With Murder.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 12.—Quite an excitement has been caused here by the arrival of Chief of Police Hoy from Prescott with Thomas Utsman, his daughter, Lydia Ann Utsman, and Charles Spinks, charged with the murder of Oscar Van Camp on the night of Aug. 21, 1889. Van Camp's mangled body was found on the railway track and it is now charged that he was first killed in Utsman's house by the prisoners and the body placed where found.

Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1891.

The Present Situation.

A Wide Awake Reporter Preaches a Pithy Pointed Sermon.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir John Macdonald dissolved Parliament a year before the right time, and in so doing violated established constitutional usage.

He brought on an election before the redistribution of seats which would follow the taking of the approaching census; he brought on the election at a time when the only voters' lists that can be used are three years old. This will disfranchise 100,000 young men who have come of age and are entitled to be on last year's assessment roll as voters. It will also disfranchise thousands who are now qualified voters who were not so qualified three years.

He says he wants to get the sense of the people, but he has so managed as to disqualify the greatest number, and to get the sense of the smallest numbers of voters.

He says he does not want unrestricted free trade, he only wants what for many years he has failed to get, namely, reciprocity in natural productions, such as barley, horses, eggs, etc.

The McKinley bill is the American answer to Sir John's present platform. Has Sir John done one improper thing in loyalty to the people, or is he sacrificing the people for his personal ends? Does loyalty consist in grinning and bearing it when the Government heaps up taxes, when it sides with the combinesters in raising prices to enrich the manufacturer at the expense of the people, when it makes barley unsaleable, when it reduces the prices of eggs, when it knocks thirty-five per cent. off the value of horses? What is loyalty?

I always thought that in an agricultural country like Canada if it was well with the farmers it was well for all, for most all our wealth comes from the soil; and that if every farmer was first of all loyal to himself, all together they would be truly loyal to the country. But the new teaching is that the farmers to be loyal must submit to be robbed to enrich the few; must submit to raise produce and stock to sell for thirty-five per cent. less than actual value.

The farmer who cannot pay his debts because the government policy robs him of the price of his labor, is told that if he seeks a remedy he is disloyal; that his duty is not to complain because he has not a loaf, but to thank God for his crust, and above all for British connection, and if still they refuse to be comforted, the awful bug-a-boo—the Yankee flag, under which a million and a quarter of native born Canadians are now suffering, may cover them too. The threat is from the men who pelted Her Majesty's Governor-General with eggs and burnt the Parliament buildings in Montreal—loyal gentlemen, all! This loyalty cry has been so long in the mouth that it wears ragged—it is about as stale as the Direct Taxation cry.

The people of this country were fooled with the N.P. They are sick of it, but Sir John says he will cure them if they will only shut their eyes, open their mouth and take some more. Will this juggler fool the people again? An honest old farmer once innocently said to the Old Boy:—"Ah, yes, Sir John, all this country wants is an honest government." The Old Boy tossed his head to one side, cocked his weather eye, and, looking straight at the farmer, replied:—"And who the devil told you the country wanted an honest government?" He has played shuttle cock so long with the people of this country that his effrontery is amazing. But the funny thing is that they like it, and so long as they are bamboozled with such cries as "Loyalty," "Canada for the Canadians," &c., they will submit to be taxed and plundered and robbed. We are fast becoming a nation of slaves, working, toiling, slaving to raise money to pay taxes—to be squandered by a government which is eternally hatching and nursing such vampires as the McGreevys and Rykerts, who fatten on the hard earnings of the people. How long, oh Lord! How long?

Farming in Oregon.

Ploughing and Sowing Being Done on the Pacific Coast.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I now take the pleasure of writing you a short letter to let you know the kind of winter we are having. It is one of the finest winters I have seen since I have been here. I commenced sowing December 26th, and have been ploughing more or less up to this time. As yet, it has just rained enough to make splendid ploughing.

I finished sowing Jan. 15th, and it is making splendid headway. If a man had the making of the weather he could not have it better. I am preparing to start to sow wheat and spring oats in a day or so. All the farmers are busy ploughing for spring crops, but we intend to sow right up to the plough. The fall wheat was making such rapid growth that I had to turn my sheep, calves and hogs on it to pasture. I have sowed 40 bushels of white oats, and never saw a more promising crop, and if this weather continues we intend to sow our spring barley as soon as possible.

I can double my money in my farm here at any time. All I wish is that I had got a farm like it when I first started. I would have been a young man, whereas I am now an old one.

We have had no snow this winter and but a very light frost. The children were in the orchard gathering apples to-day.

Yours sincerely,

N. STEELE,

Sawer, Polk county, Oregon.

An Old Habit Gone, and a More Dangerous One Introduced.

The old days of blood-letting have gone by, as the habit was considered dangerous by advanced minds. Though now acknowledged by our modern physicians to be dangerous and even unnecessary, yet blood letting is less to be dreaded than the modern practice of morphine injecting for the relief of pain. It is difficult to make people understand that pain is often a sanitary measure. Nature cries out when cold or over feeding clogs the liver, and rheumatism or neuralgia is the result. These deadening drugs always weaken the debilitated system, and are fraught with great danger. The use of opiates and narcotics for the relief of pain, and as a means of inducing sleep, is fearfully prevalent in our midst, and in some quarters their use is creating disaster and consternation. Paine are really the monitors of diseases, and seldom should be checked by the aid of opiates. During the past year that great remedy Paine's Celery Compound was the means of rescuing from death no less than three victims of narcotics in Montreal. They had become extremely nervous, weak, emaciated and pale; they were sleepless, unless when under the influence of drugs, and were morose and listless in disposition. Their friends induced them to faithfully use Paine's Celery Compound, and the result is that they are now changed mortals. They have lost their craving for their former poisons, and now thoroughly enjoy life and society.

The Farmers Must Act.

A letter to the Napanee Express Allen Pringle, a Lennox farmer, tells his brother farmers that it is little use talking about scientific or unscientific agriculture at their institute meeting.

"I care not," he says, "how well a farmer may till his soil, and manage his business, or how industrious or saving he may be, if the product of his toil and of his thrift be largely wrested from him according to law."

Mr. Pringle estimates that the average farmer pays at least a dollar an acre every year in direct or indirect tariff taxes, and is disposed to think that the amount is nearly two dollars. His advice is that farmers should "cast aside party divisions and work together to lift the feet of their legislators from their necks." The farmers in the States have adopted that plan with considerable success.

A MESSAGE TO THE YOUNG MEN OF CANADA.

FROM THE TORONTO YOUNG MEN'S LIBERAL CLUB.

We ask the young men of Canada, who with ourselves, believe that by wise and careful government there can be built up in our Dominion a nation sufficiently great to inherit and put to the best use the natural resources of our common country, to give attention to the facts that, in view of the general election now pending, we desire to place before them.

We have been taunted with disloyalty, and to this we can but reply that we are loyal to Canada first, and believe that in working for the freedom of trade we are striving for a material prosperity that will go far toward binding together more closely the people of Canada.

What Young Liberals Want.

As Young Liberals we advocate and ask your assistance in advocating Unrestricted reciprocity.

The repeal of the Dominion franchise act.
The repeal of the gerrymander act.
The right to negotiate our own commercial treaties.
Manhood suffrage.
The reform of the Senate.
Honest competition for public contracts.
That our public lands and timber shall not be used as rewards for party services.

Over 100,000 Young Men Disfranchised.

By bringing on the elections on March 5, Sir John Macdonald has deprived 116,000 young men, between the ages of 21 and 23, of their right to vote.

Of the 116,000 there are 85,000 Ontario young men.

Of the 116,000 fully one-half are farmers' sons.

The popular majority of the Conservatives at the Dominion election in 1887 was 5000. These disfranchised young men would have held the balance of power twenty times over. And yet Sir John Macdonald has the audacity to say in his recent manifesto, "I appeal ..... to the young hope of the country, with whom rests its destinies for the future"!!

Another Iniquitous Result.

There are about a million names on the Dominion voters' lists. At death rate of 25 per thousand the names of 50,000 dead men are on the rolls.

There will be in addition the names of at least 30,000 absentees.

This means that a wide door is opened for impersonation at the polls, in which the Conservative party managers have always shown themselves to be adepts.

A Practical Suggestion.

But these 116,000 young men, while disenfranchised, are not prevented from organizing, in every polling division, with two definite objects in view:

First, of weeding out every dead man and every absentee from the voters' lists; watch the lists closely; be on hand at the polling booths from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and thus prevent a single bogus vote from being cast. The aggregate result will prove your power, and perhaps turn the scale in many a constituency in favor of the Liberal candidate.

Second: Place yourselves at the disposal of the secretaries of the polling sub-divisions with a view to assisting in getting out every Liberal vote. 116,000 extra votes polled through your exertions is the most practical way of expressing your indignation at your own disenfranchisement.

Unrestricted Reciprocity.

The main issue in this contest is unrestricted reciprocity with the United States. The Liberals have advocated this policy for years. Joined by nature to that country our trade cannot be hindered by customs' barriers. Our farmers and enterprising manufacturers demand a wider market. On equal terms they are prepared to compete with the American. Advocates of unrestricted reciprocity are called annexationists. Who are the annexationists when the condition of the country, brought about by the Conservative policy, is driving out thousands of our best people to the United States? Who are these vaunting loyalists but they, who when reminded that the National Policy might injure British connection, replied: "So much the worse for British connection." We believe that unrestricted reciprocity is the only preventative of annexation. By it we would obtain all the commercial advantages annexation would afford, while retaining our own political institutions. We believe that annexation has practically no adherents in the Liberal party in spite of the allegations of Sir John Macdonald to the contrary. Annexation was the cry when we were accorded responsible Government; it was again the cry when we adopted decimal currency; it is the unwarranted cry to-day; and is as dishonest and unjustifiable now as ever before.

Three things are necessary to the accumulation of national wealth. First, natural resources; Second, the application of capital to the development thereof, and Third, a market in which to sell. We have greater mineral and forest wealth than any country on the globe. But we lack capital and a market. Reciprocity, by supplying the latter, will attract the former. Canadians who have contributed largely to the rapid development of the United States only await equally favorable commercial relations to return and devote their capital and energies to their native land. Many of our young men are leaving us and taking up their residence across the line. This is the inevitable result of the National Policy.

England will not and does not oppose an enlargement of our trade relations with any country. Diplomatic questions of grave import are now perplexing British statesmen, and Canada is the cause of much friction between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States. The final amicable settlement of these difficulties, which would be effected by reciprocity, is more important to Britain than any alteration which might be made in our trade relations. Besides, British investments in this country to the extent of some eight hundred million dollars will share the common prosperity. These are considerations which weigh with the British mind and which should influence every voter.

Sir John Macdonald's Record.

What have eighteen years of Tory Government since Confederation done for Canada? What has Sir John Macdonald accomplished for our country during these two decades?

He has adopted and practiced a system of bribery that has materially lowered the tone of political morality.

He has set at defiance recognized rules of political ethics.

He has never hesitated to thwart the will of the people to gain an object or secure a doubtful end.

He has disregarded constitutional precedents with impunity.

He has assisted a few of the manufacturers to acquire wealth at the expense of all other classes of the community.

He has violated the principle of representation by population through the infamous means of gerrymander.

He has compelled his subservient followers to pass franchise legislation utterly useless, reprehensible and obnoxious.

He has squandered our timber limits and public lands among speculators and camp followers.

He has, in effect, maintained himself in power by means that are subversive of good government; he has threatened the welfare and independence of the country; he has laid the foundation of national ills that will be left as an inheritance to the young men of Canada.

He has increased the yearly expenditure from $23,500,000 in the last year of Mackenzie's regime to $32,000,000 in 1889-90.

What are the deductions? If confederation is to be perpetuated the growth of our expenditure at such an alarming rate must be curtailed and such economy observed as will bring about this result. The Liberal party have pledged themselves to do this.

The Tory Loyalty Cry.

Do not be misled by the old time Tory cry of traitor and rebel; it has met every measure of reform that has raised Canada from a crown colony to a self-governing democracy. True loyalty consists in striving for the best interests of Canada. The most loyal are not those who wave the old flag the longest and who shout the loudest while doing it. The false fiscal policy of the Conservatives has annexed a million Canadians to the States.

RECALL.

The disloyalty involved in selling the policy of the country to the Red Parlor Brigade.

The disloyalty involved in prostituting public works as election bribes.

The disloyalty involved in corrupting the public press.

The disloyalty involved "in unfairly straining the machinery of the constitution for party purposes," as Lord Dufferin puts it, in dissolving Parliament before the proper time.

The disloyalty involved in vitiating the national verdict by gerrymander.

Canada a Young Man's Country.

We as young Canadians are proud of our country, of its capabilities, its resources, its vigor, its history and its possible future. The future is ours. We appeal to you, as men desirous of the best interests of our country, to devote all your energies at this crisis in our national affairs to the furtherance of true liberal principals and the return of the Liberal party to power.

Finally, we must work out our own destiny. Canadian interests are our first concern. We would be disloyal were we to forsake those interests. We would be traitors and worthy of Sir John Macdonald's anathema were we to cease opposition to a policy which is injuring our country and alienating her most enterprising sons.

Signed on behalf of the club,

NEIL MCCRIMMON, President.
T. W. GREGORY, Secretary.

BURNED IN THEIR HOUSE.

Three Members of a Family Perish in Russell County.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—A terrible calamity occurred last night near the village of St. Albert, Cambridge township, Russell county, which resulted in the loss of three lives. A family named Lafrance lived in a small house about a mile from the village. The family consisted of old Mr. and Mrs. Lafrance, their daughter, her husband Amere Chartrand and two children. Chartrand and his wife left yesterday to visit Reeve Louis Genier of Cambridge and were away over night. During the night the house took fire, old Lafrance awakened to find himself surrounded by flames and smoke. He struggled to a window and jumped out, injuring himself severely. Old Mrs. Lafrance and the two children were burned to death in the house. The neighbors could do nothing to extinguish the fire, which burned itself out, only their remains being found. Old Mr. Lafrance was found in a shed almost frozen to death. He has not been able to speak, and there is little hope of his recovery.

FOR ARSON.

Two Years For Burning a House Belonging to His Wife.

WHITBY, Feb. 12.—Joseph Gegg of Goodwood has been sentenced by Judge Burnham to two years in Kingston Penitentiary on a charge of setting fire to a house belonging to his wife. He got drunk and chased his wife and family out of the house with a gun. He then burnt the house.

Confessed His Guilt.

LYNDEN, Feb. 12.—A young lad named James Weir of Harrisburg has confessed that he was responsible for the burning of the barns and house of Robert Nesbitt, with whom he was formerly employed. Weir's story is that he entered the house to obtain food, and while there he let the lamp fall on the floor and the burning oil set fire to the carpet. Weir then said that he returned to the barn, and whilst groping about in the dark struck his head against a beam, and in order to learn his whereabouts he lit a match, which fell amongst the straw, the fire immediately spreading over the whole building. He has been committed for trial.

For Burning His Store.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 12.—A. C. Jandall of Marshall, Mich., was taken east yesterday for trial. About three months ago the store of Jandall was burned, and shortly after the fire Jandall disappeared under circumstances which seemed to point suspiciously toward him as the author of the fire. Jandall was located at Winnipeg and arrested. Extradition was waived and Jandall agreed to return to Marshall.

Parnell is the Man.

DUBLIN, Feb. 12.—The Evening Telegraph publishes an article in which it urges Irishmen to rally to their leader. The Telegraph says it rejoices that Parnell has not allowed himself to be bullied from the leadership, claiming that his splendid generalship, political victories, imperturbable power, sagacity and strategic genius have resulted in the success which has made the Nationalists one great fighting body. The Tele graph also says that there is "nobody capable of filling his place. He has been inflexible when others vacillated. His opponents ask for his effacement without security that his effacement does not mean the destruction of Home Rule hopes."

Purify your Blood
The importance of purifying the blood in its pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditted and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

PRINCE JOHNSON.

La Pauline isn't much of a place, and yet even the train de luxe stops there. This is because this is the junction where trains leave on the little branch line that runs to Hyeres. A tall mountain stands sentinel over La Pauline, and if a person were on the top of the mountain he would see Toulon and the iron-clads, as well as a great stretch of the blue Mediterranean.

On the long platform north of the line five young men were marching up and down together, singing at the tops of their voices:

"There is a tavern in this town—
In this town.
And there my true love sits him down.
Sits him down.
And we'll hang our harps on the weeping willow tree.
And may the world go well with me—
Well with me."

Or words to that effect. They sang very boisterously, and suited their marching to the tune, giving three stamps with their feet all together when they came to the refrain: "In this town." They appeared to be American citizens, and seemingly didn't give a hang if all the world knew it.

Suddenly the five stopped before a young man who was seated on one of the benches. He was a quiet, dignified, self-possessed young fellow, and he looked up at them as they halted before him.

"Come on, Johnson," said one of the five, "we are not going to let you go back on the crowd like this. You sing bass, and we just want a good bass voice."

"You do, that," remarked Johnson, quietly, "also, five other good voices."

"See here. It's easy for you to sit here and criticise the singing, but we are not going to allow that. You've got to join in. Come on, Johnson."

"I don't see why we should make confounded idiots of ourselves in the South of France any more than we should in America."

"But we do in America, dear boy, we do. Always have done it, and we're not going back on our record. Come on, Johnson."

"I'm just a little tired of that tune, you know."

"What's the matter with the tune? It's the one Kennan sang all through Siberia. Come on, Johnson."

But Johnson would not come on, and so the five set at him and tried to force him to join them. The uniformed man of the station looked on with knitted brows, apparently not knowing whether this was a genuine row or not. Johnson held the fort and sent one after another sprawling. Then one of them desisted, and started down the long platform singing.

"There is a tavern in this town."

The others joined him, while Johnson sat serenely on the bench. The official shrugged his shoulders and evidently thought these foreigners were hard to understand.

There was a shrill whistle to the west, and the train from Marseilles came rushing in.

I walked down the long train, opened the door of a compartment that was empty, and took my seat. When the train started there was a shout of warning from the guard, and before I could look out to see what the matter was, the door was flung open and one of the singing young men tumbled in. The guard slammed the door shut with a malediction on the man who broke the rules and nearly broke his neck. The young fellow picked himself up, lifted his hat and said:

"Pardonny mol monseu——"

"Oh, that's all right," I answered, "don't mention it. If that is your usual way of getting into a train, you will find yourself in a French jail or cut in two on the track some day."

"Oh, you speak English, do you?" replied the young fellow, ignoring what I said, and seemingly surprised that he had not a monopoly of the language so far south in France.

"Yes, I can make myself understood in most parts of England and America."

"Well, then, you must have heard our row with Johnson."

"About the alleged singing? Yes."

"Well! We're just laying for old Johnson. You wont give it away, will you?"

"Certainly not."

"Well, you see it's like this. Johnson's mother was a Prince, and——"

"A princess, you mean."

"No, she belonged to the old Prince family of Boston. Johnson is very proud of that branch of the family, more so than of the Johnson side. His name is J. Prince Johnson. We used to call him Prince at college. He likes that, and that's why we call him Johnson now."

"I noticed you ran in the name Johnson pretty often."

"Of course we did. Whenever he tries to put on airs we call him Johnson, so often that he gradually tones down. Now, here's the plan we're putting upon old Johnson. I got in here so he wouldn't tumble. By the way, where is the first stop? Lend me your time book."

I threw the pamphlet over to him.

"Ah," he said, "we have half an hour yet. By the way, where are you going?"

"I'm going to Cannes."

"We're going to St. Raphael. That's this side. Better stop off with us and see the fun. It will be worth while."

"If it's worth while I'll stop. Tell me what it is, first."

"You wait till I write a telegram."

After a few moments he handed me a telegram, of which this is a translation:

Proprietor Hotel at the Monarchs, St. Raphael:

At 5 o'clock H. R. H. Prince Johnson will arrive. Provide for him. Have one carriage at station for the prince and and one for his suite. Provide suitable escort.

HON. SIR BROWN,
Chief of suite, J. K. S. N. I. X., O. K. AC.

"I think I see the plan. You are going to prepare a princely reception for Johnson."

"Exactly. He is really a quiet, unassuming fellow and hates anything like a fuss, even if he does put on airs now and then. He'll be the most surprised man you ever saw."

"I think I can tell you someone else who would be more surprised."

"Yes! Who?"

"The fellow who has to pay the hotel bill. He laughs best who makes out the bill. You will get the carriages and perhaps the escort and certainly the best rooms in the house, but when the bill comes in it will paralyze you. I know how they charge for that sort of honor. I am a duke myself."

"The devil you are! Why, I thought you were an American."

"But I never travel under my title. I can't afford it. A duke is all right at home, but on the continent I travel as Mr. Welcome Smith."

"Well, nevertheless, I think we will surprise the hotel-keeper as much as we will surprise Johnson."

"You might do it nearer the frontier, but I doubt if you will be able to evade payment here."

At this point in the conversation the train stopped and Brown got out to send off his telegram. When he came back into the train he began writing another.

"Are you going to send more than one dispatch?"

"Lord, yes! I'm going to fire a telegram from every place we stop at. I'm going to work up St. Raphael. They'll be getting returns from the back countries most of the day. That's an American phrase, you know."

"Oh, is it?"

And so the telegrams went from every stopping place until we reached St. Raphael.

It was evident the moment we stopped that there was an unusual commotion in the little Mediterranean town. The platform was studded with officials in gorgeous uniform. As soon as Johnson got out of the train we all ranged ourselves behind him and kept our hats off, while Johnson had his on his head. The eagle eye of the hotel proprietor at once took in the situation and he advanced toward the young man, bowing frequently and deeply.

"H. R. H. Prince Johnson?" he inquired.

"Prince Johnson—yes. But J. is the initial."

With a wave of his hand the proprietor introduced a gorgeous official, who at once began to read an address of welcome in French.

Johnson looked around him in a bewildered way, as if some one had hit him with a club.

"Say, boys," he gasped, "there is something off the line here. What's the fuss, do you think? Whose funeral is this, anyhow?"

"Shut up, Prince," whispered Brown. "Go through the thing and let us see what's in it. That's what we came abroad for."

When the address was finished Johnson thanked the official in a dazed sort of way and then turned to us.

"Come, boys," he said, "let's get out of this as quickly as we can."

The hotel proprietor walked by his side, bowing all the way. When we reached the outside, Johnson was aghast. Instead of getting out of it he had just got into it. At a signal from the official the town band struck up the Marseillaise and the militia that they had managed to gather together presented arms. The whole populace seemed to be there and they raised a cheer. One carriage had four horses in front of it and the carriage for the suite had two.

"Oh, this is too much," said Johnson in anguish, as he drew his hand across his brow.

"Better get into the carriage and get this over as soon as possible," said Brown. "You get in with him, duke. I guess the boss in the gold lace is going, too."

We three members of the nobility got into the first carriage. Johnson turned to me.

"Are you a duke?" he asked. "If you are, I'll bet a dollar all this is for you. It's missed fire in some way."

"They don't usually receive me in this way."

"Then Brown's put up this job on me. If he has, you bet your life I'll get even with him. I'll slay him. I'll wait until we get into Switzerland and then drop him gently over a two-mile precipice; see if I don't. Still if he lighted on his cheek it wouldn't hurt him. Brown's a villain."

All the officials of the hotel were ranged out in two rows to receive us and the people all along the route cheered.

Well, we spent a very nice time in St. Raphael. But, just as I said, when the bill was called for, it was a corker. Even Brown turned a shade paler when he saw the appalling total.

"Don't you charge for the brass band and the escort?"

"It is all inclusive," said the proprietor, with a low bow.

"Then we won't have any trouble," continued Brown. "You see we travel with ——'s hotel coupons. We bought them in London. You take them at this hotel. That's why I telegraphed to you."

"But," said the proprietor indignantly, "not for these rooms. You must give me notice when you have ——'s coupons."

"They assured us in London that they were good for the best in the house. You can't give us any better than that, can you?"

The proprietor was wild, but finally the matter was compromised on what the boys considered a square basis, which was much less than the original bill.

When we were all in the railway carriage bound for Cannes Johnson said: "Brown, this thing has been more successful than you deserve. I'm willing to let by-gones be by-gones; but there is one thing that you will all have to promise me on your word of honor, and that is that you will not let this get into the newspapers at home."

The boys all gave the desired promise that the affair would be a dead secret. Johnson said to me:

"You have no idea what ferreting villains American newspaper men are. If they get a hint of a thing, the first you know they know all about it. I think we will be lucky if we keep this from them."

The Latest London Slang.

The latest London slang is "spoof," meaning to trick, to put some wicked deception upon a man, and "wide," which means the same as "clever," "smart," "downey," "slick," etc. For instance it would take a pretty "wide" shopkeeper to "spoof" the average woman into buying any other than hawley bros.' teas.

Two More Veterans.

Mr. Charles Davis, a stalwart, and for his age, yet vigorous man, now living in Lindsay, reports that he took an active part in the rebellion of 1837-'33. He enlisted at Hamilton in the Queen's Females. His father was Sergeant-Major in the regiment, the other officers being Col. Kirby, of Lundy's Lane, Major Webb, and Capt. Thompson, of Dunnville. Private Davis served a year at Niagara, Fort Erie and Waterloo, standing guard most of the time. He received his discharge at Waterloo. Private Davis says he was promised one hundred acres of land when he enlisted, but got nothing more than his rations and clothing. He is now 83 years of age.

Mr. Robert Henderson, another resident of Lindsay, who is crippled for life, sends word that he served for six months as volunteer, with headquarters at Cobourg, being discharged May 10th, 1839.

The Merry Masquerade.

The elections are the ruling topic nowadays, but the public should not allow politics to drive remembrance of the Foresters' great carnival from their minds. It will be the finest thing of the kind ever seen here. Eighteen prizes valued at $100 will be offered for competition, costumes which won prizes at the last carnival being barred out of this. Four guessing prizes are also to be given, for which all may compete. There will be a curling bonspiel, for which suitable prizes are offered. The committee of management have made arrangements with the railway lines for cheap fares from the surrounding stations, and a large crowd of visitors is expected. The fire brigade band will be in attendance as usual. The carnival will be the grandest one of the series. Don't fail to attend. 1d

The New Archdeacon of Peterborough.

(From the Evangelical Churchman.)

The Bishop of Toronto was most happy in his selection of Rev. Rural Dean Allen, of Millbrook, to the Archdeaconry of Peterborough. The new Archdeacon has been for many years rector of Cavan. He has been most successful as a parish worker, and is loved by his people. In the Synod of the diocese, Archdeacon Allen is a familiar figure, a ready speaker and excellent debater. He possesses a thorough knowledge of diocesan affairs. The diocese is to be congratulated upon the selection of one so well qualified to fill the position. We offer to the Ven. Archdeacon Allen our heartiest congratulations upon his well merited promotion. The new Archdeacon is an Irishman by birth, and is a graduate of Trinity College, Toronto.

REFORMERS, RALLY!

The supporters of the Liberal party in the present election contest are reminded of the meeting in the Liberal committee rooms, Knights of Labour Hall, Water street, on Saturday evening, Feb. 14th. Let there be a big rally at 7.30 o'clock, to complete the organization of committees of the several wards for a thorough canvass of the town. Reformers! rally to the rooms! The time is short—the work must be sharp. Every hour of delay means loss of opportunity. The candidate to be nominated on Saturday will be present and address his supporters. Let there be a grand rally. With energetic work and thorough organization the prospects are bright for the Reformers redeeming West Peterborough.

NOTICE.

The Reform Committee Rooms, Knights of Labour Hall, Water street, will be open this (Friday) evening, from 7.30 p.m.

Mount Pleasant Templars.

A Pleasant Social and Fraternal Evening Between Peterborough and Mount Pleasant Good Templars.

Thursday evening forty members of Carewell lodge, I.O.G.T., drove to Mount Pleasant to pay a fraternal visit to the Good Templars of that village. Mount Pleasant lodge is the oldest in Ontario, and one of the most prosperous. It has been in existence continuously for the past thirty-four years, and is stronger than ever to-day. The Peterborough Templars were right royally received and entertained. They speak in glowing terms of the way the Mount Pleasant brethren and sisters treated them. They spent a jolly and profitable social evening with about fifty of the Mount Pleasant Templars, who provided ample refreshments. The visitors gave a display of the talent within their lodge and presented an acceptable programme. Mr. Geo. J. Early occupied the chair. The programme was as follows:—

Address ..... Chairman
Opening Chorus ..... Lodge Choir
Reading ..... Bro Freeborn
Ins. Solo ..... Sister Harvie
Recitation ..... Sister Kingdon
Recitation ..... Sister Mrs. Mitchell
Song—"Canilena" ..... Several Voices

REFRESHMENTS.

Song—"Broken Lily" ..... Several Voices
Reading ..... Sister Chrowe
Mouth Organ Solo ..... Bro. Freeborn
Organ and Violin Duet .. Sister S. Mitchell [and Bro. Warrington
Duet ..... Sisters S. and C Mitchell
Closing Chorus—"God be With You" .....

Short addresses were also delivered by Messrs. Isaiah Bray, Smith and Denny, of Mount Pleasant, and Messrs. King and Mitchell, of Carewell lodge.

The Mount Pleasant Templars will return the visit in about two weeks, when the local lodge hope to give as warm a welcome as they received.

Both Sides of the Case.

The Bricklayers and the Edison Company

The EXAMINER has had an interview with Mr. George Ross, President of the Bricklayer's Union, and he gives this statement of the origin and cause of the present disagreement as to terms between the Union and the Edison Company:—"When, a fortnight ago, work began, the bricklayers agreed amongst themselves to work for one week and leave the rate of pay to the Company, those workmen who might not be satisfied with that, agreeing to drop out. The Company, however, paid the men nothing for two weeks, and then the rate paid was low, being graded from 24 cents an hour for first-class workman, down to 15 cents per hour—the majority receiving under 20 cents an hour. The workmen were not satisfied with this rate, and in view of the fact that they had put up about the half of the building at 24 cents and under an hour, proceed to meet the Company half way by asking an advance to 30½ cents an hour and under for the balance of the work on the building, and the men are perfectly willing to go on and finish the building at these rates. A committee waited on the engineer of the company proposing that first-class workmen should receive 30½ cents per hour, the company having the privilege of grading other workmen according to their skill. This proposition was not met, and the bricklayers quit work and quietly went home. They are, however, willing to resume work at any time, on the terms mentioned, which they think are not extravagant considering the low rate at which the first part of the building was done."

FROM THE COMPANY'S STANDPOINT.

The EXAMINER had a conversation with Mr. Martin, engineer of the works, with regard to this matter, and Mr. Martin, in answer to a question, said that the Edison Company were not prepared to give any higher wages than were being paid the men when they struck. They have now plenty of applications from men willing to work at the old rate, but at present they did not need many bricklayers as they were doing very well with those they had, because the framing and timber work now going on would conflict with extensive brick laying operations. The men, he says, quit work first and then asked for more wages; but as they were no longer in the company's employment Mr. Martin could not treat with them. The difficulty might be adjusted, he said, by the men coming back to work when they are required, at the old schedule of wages. The company did not wish to be considered as fighting the workingmen at all, but they were not prepared to pay higher wages, and could, he said, get plenty of men at the old rate.

An Oddfellows' Welcome.

A recent issue of the Morning Herald, of Rochester, contains, among other Oddfellow items, the following concerning Mr. Robert Walton, of that city, son of Joseph Walton, Esq., Smith, and well known in Peterborough:—The special meeting of Canton Stebbins which we have twice noticed for Tuesday evening last, was for the purpose of paying a surprise visit to Chevalier Walton and his bride on their return from their wedding trip to the Dominion. The chevaliers in full uniform, marched to the residence on James street, accompanied by a few members from Genesee lodge, and, after hearty congratulations, the happy pair were each presented with a handsome chair by Grand Representative Stebbins on behalf of the canton. Brother Walton expressed his many thanks for the gifts, and invited the chevaliers to the dining room, where brother "Bob" and his blushing bride got even with the boys. The "scheme" was a success throughout, and the kind wishes expressed for the worthy couple by all present was not only very gratifying to the young host, but indicated the high esteem in which Brother Walton is held by his many friends.

For a Spiritual Song.

A Christmas story.—a poor country congregation found itself badly in want of hymn books. The clergyman applied to a London firm, and asked to be supplied at the lowest (church) rate. The firm replied that on condition the books contained certain advertisements, the congregation should have them for nothing. Necessity knows no law, and the minister reluctantly complied, thinking to himself that when the advertisements came they could be removed from the leaves. The hymn-books arrived, and—joy of joys—they contained no interleaved advertisements. At the thanksgiving service the parson joyously gave out the Christmas hymn, and the congregation sang the first verse with fervor. When they reached the last line they found that this was what they had been singing:—

"Hark! the herald angels sing,
Beecham's Pills are just the thing;
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
Two for man and one for child."

Peterborough Oddfellows.

Their Successful "At Home"—Presentation to a Departing Brother—A Most Successful Lake "At Home."

One of the most successful "At Homes," in the best sense of the term, of the many that have been held this season by different societies, was that given by the Oddfellows of Peterborough Lodge to their friends on Thursday evening. A commodious suite of rooms were made available by the opening of a couple of unused apartments alongside the lodge room, and when these were connected with the main hall, there was ample space for the large gathering present to move around and enjoy themselves. This was the first of Peterborough lodge "At Homes," and the members worked faithfully to make it the success that it was. The decorations were profuse and attractive, and displayed the ingenuity of ladies' hands in their construction. There were at least a couple of hundred guests present, and there was the most unconstrained ease and freedom in their social intercourse. Among the company the rich uniforms of the Chevaliers du Canton appeared in conspicuous prominence. Games of various kinds were indulged in until about half past ten, when the orchestra arrived. Meanwhile a brief informal musical programme was rendered, Miss Clarke (niece of Dr. Clarke) and Mr. Umpleby giving solos and piano selections, which were well received.

Refreshments were served by Messrs. Long and Hooper while the orchestra was tuning was tuning up, and then the young people entered with zest into the pleasures of the hour. The "At Home" concluded at 2 o'clock and the guests departed delighted with the evening's enjoyment, and unanimously voting Peterborough Oddfellows the right sort of men, with the hope that the would soon repeat the entertainment.

A PRESENTATION.

A very pleasant affair took place before the "At Home" was opened. The Oddfellows went into lodge, it being their regular meeting night, Bro. J. D. Tully, Noble Grand, in the chair. The object in this was to make a farewell presentation to Bro. John Mein, Past Grand of the lodge, a young and active Oddfellow who intends leaving about the 1st of March for Victoria, B. C. An address was read, the sentiments of which will be heartily endorsed by all of Mr. Mein's many warm friends and acquaintances. Bro. A. McFarlane read the address, Bro. E. Mallgan presenting Mr. Mein, on behalf of the lodge, encampment and canton, with a handsome gold watch, chain and guard. The address read as follows:—

To Bro. John Mein, Past Grand, Peterborough Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 111:

DEAR BROTHER,—Your brethren of this lodge, having learned, with great regret, that you are about to remove from the town, desire before that event, to place upon record an expression of the sentiments of respect and esteem and of brotherly regard which your life both as a citizen and an Oddfellow have awakened in all who have come in contact with you in either capacity. As an Oddfellow, especially, we can all bear testimony to the exemplary manner in which you have fulfilled your obligations and lived the principles of the order in your daily life. Both on the floor of the lodge room and in the various chairs, which have been steps to the highest in the gift of this lodge, you have shown commendable zeal and assiduity in promoting the principles of our beloved Order, and we are sure that, in the distant land where you are to make your home, you will not be found wanting when the grand principles of Friendship, Love and Truth need a champion and promoter. While we shall miss you as a companion and brother, and on that account deeply regret your departure, we still most heartily wish you God speed on your journey towards the setting sun, and wish you the fullest measure of success in whatever undertakings you may engage in; we wish you wealth and health to enjoy it—a happy home and a happy wife to share it. In earnest of our good wishes, we ask your acceptance of this watch, which we hope will, as long as you carry it, mark none but happy hours for you, and may its face remind you of the faces of the friends you leave behind you in dear old Peterborough.

Signed on behalf of the lodge,

J. D. TULLY,
Noble Grand.

MR. MEIN was quite taken by surprise, but expressed his heartfelt thanks for the kindness shown him. He would always cherish the memory of Peterborough lodge of Oddfellows, and endeavour to live as became an Oddfellow. He wished the lodge continued prosperity.

The lodge was then closed and the festivities began.

Sons of England.

The Grand Lodge Officers—Satisfactory Reports Presented.

HAMILTON, Feb. 11.—The delegates attending the Sons of England Grand Lodge settled down to business this morning. The various reports were read. That of the secretary showed the order to be prospering. The membership is now over 8,900, and last year there 26 new lodges opened. Six juvenile lodges and the naval brigade branches were also doing well.

The treasurer's report showed the receipts were $7 236 93, expenditure $4,235 55, an increase of $2 991.83. The Grand Lodge receipts amounted to $6,902.76, the general receipts were $16,856.56, and the benefit fund amounted to $6,657.87, with a balance on hand of $1 885.56

The following officers for the new year were elected:—Richard Ivans, Toronto, supreme grand president; Ald. W. Hancock, Hamilton, supreme vice-president; J. W. Carter, Toronto, grand secretary; B. Hinchcliffe, Toronto, grand treasurer. A large number of committees were appointed and got to work. A reply to the mayor's greeting was prepared and presented.

Queen Esther Cantata

Presented in the Opera House Last Night—Gratifying Success of the First Presentation—Creditable Alike to Conductor and Company—A Very Large House.

Conductor Ketcham has the right thing coming to feel highly complimented over the success of his Queen Esther Cantata last night, and to feel confident that success will be duplicated to-night. There was a splendid house, evidently expectant of a delightful entertainment, and they were not disappointed. The presentation of the cantata was made in a very creditable manner in all respects. The stage setting was admirable and in addition, the stage procession was tastefully decorated with living plants and flowers. The costumes of the several performers were strictly appropriate, many individual ones being unusually striking, the ensemble presenting a series of very pretty pictures. The Peterborough Amateur Orchestra, under Mr. Batcher's leadership, provided excellent accompaniments, besides rendering some admirable overtures and selections. The choruses were large and the balance of voices very judiciously adjusted. The singing was, as a rule, spirited and correct, and, for amateurs, the effect was very pleasing. Any person acquainted with the difficulty of training a chorus composed of all qualities of voice and degree of musical proficiency, will accord Mr. Ketcham the highest credit for the success he achieved. Some of the choruses and the accompanying tableaux were conspicuously good—the second and third acts perhaps being the most artistically excellent, in both vocalization and grouping. As a rule the solo parts were taken with credit, some being very happy in the discharge of their roles. Miss Edith Hall, as the beautiful Queen, and Mr. W. J. Dreps, as King, showed a good appreciation of the requisites of their regal assumption and sang their parts very acceptably. Mr. George Matthews, as Haman, made very pleasing progress in the several stages of his role to the high standard he had set up—for Mordecai. Mrs. Singleton, as Zurish, his faithful consort, gave a decidedly satisfactory interpretation to her part. While singing with careful effect, her dramatic action was doubtless the best of the evening. Especially, in the closing scene, was her portrayal of the emotions incident to the circumstances faithfully exhibited. Mr. W. H. Manning acted the part of Mordecai very sympathetically in both voice and bearing, while Miss Annie Dann sustained her role as Mordecai's sister, with great success. Her acting was in keeping with the character, and her singing was charming—her clear, carrying soprano being quite effectively used. Mrs. Daly as Proprietess, sang the all-too-brief part assigned her with such sweetness and effect as to create an ardent wish that she might appear more frequently in the performance. Mr. Wm. Hill, as High Priest, and Mr. R. Rose, in the character of Scribe, fill d their roles very acceptably. Special commendation for the military precision of their marching, and spirited singing of their quartette, is due Messrs. Crane, Jones, McCallum and Brooks, as Guards. Mention must not be be omitted of Misses Vina Bellegham and L. Ketcham, who as Queen's attendants, had little to do but look pretty, and they did it, too; nor of the little fairies Maud and Pearl Lundy and Ada McBain, who personated pages. Altogether the cantata was a very pleasant success whether regarded from a comic, spectacular, or musical point of regard. Doubtless the good report of it enjoyability of those who were delighted with it last night will pack the Opera house again to-night, when there will be an entire change of the cast of chief vocalists and characters and the same full and well trained choruses.

It is just to say that the creditable performance of the soloists is chiefly due to Mrs. Ketcham, who gave the vocal training and dramatic coaching. She also selected and arranged the costumes.

BURNED IN THEIR HOUSE.

Three Members of a Family Perish in Russell County.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—A terrible calamity occurred last night near the village of St. Albert, Cambridge township, Russell county, which resulted in the loss of three lives. A family named Lafrance lived in a small house about a mile from the village. The family consisted of old Mr. and Mrs. Lafrance, their daughter, her husband Amaris Chartrand and two children. Chartrand and his wife left yesterday to visit Reeve Louis Genier of Cambridge and were away over night. During the night the house took fire, and Lafrance awakened to find himself surrounded by flames and smoke. He struggled to a window and jumped out, injuring himself severely. Old Mrs. Lafrance and the two children were burned to death in the house. The neighbors could do nothing to extinguish the fire, which burned itself out, only their remains being found. Old Mr. Lafrance was found in a shed almost frozen to death. He has not been able to speak, and there is little hope of his recovery.

BIG LIBERAL MEETING.

3500 PEOPLE HEAR UNRESTRICTED RECIPROCITY EXPLAINED.

Speeches by Sir Richard Cartwright, S. W. Blake, Hon. Mr. Dryden and Hon Mr. Mardy—The Auditorium Packed to the Doors.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—The Reform mass meeting which was held in the Auditorium last evening was a grand one in point of numbers, fully 3500 being present. Not only was every inch of space occupied, ground floor and galleries, but many were unable to obtain admission. There were many ladies present, and Claxton's orchestra discoursed patriotic airs. These mottoes were displayed:

"The People Want Bread;" "No Sham Loyalty;" "N.P. Means No Progress;" "Loyalty will not allow the 'old flag' to be used to make a wigwam for Old To-morrow and His Tribe of Boodlers." "The country demands a policy that will win back to Canada 1,000,000 of her sons now in the United States through the N.P.;" "Tory annexationists of 1849 and the Loyalists of 1891;"

"Free speech, free trade, free men; 100,000 young Canadians deprived of their votes; masses not the classes; "aggregate trade with Great Britain in 1878—$85,372,719; in 1888, $79,385,705;" "Three men in a boat—McGreevy, Langevin, Rykert!"; "the Tory tariff enriches the few and impoverishes the many"; "Down with Monopoly"; "Tory Loyalty: Taxes, the Old Flag, 35 per cent."; "Five Liberal provinces will make one Liberal Dominion."

At 7.45 Robert Jaffray opened proceedings by taking the chair and introducing the various speakers.

Mr. Dryden was the first speaker, and confined his talk to the farming side of the question. He was subject to many interruptions and on two occasions the Chairman had to indignantly come to his aid and demand fair play for the speaker. Mr. Dryden was there he said, to speak for no party, but simply for himself. He told about his farming experiences and how much he loved it. On account of that he thought he had a right to discuss the political situation so far as it touches the farming community. The freest possible trade relations were what the farmers wanted. When he started to advocate free trade he was met with the cry of disloyalty. The other party unfurl the old flag and ask, "Will we ever pull it down?" [Cries of "No, no."] He was desirous of teaching his children to respect and love the old flag, but he was told that to do so properly he would have to keep them in abject poverty. The men who are doing all this unfurling are not the honest sons of toil, but those who are drawing fine high salaries, and when they see the people getting restive they wave the flag in their faces in order to hoodwink them. He denied that the farmers were prosperous under the present state of affairs. [A voice: "You seem to be."] This statement was made on this platform a week ago by a gentleman. He might say this to an audience where there was no farmer, but let the gentleman come down to Ontario county and make that statement there. He would be laughed at. All the activity on the part of the farmer was in the way of borrowing money to help himself along.

Mr. Dryden quoted figures to show thereby that the country was the reverse of prosperous. He said he was a grower of barley, and lost 30 cents on every bushel because of the tariff wall. His sheep-raising was also circumscribed for the very same reason. He claimed that the farmers of Canada lost under present regulations $7,000,000. The opposite party frighten the farmer with the bugbear of direct taxation, but it does not work successfully. Mr. Dryden ridiculed the proposition to build up an English cattle trade. Four and a half cents, or perhaps under favorable circumstances five cents, will be given for the best Canadian beeves on the English market. He quoted figures from the Chicago market to show the advantage of the United States as a field for supply. He rallied Hon. Mr. Carling on being a brewer and Minister of Agriculture at the same time. In the matter of horses he put American prices in opposition to English. In the former the price was from $200 to $250 for stout breeds, while in the Old Country $150 would be the outside figure, and even to get this the farmer would have to change his stock and methods of raising it.

"But I tell you this," concluded Mr. Dryden, "the farmers are ready with a sharp ax for the fifth of March, to make one bold blow for what I call British freedom and British fair play."

The Apostle of Unrestricted Reciprocity.

Sir Richard Cartwright met with a fine reception, the audience rising and cheering for some minutes. He was in great fighting trim. There were a number of interruptions made, but the speaker was always ready with a reply.

The first question he dealt with was the dissolution. Sir John said he did not want to submit such an important question as reciprocity to a moribund parliament. He might with equally good reason have objected to a moribund voters' list. [Laughter.] On the list were 50,000 dead men, but 116,000 live young Canadians were deprived of a vote. Sir John knew his business, and may have thought one dead vote worth two live ones. [Laughter.] The dissolution was unconstitutional. The only parallel for such an abuse of gubernatorial power was 33 years ago, when Sir Edmund Head refused a dissolution to George Brown. In each case the prerogative was grievously strained.

Taking up in order the speeches made at the Conservative meeting a week ago he said he pitied the ministers, who for years had condemned reciprocity and were now compelled to ask their audiences to believe that Sir John was really anxious for even partial reciprocity. The task was repugnant to the feelings of those unhappy mortals. There was not a sentence from start to finish in their speeches honestly advocating reciprocity with the United States.

Bowell and Thompson Tackled.

Mr. Bowell's point was that trade with Great Britain was increasing while that with the United States was decreasing. Sir Richard quoted from the Trade and Navigation returns of the aggregate trade for the year:

	Great Britain.	United States.
1887	$89,000,000	$83,000,000
1888	79,000,000	91,000,000
1889	80,000,000	94,600,000

The trade with Britain for those years showed a decrease of $9,000,000, and that with the United States an increase of $12,600,000.

"Having done with the Grand Master I will turn to his well-beloved brother, Sir John Thompson. How delightful to see brethren dwell together in harmony! As a manager of a happy family or to keep a menagerie together Sir John never had an equal." The reciprocity treaty of 1854 was negotiated not by Sir John, as Sir John Thompson said, but by Sir Francis Hincks. Sir John Thompson falls foul of Blaine, and if ever he makes an embassy to Washington again he will have to make an explanation. Mr. Blaine over his own signature has said that no negotiations were on foot for reciprocity, and that no proposal for reciprocity in natural products would be entertained. So that Sir John Thompson's statement was utterly false. Sir John Thompson said the Government had never been unwilling to treat with the United States for reciprocity. In three different sessions Sir Richard moved resolutions favoring negotiations for reciprocity which the Government voted down.

The objection that British goods would be discriminated against under reciprocity Sir Richard pronounced sheer nonsense. It was impossible to have reciprocity without discriminating against other countries.

A voice: "Annexation!"

Sir Richard: "The cry of annexation comes with ill grace from the followers of a man who has never been without a full-blooded annexationist of '49 in his cabinet." [Laughter.] Mr. Plimsoll, a few days ago, showed the true way in which Canada was regarded by Britain. The cattle trade, he said, was a matter of business, not of sentiment. Canadian cattle were admitted on better terms than United States cattle, not because Canada was a colony but because the cattle were free from contagious diseases.

Direct Taxation Not Necessary.

Sir Richard dealt at some length with direct taxation as a consequence of unrestricted reciprocity. Mr. Foster said it would require a direct tax of $3 or $4 a head, $15 to $20 a family, to make up for the loss of customs revenue from the United States. Mr. Foster must have known that the Liberals had not the slightest intention of inflicting any such tax on laborer, artisan, farmer. The statement was utterly false. The position of the Liberal party was this: If the Mackenzie Government had remained in power there would have been wise economy and this financial difficulty to reciprocity would never have arisen. But if the Liberals succeed in carrying their point the enormously increased collective wealth of the nation will enormously increase the tax-paying power. It is no part of the Liberal policy to increase taxes but to substitute one kind for another. If any additional tax were levied it would be the policy of the Liberals to spare the farmer, the artisan, the poor men who are so outrageously taxed under the present system.

Sir Richard next dealt with the loss of revenue under reciprocity. The revenue from United States imports would be lost amounting to seven or eight millions. Well, to make up for it, there was a present surplus of four millions. Then the controllable expenditure under Mr. Mackenzie was six-and-a-half-millions instead of 13 millions as at present. They could practice economy on the expenses connected with the civil service, Rideau Hall, the Intercolonial Railway, etc. They might lay their hands on the Senate.

At this point an individual in the body of the hall made some interruption. Sir Richard glared at him a moment and said: "I am afraid, my friend, we would have to tax your whisky and beer a little more." Roars of laughter followed.

It was also asserted that there would be a great loss of revenue on goods now imported from other countries but which under reciprocity would be imported free from the United States. Sir Richard characterised this as a vague vision. They had better wait to see what the loss was before talking about it. Canada would retain control of its own tariff and the United States of theirs —this was the difference between unrestricted reciprocity and commercial union. If the United States authorities calculated that after making all allowance for the action of the McKinley bill they would have a customs revenue of 190 millions. If Canada, relatively to its population, imported as much, it would have a customs revenue of one-twelfth or 16 to 17 millions from the customs. Sir Richard, however, dismissed this branch of the subject with a wave of his hand, remarking that he declined to treat of these visions, the ramifications of which no man could perceive. When this source of loss was speculated on by Foster, Thompson, Bowell, Mr. Thomson, the ex-fighting editor of The Globe —none of them knew what they were talking about. ["Oh!" "Oh!" and interruptions.] None of them can form an adequate idea of the effects which would be produced if there was full, free, unrestricted reciprocity. All anyone can say is that the wealth of Canada would be doubled or trebled in a few years, and the population would increase enormously. [A voice, "Give Sam Blake a chance!" laughter.]

Sir John's appeal to loyalty was ridiculed by Sir Richard. It reminded him, he said, of the anecdote of the horse thief who was strung up, and a friend, speaking of him, said the departed was not a model in all respects; he shot his father, beat his wife, starved his children; but in all his vicissitudes he remained true to the old flag. [Laughter.] Sir John dared to impeach the loyalty of men better than himself. "I know who burnt the House of Parliament in Montreal. I know who rotten-egged Lord Elgin. I know who rewarded the gentlemen who burnt the House of Parliament." Mr. Devin a few days ago called the Cabinet a mixture of fossils and fools. [Hisses from all parts of the house for several minutes.] A man might be known by the company he keeps. Sir John's associates were such aristocrats as John Rose, D. L. Macpherson, S. L. Tilley, who 30 years ago declared the time was come to cut the connection with Britain.

In conclusion, Sir Richard predicted that unrestricted reciprocity would ultimately prevail and sat down, having spoken with force and vigor for two hours.

S. W. Blake's Address.

Mr. Blake's lips were set in a manner which showed that as usual he meant business when he arose to speak and looked over his gold-rimmed glasses at the cheering crowd. He trusted that those in the gallery would remember that under the old flag was free speech and no interruptions. The other party had had it till 12 and he wished the same rights. We had heard a great deal about the old policy, the old flag and the old man. This was certainly a battle begun under the old policy, the old, old policy of fraud and deceit which had deprived 100,000 young Canadians of the right to express their opinion about it. Sir John had no right to dissolve the House until 1892, but it was found inconvenient to delay, because the N.P. was beginning to be known as a worse than dead failure; because men were marching through the streets with a black flag. [A voice: "Peter Ryan."] Thompson, continued the speaker, had received the usual treatment of poor men from the Conservative party—the finger of scorn had been pointed at them. It was said the country ought to be taken into the confidence of the Government on the trade question and so the election was hurried on to cheat out 100,000 young men. Referring to the "old flag" argument Mr. Blake raised his fist and cried: "I ask what liberty have those men to say that the old flag is one that waves over them and not over us! [Loud applause.] How dare they say to me that I am guilty of treason, when I wish to improve the condition of the poor at the expense of those who are already too rich?" We don't want the old flag waved over that brigade which has been stealing timber limits, coal sections, ranches, furs and all they could lay their hands on. [Applause.] We have to put our hands in our pockets when we go among such a crowd. I dare say John Small thinks it the grandest flag that ever waved when he sees it over the custom house beckoning him in to enjoy.

I want to say a word about this loyalty. I call it a bastard loyalty begotten of place and selfishness, an old nag that steps high. "Oh yes," said Mr. Blake, slowly and sarcastically, and the crowd howled with laughter, "the old policy, the old flag and the old man.' If only I had the pencil of a Beaugough how I would put the old serpent there as a fourth and the prime mover in all their doings! [Renewed laughter.] The government was talking about a trade in eggs with England. Our grand High Commissioner was sniffing about Leadenhall market and smelt some Canadian eggs, and immediately a telegram came over about a great trade in eggs. But it was found the eggs were in that condition that bastard patriots liked for pelting governor-generals. They had been shipped in the summer, [Great laughter.] You smile, the speaker continued, but I tell you an act of parliament will make hens lay in the winter. There is no use in trying to trade with Japan and China and all the Antipodes; we did not batter down the Chinese wall to put it up here, but there is a great country to the south of us whose goods we want and which wants ours. Let our cars go down full and return full. Let us try to raise ourselves to the height of true patriotism, which tries for the benefit of the generality."

As to Annexation.

In reference to annexation Mr. Blake said: "I don't believe they (the Americans) are any more anxious for annexation than we are. I myself am totally opposed to it. I propose to show how absurd this cry of disloyalty is. Twelve years ago that great voice—The London Times—assured us we were justified in making the best arrangements we could to carry on our country and they (England) would not interfere with us. Mr. Laurier declared there was no more loyal man in England than himself, because his fellow-countrymen had ten times more free dom under England than they would have had under France. But much as he loved England he loved Canada more and if friction arose he would stand by his native Canada. Mr. Laurier's patriotism was not the bastard patriotism which caused the tea party in Boston Bay." He commended Mr. Laurier to the young men as their leader—that man at once of great intellect and great ability, and, above all, of unswerving integrity; that man chivalrous to friend and foe, in whose hands my religious convictions are as safe as in the hands of the most ultra-Protestant; that man who will put the grand old flag where it ought to be.

"I ask you, young men," said he in concluding the subject, "who have asked me to speak here to-night to take Wilfrid Laurier and crown him your leader."

In conclusion he referred to the Equal Righters. They seemed with one exception to have gone out of the business—[wild shouting]—and it was well they had because the Reform party had always lived the policy of equal rights while others were talking about it. In pursuance of that they had elected Mr. Laurier, a brother from Quebec, as leader, that man who stands erect among us as a palm tree. Mr. Blake closed with a wish for victory and the words: "May God speed the right."

Hon. A. S. Hardy at so late an hour would not detain the audience. He only came to assure the country that his beloved leader and colleagues in the Ontario Cabinet were heartily in sympathy with Mr. Laurier, and hope that this campaign will be successful.

Three cheers for the Queen wound up the proceedings.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS MAD.

A Series of Resolutions Passed in the Legislature—England's Refusal to Ratify Reciprocal Relations.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 13.—Immediately after the reading of the Governor's speech at the opening of the Legislature to-day Colonial Secretary Bond proposed these resolutions:

The preamble states that on July 8 the Newfoundland delegates proposed to the British Government that Newfoundland should be permitted through Sir Julian Pauncefote to negotiate a convention for reciprocal trade with the United States. On Sept. 9 this proposal was acquiesced in and consent was given for a delegation to proceed to Washington to aid in said negotiations. On Nov. 8 Colonial Secretary Bond was advised by the British Government to return to Washington to conclude the negotiations. On Dec. 16 a satisfactory convention was arranged and accepted on behalf of the United States Government by Secretary Blaine. Though strongly urged by Newfoundland the British Government up to date has declined to ratify the convention. The resolutions declare that the House views with profound disappointment and alarm the failure of Her Majesty's Government to carry out its solemn obligations to the colony, and is aware of the interference of Canada in relation to this matter, and the House cannot fail to appreciate the same as a menace to the independence of the colony that it should be made subservient to those of the Dominion and regard the delay that has occurred in the ratification of the convention as entirely unjustifiable and evidencing an utter disregard for the prosperity and well-being of the colony. It is resolved that the delay occasioned by Her Majesty's Government in ratifying the said convention is regarded by this legislature as unfriendly to the colony and calculated to permanently disturb the loyalty for which the colony has in the past been remarkable, and it is further resolved that the legislature most strongly urge Her Majesty's Government to immediately fulfil its claim to the colony by ratifying the said convention.

TORONTO TOPICS.

$1000 Reward For the Arrest of the Ancester Murderer—The Father of Protection Dead.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—An international curling match took place here yesterday. The Portage City Rink, the winners of the Mitchell medal of '90, and Yonkers, the champion Mitchell medal rink this year, met to fight for possession of the four pairs of curling stones presented by Mr. Thorburn of Beith, Scotland. This match decided the champion rink of the Grand National Curling Club of America. The match was inaugurated in 1889, when W. Kellock's New York rink won the Gordon medal. The winners have been New York, Yonkers, Milwaukee (2), Detroit Granite, Jersey City, Four Brothers (R. Malcolm), Jersey City, Detroit Granite, Yonkers, Milwaukee, Utica, Portage City, Yonkers, Milwaukee, Yonkers and Meaford. It will thus be seen that Yonkers and Milwaukee were frequent winners of the distinction and again Yonkers is to the fore, as yesterday they won by four shots. The biggest majority ever secured was 13 and that was made four times.

JACK THE RIPPER AGAIN

ATROCIOUS MURDER IN SWALLOW'S ALLEY, LONDON.

A Policeman Within a Few Yards of the Woman at the Time—The Body Still Warm When Found—An Arrest on Suspicion.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Further particulars in regard to the woman who was found dead in the Whitechapel district this morning, and who is supposed to have been murdered by Jack the Ripper, show that she is about 25 years of age and quite good looking. She was found lying on her back, with her head nearly severed from her body. The scene of this possible latest acts of "Jack the Ripper" crimes is a dark, narrow archway known as "Swallow's Gardens," and leading from Little Mint-street to Chamber-street. The archway referred to is, during the busiest hours, a well-frequented thoroughfare, especially used by railway employes and stablemen in passing to and from their residences in and about that neighborhood to their work. At all times in the night there are people awake in the houses and pedestrians passing about and through "Swallow's Gardens," but nobody seems to have heard any cries of an alarming nature during the early hours this morning, when the crime was committed. The murdered woman belonged to the abandoned class of females and was known as "Carroty Nell." The police theory is that the woman was murdered while in a standing position, and the crime was probably the work of "Jack the Ripper," and that the murderer was frightened away by the approach of some pedestrian before he had time to mutilate the body in the manner already described in the crimes attributed to "Jack the Ripper." The blood was still warm when the body was found. A railroad employe says he saw the murdered woman talking to a man just previous to the time the murder is supposed to have been committed. The policeman who found the woman must have reached the spot while the murderer was only a few yards away, for the victim's legs were still twitching nervously and her eyes were still rolling when the officer bent over her.

A man has been arrested on suspicion of having murdered her. He is miserably clad but of refined appearance. No blood stains were found on him. He is held for examination.

The spot where the murdered womans body was found was not a stone's throw from a police station. Upon being questioned by his superior officer, the policeman who found the body said that in addition to the nervous twitching of the lips and rolling of the eyes, the woman's limbs were moving when he found her. The wound across the murdered woman's throat was evidently caused by a sharp powerful stroke and nothing can shake the belief of the police but that for the approach of some pedestrian, possibly the policeman who found the body, the victim would have been mutilated in a manner similar to that of other Whitechapel murders.

A woman has identified the remains of the victim as those of a woman named Frances, who was one of many unfortunates that haunted Whitechapel district. The witness says she left the Frances woma n early in the morning in the company of a man who had the appearance of a sailor. This man had struck and insulted the witness on her refusing to accept his offer of a half crown to accompany him. She did not like his looks and advised the Frances woman to have nothing to do with him.

THE ONLY TESTIMONIAL HE EVER GAVE.

"If it be well to wash the skin—and we never heard the proposition questioned—it is well also that we should be familiar with the means by which that purpose may be most efficiently attained.

"We once knew a beautiful woman, with a nice complexion, who had never washed her face with soap all her life through; her means of polishing were, a smear of grease or cold cream; then a wipe, and then a lick with rose water. Of course we did not care to look too closely after such an avowal, but we pitied her, for soap is the food of the skin.—

Soap is to the skin what Wine is to the stomach,

a generous stimulant. It not only removes the dirt, but the layer which carries the dirt; and it promotes the displacement of the old cuticle to make way for the new, to increase the activity of change in the skin. Now turn we to Toilet Soaps and there we find PEARS' SOAP! an article of the nicest and most careful manufacture, and the most refreshing and agreeable of balms to the skin."

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1891.

THE CHIEFTAIN AND HIS CHESTNUT.

On this continent the trend of trade is towards freedom of commercial intercourse. The official returns of the late state elections across the border have just been published, and the fact is revealed that the Republican party—the high tariff, "N.P." protection party—suffered crushing defeat at the hands of the Democratic, or Free Trade party. The Republican candidates for the House of Representatives were defeated in twenty-nine out of forty-four States. This does not seem a large majority, but its full significance is seen when it is shown that it represents an overwhelming defeat on the popular vote—the largest ever polled against them in the history of the country. The popular majority against the Republicans and in favour of Free Trade principles was the astonishing one of 919 079, perilously close to a million. This indicates unmistakably that the policy of high taxation is doomed, and another election in 1892 will give it the coup de grace. This fact removes the ground of fear that the United States will refuse to treat with Canada for reciprocal trade. In 1892 we shall likely see a free trade government in power in the United States, and early in March, 1891, we shall in all probability have a Liberal government in power at Ottawa—willing to treat on friendly terms with our neighbors for enlarged trade relations. Sir John, with the prevision he possesses, foresaw the change that was taking place or had already taken place in public opinion on both sides of the line, and he took the "sharp curve" of declaring for reciprocity, but in such a manner that he could hold the support of the combinesters and monopolists, with what he doubtless considered a good prospect of getting the farmers to support him on the strength of his friendliness to reciprocity. He, of course, knew that he could never get the reciprocity he proposed, but he fondly thought he could get the help of the farmers to retain him in power. Once seated for another five years, he would, in the interests of the monopolists, clap fresh burdens of taxation on the farmers, and working classes, the real producers, and snap his fingers at them in the matter of reciprocity, telling them that he could not get it from our unwilling neighbors. O, how sly! In the matter of cunning, a fox is a sucking lamb to Sir John. In 1878 Sir John got power largely by virtue, of promising reciprocity, and he was returned, however, by making similar promises in 1882, 1887, and now in 1891—ah! The farmers of this country should never distrust Sir John so much as when he is professing to help them. He has been using them as a cat's-paw for over a dozen years. Now the N.P. chestnut is in a very hot place, and Sir John makes a "last appeal" to the farmers to scorch their fingers by pulling it out.

To the individual farmer reciprocity will give thirty cents additional value to every bushel of barley, forty cents on every bushel of peas, twenty-five cents on every bushel of potatoes, $1 on every ton of hay; $30 on every horse worth less than $150; $10 on every horned animal more than a year old; $1.50 on every sheep a year old; seventy-five cents on every lamb, and a similar increase on every article of farm produce. Add to this the lightening of the oppressive duties on everything the farmer have to buy, and the farmer finds a double benefit from the adoption of free trade relations with our neighbors to the south of us.

Messianic Prophecy.

To the two hundred thousand Methodists scattered abroad throughout the Dominion of Canada, greeting:

The time has come, that Paul spoke of, when he said, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; and shall heap to themselves teachers having itching ears, and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." II Tim., iv, 3-4. Prof. Workman is an intellectual giant, and has done noble service for the Church of God, and I believe his aim and object in giving his new theology to the world was a good one, but he has failed teetotally in his object. Were it not that I have learned, in a measure, how to wield "the sword of the spirit, which is the Word of God," and, knowing that "my sufficiency is of God," would I dare to presume to step into the arena and measure swords with a man of Prof. Workman's calibre. Not that I am sufficient of myself to think anything as of myself, but I am confident that, by using the clear steel of the Word of Truth aright, I will be able, ere I get through, to let the wind out of Prof. Workman's big theological drum, which he has been beating in Cobourg and Toronto to the tune of Methodism, and show that he indeed is wise to a great degree "above that which is written," and that his teaching is calculated to weaken faith in the New, as well as the Old, Testament. In all his laboured efforts he does not give us one single "thus saith the Lord," that proves his teaching. He quotes profusely from a host of professors and Dutch critics, who, apparently, are as deep in the mud, as he is in the mire, of German rationalism.

HEAR THIS GOLIATH

again as he challenges the whole host of prophets, apostles, and evangelists, and who, with one stroke of his big theological sword, would fain cut out every personal prophecy from Moses, and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning Christ. He says, on page 471, "Had there been a definite, personal prediction of Christ in the Old Testament, why did not His disciples recognize it? One must reply they did not recognize it because there was nothing sufficiently definite respecting Jesus Christ in Scripture to convince them absolutely of His Messiahship." That is

GOOD PLAIN ENGLISH.

There is no mistaking the sense which our learned professor means to convey in these words. If he is right, then Christ's command, "Search the Scriptures, for they are they which testify of Me" (the Messiah), was a mockery. They only had the Old Testament at this time to search, and if there was nothing definite in Scripture respecting Christ to convince them of His Messiahship, then no blame to the Jews for rejecting Him. In the name of the Lord of Hosts we will now take a few arrows from the quiver of

THE BOOK,

And send them one by one at this stalwart exegete and his "new theology," and we pray that they may strike not only him but also his brethren who patted him on the back, and said "thank you for this new kind of doctrine; you are a Workmen that needeth not to be ashamed." I refer to Dr. Barwash, Chancellor of Victoria University, Dr. Allar, of Cobourg, Rev. Blackstock, of Toronto. If Prof. W. had not closed the New Testament on the start he would not have made such an open show of himself before the world. What did Philip say to the Ethiopian eunuch when he was led of the Spirit to join himself to his chariot? "Philip heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, understandest what thou readest? and he said, how can I except some man guide me? The place of Scripture were he read was this: 'He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and like a lamb dumb before her shearers so he opened not his mouth. In his humiliation his judgment was taken away, and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth' * * * The eunuch said, I pray thee of whom speaketh the prophet this?—of himself or of some other man? What did Philip answer? Did he say that there was no definitely personal prediction here of Jesus Christ? No; it is written, "Then Philip opened his mouth and began at the same Scripture and preached unto him Jesus."—Acts 8 32. What a difference between the two preachers and their teaching. If Prof. Workman had met this unlearned African prince he would have told him that the prophet here had no thought of the person of Jesus Christ, that his words had no original reference to him, whatever, but just by way of recommendation they would adapt his beautiful phraseology and apply them to Jesus. The poor Ethiopian eunuch would have been left in his blindness had Philip talked to him thus. Methodists, I appeal to you, can we be loyal to God or His Word or to our Methodism, and tolerate such in our colleges any longer? If we do, the very stones will cry out. If we do not rise in our strength (from among the people) and stamp out this shameful teaching, God will hold us accountable. The people can stop this kind of thing if the clergy do not. The people support these institutions, not the preachers. We love our ministers, and they are worthy of our reverence, if they are true to their calling, but it seems too bad that not one of them has had the courage to come out and say, we protest against such doctrine being taught in Old Victoria, and demand this man's dismission. I appeal to the Methodist people, use your influence against such inroads on the true principles of Old Testament theology, and let your voice be heard demanding that such teachers, as referred to, step down and out of Professor's chairs in Old Vic. Someone has said that "the modern meaning of the word exegesis is, exit Jesus." In its modern sense, Prof. W. is using that word with a vengeance. What think you, reader? Christ quotes the literal version of the Hebrew in Isa liii, 12, viz., "And he was numbered with the transgressors;" in Luke xxii, 37, and applies it to himself saying, "This that is written must yet be accomplished in me." Prof. W. says "Christ does not here declare that the original or primary reference of this passage is to Himself, 445, and that He (Christ) considered that prophecy not primarily written of himself, but of another of whom he was the, ante-type." Pg. 456. Hear that ye Methodists, who have been taught at your mother's knee, by your Sabbath school teachers, by your pastors, that Isaiah wrote of our Messiah, who has already come, when he foresaw His humiliation and also His glory, and said: "He poured out His soul unto death; and He was numbered with the transgressors; and He bare the sin of many and made intercession for the transgressors" I appeal to your common sense, Methodists. Do these words refer to any other than Jesus the Christ, who has come, "who liveth and was dead, and is alive again forever more"? If they refer to another, as this new theology teaches, then the Jews are right in expecting another to whom they do refer, and they have done right in putting to death one who would dare pretend that he was the one of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write; and we as Christians have not one tittle of ground to stand upon. Listen to the words of the Christ: "All things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets and in the Psalms concerning me." Then opened He their understanding that they might understand the Scriptures, and said, thus it is written and thus it behooves Christ to suffer," etc., Luke 24, 44, 46 Prof. Workman denies that there was any personal prophecy of "the Just One" who was to come, "to the law and to the testimony." What saith it? "To Him (not another) give ALL the prophets witness." Acts x, 43. "O fools, and slow of heart, to believe all that the prophets have spoken, * * * and beginning at Moses and all the prophets He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself," Not of some other man; not of some "ideal person" who had come in or near the time of Moses and the prophets. No, but "the things concerning Himself," His own person and mission. Hear this: he tells us that Kuenen * * the great Dutch critic, in common with other scholars, has shown that many of Ezekiel's prophecies, as well as all those Hebrew prophecies relating especially to Israel's future, are not only simply unfulfilled but impossible of fulfilment. In other words these prophets prophesied lies. "Do my prophets no harm," saith God. Prof. W. evidently believes this Dutch critic, for he tells us that Kuenen's classification of the prophecies in question is so interesting and significant as to be worthy of the carefullest consideration. "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men * * and not after Christ." Col. ii, 8 Paul, that is good advice, may we take heed to it.

The Pace is Too Fast.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MORRER, 26 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

The Result of Neglect.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No one may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claims for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

All the druggists sell that well known preparation, T. A. SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL, and no preparation for lung troubles, etc., deserves to be better spoken of. Consumptives can now take heart, for at the general office in Toronto, Canada, can be seen the highest testimonials that were ever given a similar medicine. w6w

No Shadow of Doubt.

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2w6d

OUR ACTIVE MILITIA.

REMINISCENCES OF THE NORTH WEST REBELLION.

Sentry-Go and the Queer Happenings Which Sometimes Distinguish the Raw Recruit's Idea of Guard Duty—A General's Fine Snap.

PERSONAL gain cannot be said to have much to do with inducing men to enter the ranks of the militia, as private only receives the munificent sum of fifty cents per day for the time he is under arms, and as the annual training generally takes place when men are busy and earning good pay.

A man joining the militia is bound to turn out at any time when called on, under a very heavy penalty of fine and imprisonment. During the Riel rebellion in the North-west in 1885, many prominent citizens had to shoulder the rifle and march away to "rough it" for months, and do some sharp fighting with half breeds and Indians, too. One lawyer who had to leave a fine practice in Montreal to rough it for fifty cents a day made out a very humorous bill against the Government on his return. An item which formed an important feature in his "bill" was "To unloading cord wood." Still those city men, so unaccustomed to the hardships of such a life, bore up pluckily throughout, and seemed even to enjoy it. The woodcraft of the rural corps came in splendidly on some occasions. In one in particular, where the troops had to pass a gorge through which a rapid river flowed, a halt was called while the engineer officers could draw plans for throwing a bridge across. A captain, who thought he and his men knew something about an axe and timber, set to work, and before the engineers could think the matter out they had constructed a strong and serviceable bridge, over which all passed safely.

In the annual camps some amusing incidents are often witnessed, guards and guard mounting being fertile sources of amusement in many cases, where the sentries have as much idea of their duties as they have of Otahelteian mythology. To the mind of the average militiaman it must, of course, appear to be a work of supererogation to go tramping up and down a beat for a couple of hours on a wet, dark night, and it is hardly to be wondered at if he should at such a time be tempted to seek the shelter of the nearest tent or on a fine night take a quiet snooze on the sward. Again, some sentries have a very hazy idea of the proper military respect due to the powers that be. One fine, burly fellow was sauntering along his beat, his rifle slung any way over his shoulder, when the D. A. G., Colonel ——, came past. The sentry stopped, grounded his firelock, and leaning his chin on the muzzle calmly gazed on the great man.

"Don't you know what to do, my man?" said the D. A. G., more in pity than anger. "I'm the general!"

"Ye are, are ye?" delightedly exclaimed Private ——, rushing up and shaking the officer vigorously by the hand. "You're a fine soft snap of it, I've heerd, old boy! Mind yerself an' stick to it."

"Grand rounds," too, brings out some queer incidents in camp. Colonel ——, a mild old soldier, was doing the rounds one night. On nearing the tent where the rear guard was mounted the colonel and officers accompanying him let their scabbards rattle as much as possible to have the sentry on the alert. There was no challenge given nor other notice taken of their approach, and on coming up to the tent the sentry was found leisurely stretched in front, smoking his pipe.

"Well, my man, why aren't you on your beat?" queried the colonel.

"Oh, man! I'm tired trampin' up an' down. I'm just havin' a smoke" was the reply.

"Well! well!" said the colonel hastily, as he heard a tittering behind him. "Turn our your guard. This is 'grand rounds.'"

"They're all asleep in there, long ago," was the answer.

"Tut! tut! Turn them out I tell you!"

"Don't I tell you, man, that they're all sleepin'. What's the use wakin' them?"

"Turn them out at once sir, when I tell you!" roared the colonel, getting angry at last. Slowly the sentry got on his legs, and going over to the tent put in his head and shouted: "Hey, you fellows! wakeu up an' come out here! There's an old chap wants to see you!"

A question which often crops up is that of city versus rural corps for active service. A prima facie case seems made out at once in favor of the rural men, as being more inured to the hardships of rough country life, but actual experience has shown that the city men have stood the long marches, fatigues and bad fare of a campaign with just as much pluck and cheerfulness as their country cousins. The city regiments have, of course, all the advantage in way of facilities for drilling, and are always available to turn out on short notice in aid of the civil power; but, I think, after all, for backbone the real dependence must be put on the rural corps.

The dress of the Canadian militia is one not suited to the hot weather experienced in summer. The thick cloth tunics lined with flannel are all well enough for cold weather, but perfectly unbearable in a hot time—especially to men accustomed to the loose negligé style of the hayfield and farm. It is quite common on a march to see big strapping fellows, who would stand fifteen hours, work in haying or harvesting, falling out, completely done up, after three or four miles, unable to bear the heat and constraint of tight tunic and cumbrous accoutrements.

"The "West Point" of Canada is the Royal Military College, at Kingston, Ontario, an institution which has proved a thorough success in every way. The college has turned out close on two hundred graduates since it was established, something over ten years ago. Nearly half of them are now serving in the regular army of England, in which many have highly distinguished themselves. Lieut. W. G. Stairs, who showed such gallantry and zeal in Stanley's late expedition in Africa, is a Kingston graduate, and a good fair sample of what they can turn out from that institution. Four commissions in Her Majesty's Army are given every year to Kingston students—one in the engineers, one in the artillery, one in the cavalry and one in the infantry.—Capt. Thos. S. Blackwell in Outing

Dr. Gallinger, the New Hampshire Canadian, will be the only physician in the Senate of the United States.

"Not As I Will."

Blindfolded and alone I stand,
With unknown thresholds on each hand;
The darkness deepens as I grope,
Afraid to fear, afraid to hope;
Yet this one thing I learn to know
Each day more surely as I go,
That doors are opened, ways are made,
Burdens are lifted or are laid,
By some great law unseen and still,
Unfathomed purpose to fulfill.
"Not as I will."

Blindfolded and alone I wait;
Loss seems too bitter, pain too late;
Too heavy burdens in the load,
And too few helpers on the road;
And joy is weak and grief is strong,
And years and days so long, so long:
Yet this one thing I learn to know
Each day more surely as I go,
That I am glad the good and ill
By changeless law are ordered still,
"Not as I will."

"Not as I will," the sound grows sweet
Each time my lips the words repeat,
"Not as I will," the darkness feels
More safe than light when this thought steals
Like whispered voice to calm and bless
All unrest and all loneliness.
"Not as I will," because the One
Who loved us first and best has gone
Before us on the road, and still
For us must all His love fulfill.
"Not as we will."

A Standing Menace.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are harbouring the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1.

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.
MRS. KENNEDY, 50 Smith Ave., Hamilton, Ont. 2w6d

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rossway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

This great internal and external remedy always allays all pain. It is a specific for croup, and promptly cures coughs, colds, sore throat, sprains, bruises, burns, rheumatism, cuts, wounds, etc. Good for man or beast. Sounds all traits. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents. Hagyard's Yellow Oil. 2w6d

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of York, ville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w61

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Ahead of Koch's Lymph.

Charles Campion, Kingston, Ont., says:—Gained 7 lbs. with one bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. Cured bad Bronchial Cough with a few doses and made me feel like a new man. I strongly recommend it. All druggists keep it. dw

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1891.

THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE FOR WEST PETERBOROUGH.

At the adjourned Liberal Convention this afternoon, Mr. Richard Hall was unanimously nominated as the Liberal standard bearer in the present contest in West Peterborough. Mr. Hall accepted the nomination with the same earnestness with which it was offered, and will enter into the fight with all the well directed energy and vigour which has been characteristic of his long and successful business career. Mr. Hall is well known as a gentleman of unstained honour and probity, whose actions are from conviction, founded on principle; a gentleman in whose hands the interests of the country will be safe. He has all the business capacity necessary to make a successful parliamentarian and the moral principle to make him a faithful representative of West Peterborough. He is a man whom every Liberal can heartily support—nay, whom every elector anxious for the promotion of the best interests of the county and country will find it his interest to support. It now becomes the duty of the Liberals of West Peterborough, to rally unitedly to Mr. Hall's support. He has made great personal and business sacrifices in entering the contest, and especially at this late hour. But he will not count it a sacrifice if he can be the means of serving his country or benefitting his fellow-citizens. Under the circumstances, Liberals are all the more bound to give him their support, and it is expected—nay, urged, that every worker put his shoulder to the wheel and relax no effort till victory is won at the polls on March 5th. Complete organization, persistent work, and the most persistent and unceasing vigilance are demanded. With a short, vigorous and well contested fight, there is every assurance of victory for the Liberal party.

THE issue in the present contest is the farmers' homestead and the workingman's cheap against the Red Parlour.

LIBERALS have a hard row to hoe in the coming election. They will have to fight both the living and the dead. The voters' lists are clammy with the corpses of defunct electors.

WE don't advise any man to sell his vote, but before he closes the bargain let him be sure that he can deliver the goods. That wonderful swindle—the Dominion voters' list—may not contain his name, and he may render himself liable to prosecution for getting money under false pretenses.

EAST YORK will no doubt honor itself by re-electing the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, who was nominated at a most enthusiastic meeting yesterday. The country owes a great debt of gratitude to the veteran statesman, and of late years Canadians of both parties have cheerfully acknowledged the debt and all alike are proud of his stainless record.

Temperance Sunday.

To-morrow is called Temperance Sunday in the Church of England in this diocese. When the C.E.T.S. was first formed, it was decided that one Sunday in the year should be set apart on which to make known its claim. Lent, as being a season of repentance, seemed especially suited for the purpose, and so on the first Sunday in Lent, every clergyman in the diocese is expected to preach before his congregation on this subject. His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto, has issued a circular reminding the clergy of this fact.

The Red Parlour.

Boy—Where is the Red Parlour, papa?

Father—It is where Sir John bleeds the manufacturers, my boy.

Boy—What does he want the blood for, papa?

Father—To paint the country red with, my son.

Boy—Does it hurt the manufacturers to bleed so, papa?

Father—Yes, my dear; they squeal very loud, but then he quiets them by giving them leave to bleed others to their heart's content, and then the manufacturers all laugh.

Boy—Is this good for the country, papa?

Father—Well, my boy, in old times bleeding was said to be good for everything; but the farmers are getting weak and restless under it.

Boy—And why do they stand it?

Father—They have been told by Sir John that it is good for them, and they are afraid to object, because he tells them that would be "veiled treason."

Boy—What is "veiled treason," papa?

Father—It is something that no one can see but Sir John, and so the people are awfully afraid of it.

Boy—But, papa, ain't the people foolish?

Father—Yes, my boy; but they will soon be bled white, and then their eyes will be opened. I have answered you a lot of questions, now run away to your lessons.

An Open Letter.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—In last evening's number of the EXAMINER, I notice a letter, and also a local regarding the present strike of bricklayers on the Ellison Works. The matter, to my mind, is not placed just exactly as the affair stands. The first class bricklayers who have been earning a wage of $2.75 a day during the regular season, have been cut down to the figure of $2.16. For ordinary bricklayers they are paying as low as $1.35 a day, and this when we remember that bricklayers' labourers have always for the past years been getting $1.50 a day. This low rate would not be so bad if it were full time or anything like it, but it has not been more than half time, all on account of the rough and cold weather. Just now there is one of the stonemasons lying at the point of death, his illness caused, no doubt, by his exposure to the cold while in the employ of the company. Bricklayers think, and I say it is no more than fair, that they should be paid just as much at this season as during the summer season, when they can work with comfort, and without danger of being stricken down with some disease caused by cold and exposure.

This is the time when contractors are figuring on other work in town. Are the bricklayers to expect to be paid more by them than the Ellison Company pays? If this is the way companies such as the Ellison treat their workmen it is time we should know it, if it is we can know how to act when other companies are asking for free taxes and bonuses.

Now, gentlemen, you have the whole matter from the bricklayers' standpoint and I ask you to say, Has justice been done us?

An Explanation.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Allow me to correct an impression that might, unintentionally, be given by the announcement that the Liberal Committee will meet in "Knights of Labor Hall, Water street." The hall referred to has not been used by the Knights of Labor for over a year, as their hall is now situated on Hunter street.

Yours truly,
T. H. MARTIN,
M. W.

[The hall used as the Liberal Committee Rooms was formerly the Knights of Labor Hall, Water street, and it still deserves that title, for the hard work that will be done in it the next fortnight, as well as for the sympathy the Liberal party has with the promotion of the interests of honest toil.—ED. EXAMINER.]

The Second Night.

Another Pleasing Presentation of the Charming Comedy.

The large audience which attended the second performances of "Queen Esther" Friday night were as much pleased as those who witnessed the first presentation. It would indeed be difficult to say which evening gave the most satisfaction. Friday night the piece again ran along smoothly without a serious break of any kind, and the solos and choruses were rendered intelligently and with emphasis. Perhaps the most pleasing portions of the contata, or at least those which caught the attention of the audience and won the warmest applause, were the first scene in Act IV, the Persian chorus and solos of Haman and Zerish, the solos and triumphal marches in Act V, and the finale. Here the solos were especially effective, and the dramatic action more pronounced than in the other scenes. Taken as a whole, however, it was a delightful amateur performance, and reflects the highest credit upon all concerned.

The costs of the principal characters was completely changed from the previous evening. King Ahasuerus found a dignified portrayal in Mr. E. Knowles, who was every inch a king. His commanding presence was enhanced by a full rolling bass voice, which enabled him to do full justice to the solos. Mr. Knowles is a valuable addition to the musical talent of the town. The king and queen were indeed a regal looking couple. Miss Annie Fawcett, in the role of Esther, the "beauteous Queen," sustained the character admirably in every particular. Her appearance was charming, and she sang with great feeling. Mr. W. E. Greatrex was sufficiently proud and pompous in manner and voice to suit the character of Haman. His singing was good and his representation of the role dramatically correct. Zwish, his wife, found an able exponent in Miss Nellie Wrighton, who is unanimously accorded the honors of the evening for her faithful and feeling representation of the character. Her voice seemed exactly suited to the part and her stage movements were full of force and showed an intelligent conception of the role she assumed. Mr. A. L. Davis gave a sympathetic representation of the character of Mordecai, and Miss Sophie Cameron sang sweetly and pathetically as Mordecai's sister. Miss Cameron is always a favorite with a Peterborough audience. Miss May Hesbeck's tragic impersonation of the Prophetess was well rendered, and she sang most effectively. Miss Alice Davis and Miss Eva Wrighton, as the Queen's attendants, took their silent roles with becoming grace. The other characters were unchanged. Mr. William Hill again acted as High Priest, and Mr. R. Rose as Scribe, both doing their parts justice. The quartettes of guards, Messrs. Crane, Jones, Brooks and McCallum, again performed their movements with military precision. Their singing was warmly applauded. Mention should also be made of Mr. Wm. White, who appeared as herald both nights; Miss Nelli and Mrs. Jones, attendants on Zerish, the first and second nights, respectively. Each of these had solo parts and took them well; but their names not being included on the programme it was omitted to mention their names in the newspaper reports. Another oversight was the omission of mention of the red light thrown at intervals upon the stage from a lantern manipulated by Ed. Roy. Combined with the variations of the gas-lights, the effect was striking. The little pages, Maud and Pearl Lundy and Ada McBain, carried themselves well, and the semi-chorus of children in the fifth act won hearty applause.

The amateur orchestra again lent its valuable assistance, accompanying the solos and chorus, as well as rendering a number of overtures and selections between the acts. Their music was a most enjoyable feature of the entertainment.

As the curtain dropped on the last scene little Pearl Lundy stepped to the front and presented Mr. Ketcham, the conductor, with a handsome large bouquet.

The national anthem was sung by the full chorus as the closing number, and after the curtain fell Mr. J. C. Brown, from the gallery, on behalf of the audience, thanked Mr. Ketcham and his company of singers for the excellent entertainment they had provided the public. All who attended the cantata will heartily endorse Mr. Brown's remarks, and hope that he may soon place another similar performance on the stage.

Mr. Ketcham entertained the singers at Walsh's restaurant after last night's performance. Nearly eighty persons sat down to an oyster supper served in good style. Mr. Ketcham evidently appreciates the faithful work of his company, and they in turn accord him and Mrs. Ketcham a full meed of praise for their self-sacrificing efforts in bringing the presentation of the cantata to so much a pitch of excellence as it attained.

The Beet Sugar Industry.

Important Meeting of Farmers at Harwood.

A largely attended meeting of farmers interested in the beet sugar industry took place at Harwood Friday. There was a good representation of the farmers of Northumberland and Peterborough counties, between three and four hundred being present. The meeting was held in Bruen's hall. The following were present from this county:—

Warden F. Eimhirst; Messrs. M. Sanderson and H. C. Garbutt, Smith; Jos. Forster, Monaghan; John Moloney, Douro; A. R. Kidd, Dummer; Jas. Moore, Asphodel; Geo. Stewart, Otonabee; Dawson Kennedy, President West Peterborough Farmers' Institute; F. Birdsall, President East Peterborough Farmers' Institute; R. S. Birdsall, W. Rutherford, H. Calcutt, Wm. Collins, Joshua Smithson, Jos. Miller and M. J. Johnston.

Mr. Russell, president of the Northumberland Farmers' Institute, presided.

The first speaker was Mr. LAUDER, who gave much valuable information concerning the importance of the beet sugar industry and the extent to which it had been developed in European countries, and went on to show that it could be successfully carried on here. He said granulated sugar, which sells for eight and ten cents a pound, could be made for four cents a pound. Over a hundred samples of beets grown in different parts of the Province were tested at the Ontario Agricultural College and only one was found to lack the necessary saccharine matter.

Mr. Ogden Hinch, of Napanee, Reeve Bowman, of Hamilton township, Mr. Westington, Lt.-Col. Boulton, Mr. Dawson Kennedy, Mr. Guillett, M.P., Mr. Elmhirst, Mr. McNaughton, of Cobourg, and others spoke on the subject.

Mr. KENNEDY said that if developed, the growing of sugar beets would afford a good relief to grain growing, which was overdone. He also advocated establishing dairy schools.

WARDEN ELMHIRST also said the deputation from Peterborough was there for information. He hoped to see the thing a success, and if the farmers there succeeded, that would not prevent the farmers of Peterborough from following their example.

Resolutions were passed the same as at the Cobourg meeting, regarding the advisability of establishing a beet sugar factory in the Rice Lake district, and asking assistance from the Dominion and Ontario Governments.

Votes of thanks were passed to attending delegates, and on motion a committee was appointed, consisting of the Presidents and Secretaries of East and West Northumberland and East and West Peterborough Farmers' Institutes to gather information regarding acreage, and report to Mr. Calles, Secretary, Campbellford, on March 10th.

Mr. MOLONEY, reeve of Douro, acknowledged the vote of thanks to the Peterborough County Council deputation.

Mr. BIRDSALL brought up the question of the Farmers' Institute annual picnic. The subject was well received, and the farmers promised to unite this year again, as they consider it one of their own especial institutions.

A Serious and Fatal Fire.

A few days ago some of our daily papers gave a brief account of "a house badly gutted by fire and one life lost." The writer, anxious to obtain particulars, visited one of the boarders, who narrowly escaped death, and from him gleaned the following:—

"Fred was one of the boarders, and slept on the same flat with me. He was awakened as soon as I was, but seemed to have lost time in dressing and trying to save his effects. I urged him strongly to seek refuge and leave all behind, as the fire was fast gaining on us, as the smoke was very dense. My warnings and entreaties were of no avail, and I was obliged to save my own life.

The writer, moralizing seriously, came to the conclusion that this brief story might prove a warning to thousands to-day who are in positions of danger and peril.

That there are thousands in our land to-day who are placed in positions as perilous as was the victim of the fire referred to, cannot be denied. The treacherous and deadly fire of disease has already been kindled in the bodies of many Canadians, in the form of overworked and tired out brain, unstrung nerves, a used up feeling, sleeplessness and headaches. Allow these symptoms to run on unchecked, and the fierce, sharp flames of morbidness, paresis and insanity will soon follow, which will almost surely put an end to life.

For all sufferers, shut off from the joys and pleasures of true life by these dreaded ailments, there is only one avenue of escape—one life preserver for all; it is Paine's Celery Compound. By its timely use life is saved, and the victim of disease and suffering placed on solid ground, to go on building up a new and vigorous constitution and a healthy appetite.

Paine's Celery Compound restores and strengthens the whole brain and nerve system, which is the great structure of a healthy body. Try it, sufferers, and you will have cause to bless its great discoverer.

A Few Facts.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered to the converts and others to-morrow afternoon.

Fire in Harvey.

On Friday night last, says the Independent, Mr. Jacob Hicks, Harvey, lost his barn by fire. Fortunately there was not much in it at the time. How it caught fire is a mystery, as it is some distance from the house and not used. A fire in Harvey is rather an unusual occurrence.

The hereditary scrofulous taint afflicts the the large majority of people, while many they acquire diseases from impure air, improper food and wrong indulgences. It cures scrofula, salt rheum, humors, boils, pimples, and all other affections caused by impurities or poisonous germs in the blood. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them for 6 th Full's and in one week the boy looked better. TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

Canadian Press Association.

The annual business meeting of the Canadian Press Association was commenced yesterday in this city under the most gratifying auspices. There was a large muster of newspaper men in various grades. President Patullo was in the chair.

The Executive Committee's report recommended the election of Lud B. Cameron, H. Hough and Roy V. Somerville as honorary members, that delegates be sent to the meeting of the National Editorial Association at St. Paul's next July and also that the secretary be directed to collect statistics from all the newspaper offices of Ontario as to the amount of capital invested in the newspaper business, the number of men employed, the aggregate rate of wages paid, the total annual expenditure of the business, etc. The report was adopted.

Advertising rates were discussed in a paper read by J. S. Brierly, St. Thomas Journal; "Rural Journalism," by A. F. Pirie, Dundas Banner: "Journalistic Imposition," John Cameron, London; "Pictorial Journalism," J. W. Beaugough of Grip; "Higher Training of Journalists," by William Houston.

His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor was at home yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 to the members, to meet whom a number of prominent citizens were invited. Among those were Hon. G. W. Allan, Hon. Mr. Mowat, Principal Caven, Rev. G. M. Milligan, Rev. J. A. McDonald.

In the evening there was a first-class banquet at Webb's. Covers were laid for 75. Among the guests were Hon. Oliver Mowat, Prof. Goldwin Smith, Dr. Daniel Clark, R. L. Patterson, J. T. Johnson, H. E. Smallpiece of The World, Fred. Dyer of the Central Press, C. B. Robinson of The Presbyterian, and the majority of those who had taken part in the day's proceedings. Music was supplied by the Grenadiers' Band and the speeches were of a very high order. The banquet was a great success.

A TORONTO MURDER.

A DISSOLUTE WOMAN KILLED BY HER PARAMOUR.

A Shocking Case of Brutality—$5000 Worth of Jewelry Seized by Customs' Officers—General Notes of Interest.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—The customs authorities on Saturday morning seized from a man called Samuel Close about $5000 worth of jewelry on the charge that the goods had been smuggled into Canada. Close had been trying at various brokers to raise money on the goods and had not succeeded.

No. 11 Ontario-street, known to the police as an unsavory dive where the illicit sale of whisky and still more flagrant violations of the law have long been carried on, was the scene on Saturday of the death of Jane Harding, the circumstances surrounding which point to the commission of a brutal murder.

About 11 o'clock on Saturday night word was sent to Wilton-avenue Station the Jane Harding had died at No. 11 Ontario-street under circumstances of grave suspicion. Policeman Ed. Brown and Detective Watson were detailed to investigate, and as a result of their inquiries they placed Christopher McGrain under arrest on a charge of murder and notified Coroner Pickering.

Dr. Pickering reached the scene of the alleged crime at 1 o'clock on Sunday morning and, after hearing the statements of several inmates of the house and examining the body of the dead woman, ordered an inquest to be commenced at the City Morgue at 8 o'clock this evening, where the body is now lying.

Coroner Pickering, on examining the body, found marks of finger nails on the throat and left wrist, fully bearing out the statement of one of the inmates of the house, a girl named Annie Wilson, who will be the most important witness against McGrain. Her story, as told to the coroner and the police, is as follows:

On Saturday morning she was down stairs when she heard screams of "murder" proceeding from the room in the upper flat occupied by McGrain and the woman Harding. Running up the stairs she burst the door of the room open and found McGrain with his right hand choking Jane Harding to death, at the same time gripping her left wrist with his left hand. She shouted to him to stop and told him if he did not she would call the police. McGrain thereupon dropped his victim, who, black in the face, fell in a heap on the floor. She revived sufficiently to allow herself to be led downstairs. While in the act of descending McGrain rushed out of the bedroom with a piece of chamberware and threw it down on her head.

The Wilson girl took Mrs. Harding into the sitting-room and she lay down on a sofa, from which she never rose alive. She complained all day of her throat, and towards evening Annie Wilson, becoming alarmed, wanted to have a doctor called in and the woman's married daughter sent for. McGrain would not consent, telling her to mind her own business and that "the old woman was all right."

At 10 o'clock Jane Harding died, and it was not until then that a medical man was summoned. Dr. Ghent answered the call, but finding the woman dead went away. Then the police were notified and McGrain arrested.

A CHICAGO RIOT.

Unsuccessful Attempts to Employ Non-Union Labor at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—An attempt was made yesterday to put a gang of Italians at work in a secluded portion of Jackson Park, which is now being graded in preparation for the World's Fair, but the pickets of the idle crowd discovered the ruse, and armed with sticks and stones made a dash upon them, the Italians fleeing in all directions. The discovery was also made that the carpenters at work on the temporary structures were receiving less than union wages, whereupon a delegation of union carpenters waited on them and gave them 15 minutes to quit work. Some obeyed and those who did not were pitched off the scaffolds. So not a stroke of work in behalf of the World's Fair is being done to-day. Some of the Italians were caught later and forced to run the gauntlet between two long rows of idlers, who pounded them with sticks as they ran

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

London's Scandal, the Zetland-Balfour Fund and Free Trade.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—In the House of Commons Mr. Henry Matthews, Secretary of State for the Home Department, replying to questions as to the legality of the baccarat games played at Mr. Arthur Wilson's house, Tranby Croft, at the time of the Doncaster race meeting last autumn, and where the scandal which disgraced Sir William Gordon-Cumming occurred, said that he had been informed that the playing referred to was not a contravention of the laws against gambling.

Mr. Timothy M. Healy renewed his question of Chief Secretary Balfour in regard to the Zetland-Balfour Fund. Mr. Healy asked the Chief Secretary if the fund referred to was an effort of private benevolence, and why, if such was the case, it was administered by magistrates and police and Poor Law officials.

Mr. Balfour replied that the Earl of Zetland and himself did not consider themselves precluded from using officials to distribute the fund. If others, he said, volunteered to assist in the work they would be employed.

"Can other benevolent agencies secure the same assistance?" asked Mr. Healy.

To this Mr. Balfour replied; "If the honorable member for North Longford will confide any plan to me I shall be happy to consider it."

At a meeting of Conservative members of Parliament and influential representatives of the British colonies to-day, called to consider the trading relations existing between the colonies and the Mother Land, a committee was appointed for the purpose of organizing a free trade association.

A Strike Averted.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The officials of the Donaldson line of Glasgow steamers having conceded the demands of their seamen and firemen for higher wages the threatened strike has been averted and their vessels will sail as usual.

Peterboro's New Bishop.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Canon Mandell Creighton, professor of ecclesiastical history in Emmanuel College, Cambridge University, since 1884, has been appointed Bishop of Peterborough.

HE IS JACK-THE-RIPPER

AT LEAST THE LONDON POLICE CLAIM SO.

The Murderer of Carrotty Nell Believed to Be the Fiend Who Has Slaughtered Half a Score of Fallen Women in London—Sensational Developments Looked For.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The police seem confident that they have at last nabbed the notorious Jack the Ripper, but the general public is skeptical as to the fact of the murderman with bloody clothing being the hero of the dozen murders which have preceded that of Frances Coleman, or "Carroty Nell." It is quite likely that he committed the last crime, but there is nothing to connect him with the long series of similar atrocities which have terrorized the Whitechapel district. The police authorities are being censured for having relaxed the vigilance with which until recently the district haunted by the "Ripper" was guarded. The last crime is attributed to this negligence, just as the long immunity from these horrors since the last previous butchery is attributed to the extreme activity of the officials. It seems like pretty good evidence of the correctness of this theory that it was only a fortnight ago that the precaution of wearing rubber boots was given up by the patrolmen of the district. The noiselessness with which the constables went their rounds made such murders as that of "Carroty Nell" impossible, or too risky to be attempted by even the daring "Jack." But the sound of an officer's approaching steps, audible a long distance at night, served as a guide to the whereabouts of the minion of the law, and made crime comparatively easy.

Undoubtedly the Man.

The saddler who was arrested yesterday on suspicion was conveyed heavily guarded to the Arbour-square prison to-day. He was lately a fireman on board the steamer Fez, from Turkey. A formidable looking knife has been traced to his possession. He will be formally charged with the murder to-morrow. Startling revelations are expected.

When taken into custody blood was found on the prisoner's clothes. He has been absent from England for 18 months, or about the period which has elapsed since the last Whitechapel murder. A woman detailed as a witness asserts she saw the prisoner quarreling with the murdered woman early in the evening before the crime was committed. A policeman who was on duty on the streets in the vicinity of the crime has identified the prisoner as a man he met about a quarter of an hour after the murder. The policeman, noticing that the man had blood on his clothes, stopped him and asked several questions regarding the blood stains. The man replied that he had been assaulted while passing through a street in the neighborhood of the docks. The policeman, not being aware that a murder had been committed was satisfied the man was telling the truth and so allowed him to pass. The prisoner's face is badly scratched, as if by a woman's finger nails. When questioned the man said he was scratched when he was assaulted near the docks. The prisoner stoutly denies having at any time met the murdered woman.

Experts who have studied the former crimes of "Jack the Ripper" say there is no doubt that this latest murder must be added to the list of that wretch's enormities. Like the others, this woman belonged to the "unfortunate class," and like them, she was not of the vilest grade in that class.

The Location of the Crime.

Another similarity is in the location of the crime, which was committed in a place comparatively public, and yet screened from immediate observation. The unfortunate women of Whitechapel, who had got over the terror created by the murders of some time ago, are again fear-stricken, and gather in groups to discuss the latest tragedy and wonder who will be the next victim. The location of the tragedy is near the city boundary in the vicinity of the docks, and vile in some respects than the scenes of the "Ripper's" former crimes. For this reason, had not the officer actually stumbled over the body, the "Ripper" might have returned to his horrible work after the policeman had passed, and the officer's statement indicates that the murderer was waiting in the darkness with this object when frightened into retreat by the officer's detection of the body.

Constable Thompson is the most unhappy man in London to-night, as he feels that he had the most noted criminal of the age almost within his grasp. The inquest will be held to-morrow. Meantime the police are scouring the city for suspicious characters and Sir Edward Bradford has spent all day in his office directing the operations.

The Previous Murders.

The following is a list of "Jack the Ripper's" previous murders:

1. April 3, 1888.—Emma Elizabeth Smith, 45 had a stake or iron instrument thrust through her body near Osborn-street, Whitechapel.

2. Aug. 7, 1888.—Martha Tabram, 35, stabbed in 20 places, George Yard Building, Commercial-street, Spitalfields.

3. Aug. 31, 1888.—Mary Ann Nicholls, 47, throat cut and body mutilated, in Buck's-row, Whitechapel.

4. Sept. 8, 1888.—Annie Chapman, 47, throat cut and body mutilated, Hanbury-street, Spitalfields.

5. Sept. 30, 1888.—Elizabeth Stride, throat cut, Berner-street, Whitechapel.

6. Sept. 30, 1888.—Catharine Eddowes, 45, throat cut and body mutilated, Mitre-square, Aldgate.

7. Nov. 9, 1888.—Mary Jane Kelly, throat cut and body mutilated, in Miller's Court, Dorset-street.

8. July 7, 1889.—Woman, supposed to be Alice McKenzie, from Peterborough, throat cut and body mutilated, in Castle-alley, Whitechapel.

9. Sept. 10, 1889.—Elizabeth Stride, found under a railway arch in Pinchin-street, Back Church-lane, Whitechapel.

In addition to the above-mentioned crimes other murders of women have taken place, the perpetrators of which have not been brought to justice. Among them are: (1) Oct. 2, 1888, mutilated remains of woman found in New Police Buildings, at the Westminster end of the Victoria Embankment—unidentified; (2) Dec. 31, 1888, woman found strangled in Clarke's yard, High-street, Poplar, afterwards recognized as Maud Millett, 26 years of age; (3) June 6, 1889, and subsequent days, mutilated remains of a woman found in the Thames, afterwards identified as the body of Elizabeth Jackson, 36 years of age.

DAVITT AS A PROPHET.

HE SAYS NO PARNELLITES WILL AGAIN BE ELECTED.

London's Scandal Ventilated in the House of Commons—The Zetland Relief Fund—Several Sailors Suffocated in Their Bunks.

DUBLIN, Feb. 15.—Michael Davitt addressed a meeting at Mountrath, Queen's county, to-day. Speaking on a resolution expressing confidence in Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Davitt denounced the land purchase bill, declaring that only an Irish parliament could adequately deal with the question. Neither Mr. Parnell or any of his followers, he said, would be returned at the general election, and the longer the controversy lasted the more determined the Irish people would become in their opposition to Mr. Parnell. Mr. Parnell's followers, he added, would regret the day they took Mr. Parnell's advice. The mention of Mr. Parnell's name was received with cheers, which caused so much disorder that the police had to intervene, and the meeting dispersed in confusion.

Cecil Rhodes.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—London society just now is greatly interested in the visit of Cecil Rhodes. He is a self-made man of great simplicity of character. He possesses more than £2,000,000, which he devotes to the development of South Africa. The Duke of Fife entertained him at a dinner, which led to a remarkable gathering of public men. It is not often that one sees such notable persons as Lord Salisbury, Lord Knutsford, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Gladstone, Sir William Harcourt, Lord Herschell and the Prince of Wales dining at the same table. The Prince of Wales talked for more than an hour with the hero during the evening. Mr. Rhodes was once an admirer of Parnell. He contributed £10,000 to his campaign, but has now refused him any further help.

The Shipping Federation Ultimatum.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The shipping federation has issued an ultimatum which declares the dictation of the unions is unbearable and that the federation will refuse to employ any man unless he pledges himself to embark on any vessel with which he signs articles whether the remainder of the crew be unionists or not. The federation disavows any intention to interfere with the unions or to reduce wages.

Osman Digna is Still Alive.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—A despatch from Cairo states that Osman Digna is said to be near Tokar, and that his followers are deserting him.

In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Fergusson said that the occupation of Tokar and Handoub was designed to relieve the district of Suakin from plundering dervishes, besides reopening the grain trade of the interior. No expense, Sir James added, would fall upon the English treasury.

A despatch from Massowah states that Osman Digna is threatening that point, and that he is urging the tribes which have been allied to Italy to desert the flag of that country.

Two Sailors Suffocated.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—A fire early this morning on the British steamer Calliope lying at Newport from Bilboe caused considerable damage to the vessel. Two of the steamer's crew who had been ashore in the early part of last night carousing were found after the fire was extinguished dead in their bunks, having been suffocated by the dense smoke.

The Clergy and the Irish Quarrel.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The McCarthy faction of the Irish Party, disheartened by their Boulogne experience, are appealing to the clergy to come to the rescue, and Archbishop Walsh has been requested to head the movement of anti-Parnellite organization. The Archbishop has, it is stated, consented to give the indorsement of his presence to an anti-Parnellite meeting in Dublin this month. Mr. Parnell substantially demands an independent Ireland and until that is granted he will continue to fight. The McCarthyites are in very straitened circumstances, although this aspect of the quarrel receives but little public attention. It is said that several of them are dependent upon the charity of their colleagues.

A Baby, a Bottle, a Coffin.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 15.—The 3 year-old child of Mr. Simpson, an employe of Galt Bros., got hold of a bottle of whisky and drank so much that he died.

POISONED BY STRYCHNINE.

Death of a Little Child Due to Its Parents' Negligence.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Quinn of Bellford had occasion to go to Westport to transact business, leaving their premises in charge of a young man. Quinn left on the table a bottle containing strychnine, which he kept in the house for poisoning foxes. Their little boy, 3 years old, noticing the bottle on the table and thinking it contained sugar, took out some of the deadly drug and spread it on a piece of bread, which he ate. In about an hour the child was a corpse.

THE LAST SPIKE DRIVEN.

Washington and British Columbia Joined By Rail.

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 15.—The last spike on the track which unites the State of Washington and British Columbia was driven at 11 o'clock yesterday in the presence of about 3000 persons from both sides of the line. The Fairhaven & Southern roads form the American line and New Westminster Southern the British Columbia. The trains arrived at the boundary line on which the new city of Blaine, Washington, and Blaine, B.C., is situated. The rails were placed in position and Governor Laughlin of Washington, Governor Nelson of British Columbia; President Hendry of New Westminster Southern; President C. X. Larrabee of the Fairhaven & Southern drove the spikes and then Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Laughlin with small silver hammers drove them home.

Governor Laughlin expressed the wish that no blow might ever be struck between the two countries, except in friendship, and three hearty cheers went up from the crowd. Governor Laughlin described the line as dividing the state and province as only imaginary and expressed friendship and good-will for the people of British Columbia.

The following telegram was received from James Blaine, Secretary of State, the city being named in his honor:

To the Mayor and Citizens of Blaine:

It is with most kindly feeling that my thoughts turn towards you and your British brothers to-day while able to perform the ceremonies of connecting your wonderful countries in commercial union, and it is my most earnest wish and hope that the bonds from to-day by you may be not only of commercial union but of grander and nobler brotherly love that will unite in the end as two nations in one perfect union, and both your port of entry, which your Congressmen inform me will be established, you will be placed in a position to open a grand gateway of two mighty nations. May success attend your undertaking and good-will and peace be with you all.

The committee's report states that the act for inspection of live cattle exported from the United States has brought about a gratifying increase in exports.

MANY SERIOUS FIRES.

New Westminster, B.C., Visited by a $300,000 Blaze—A Falling Wall Fatally Injures One Man.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Feb. 15.—At 5 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the wooden building, 715 Columbia-street, occupied by F. Stirsky, watchmaker and jeweler. All the buildings in the west half of the block containing eight stores were wooden and were in a short time levelled to the ground along with one residence and the main office of the local telephone exchange. The Masonic and Oddfellows' Block, occupied by several merchants, the registry office and government offices on the second floor and lodge rooms on the third floor, was also gutted, together with its contents. Total loss will foot up from $175,000 to $200,000 and insurance about $80,000. About 11 o'clock part of the north wall of the Masonic block fell out and a hack driver named Fred McKinnon was caught by falling brick, both legs and one arm being broken. He will die.

$15,000 Fire at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Feb. 15.—This morning the section of the First Congregational Church discovered that the hall in the rear was on fire and that it had communicated to the roof from the furnace. The firemen were alarmed, but the roof of the hall and part of the church were destroyed. The interiors were damaged by water and smoke so that a complete removal will be required. The property is worth $30,000 and is insured for $15,000. The damage is about $18,000. Restoration will be immediately begun.

A Hospital in Rochester Falls a Victim to the Flames.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 15.—At 11.20 to-night a night watchman at St. Mary's R. C. Hospital discovered the eastern wing of the hospital to be on fire. A general alarm was sent in and firemen responded promptly. There were 250 patients, 19 nuns and a large number of employes in the building, but so far as is known all were taken out uninjured. The entire east wing of the building was burned. To-day is the golden jubilee of Mother Hieronymo, who has just completed her 50th year as a professed nun and who founded the hospital. The occasion was to have been celebrated with much ceremony to-morrow.

Fire in the New York Postoffice—Two Newsboys Badly Burned.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—At 10.30 o'clock last night, while the clerks in the Mail-street side of the postoffice were receiving and distributing mails from the steamer Celtic, the electric lights were suddenly extinguished. A moment afterwards smoke puffed up from below and that end of the building rapidly filled with dense smoke. The engine and dynamo rooms adjoined each other, in them the fire was burning. It is thought the electric wires became crossed and set fire to the wood-work. After an hour's hard work the fire was extinguished. The damage done is estimated at $10,000, but Superintendent Hall of the newspaper department says not a letter was burned and none of the 1900 bags of foreign mail newspapers were injured except by water.

Two newsboys named Guiseppe Michaeli and John Gerueseon were taken out from the elevators badly burned. The former has since died.

A Blaze in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—Fire supposed to have been caused by the grounding of an electric light wire last night gutted the large building here occupied by Thompson & Cox, dealers in carpets. Loss $175,000.

Fierce Flames in Yokohama.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—Advices from Yokohama say that on the night of Jan. 15 fire in the House of Representatives and the House of Peers destroyed those buildings. It was rumored that the fire was incendiary, but others said it was started by an electric light wire. The cost of the two buildings was $2,370,000. Three firemen were badly injured.

Queen of the Hawaiian Islands.

HONOLULU, Hawaii, via steamer to San Francisco, Feb. 15.—Workmen were busily engaged in preparation for welcoming King Kalakaua, who was expected to return from the United States improved in health when the United States steamer Charleston was sighted early Thursday morning Jan. 29. Decorations and arches of welcome have been torn down or turned into emblems of mourning. The Charleston, bearing the body of King Kalakana, arrived in Honolulu harbor on Thursday, Jan. 29, seven days from San Francisco. Crowds of natives and foreigners gathered at the landing to obtain the first news.

The native women, as the Charleston came to anchor, set up a loud wailing. At 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, amid the booming of minute guns from the warships in port and the batteries on shore, the king's body was landed and received by a guard of honor composed of sailors from the Charleston, Mohican and Nymph, headed by the Charleston band playing a funeral dirge. A procession was formed and moved to the palace. The streets were packed with people and the air was filled with wailing and lamentations as the cortege entered the palace.

The coffin was placed on the bier in the middle of the throne-room. On it were placed the King's crown of state, his sword and royal feather cloak. That evening the Cabinet met and issued a proclamation proclaiming the Princess Lilinokalani Queen of the Hawaiian Islands with the title of Lilinokalani.

BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY.

The Prospects Placed Before the Farmers.

Mr. Lauder Shows What Profits there are in the Business—A Number of Resolutions—Peterborough is the Place for the Beet Sugar Factory.

A rather slimly attended meeting of farmers was held in the new market building on Saturday for the purpose of discussing the beet sugar industry. The attendance was not a very encouraging indication of the interest taken by the farmers in this subject, but doubtless the political convention being held at the same time had an adverse effect. Mr. Jas. Stevenson occupied the chair.

Mr. LAUDER, the gentleman who has been deputed by the promoters of the industry to gain the opinions and co-operation of the farmers, was the first speaker. He quoted statistics to show the extent to which the manufacture of beet sugar has been developed in Germany, France, Austria, Denmark and other European countries. To form an extent of the land cultivation for beets in Europe, he said a few years ago over 1,800,000 acres were cultivated for this purpose, and since that report other countries had undertaken the industry. The speaker read a few extracts, showing the immensity of, and still immense possibilities in, the beet sugar business, and the interest it was exciting in the United States Speaking upon Canada, Mr. Lauder argued away some objections which were argued against the industry here. The causes of failure of the factories established in Quebec some years ago, was due solely, the promoters said, to the fact that the farmers did not supply the quantity (now quality) of beets they had promised. A Mr. Schaffe, who managed one of the factories in Quebec, and had studied the question, felt confident that the industry could be made a success in Canada, and from the results of experiments which had been made at the Agricultural College. He says that the soil of this province is adapted to the

and there is money in it. Another objection sometimes was that Canadians would have to be careful, as all European countries gave immense bounties to the sugar industry, and that otherwise it would languish. Mr. Lauder showed from figures that the bounties only amounted to five per cent. of the proceeds of the industry—a proportion which he thought no municipality in Canada would object to paying if the industry was established. It was ascertained that better results were obtained from factories conducted on a large scale than on a small scale, therefore, the promoters of the present scheme were determined not to enter on it unless they had large support. One advantage Canadians would have is that they would have the benefit of the fifty years' experience of European countries in the way of machinery and cheapness of production; and there was no doubt that, even if no duties were barged, beet sugar could be made here as profitably as in Germany, where, despite newspaper statements concerning the failure of the industry, interest was increasing on all sides. The uncertainty of the present high duty, $2.70 per hundred, on sugar coming into Canada, Mr. Lauder said, they felt ought to be reduced, and they would rather a moderate tariff, with assurance that it would be retained. Then capitalists would feel safe in putting their money into the industry; but they were afraid to do so under the present uncertain high tariff. Mr. Lauder made some statements concerning factories in the United States, where the beet sugar was rivalling cane sugar. A California report stated that the only assurance needed of the success of the industry was the

and their unanimous support in raising the necessary kind and quality of beets. In this respect Peterborough had the advantage of cheap and plentiful labor, soil especially adapted to the growth of sugar beets, unexcelled water privileges and cheap coal—important items all. Mr. Lauder then spoke more particularly concerning the raising of beets. Mr. Lauder said seed had been sent out to farmers and samples of the product sent to laboratories for analysing. The average quantity of sugar in the Canadian beets was not equal to that of German beets. The average weight of the sample beets sent to the laboratories was 1¼ pounds. The average yield showed over 20 tons to the acre.

Mr. ORDEN HINCH, of Napanee, reported an extraordinary yield—55 tons from a plot of ground 30 feet square. It was estimated that beets could be raised for $35 an acre, according to Mr. Carlow, of Northumberland, who raised 26 tons, which, at $4 a ton (a low price), would amount to $104. Deduct the $35 from this for expenses and there is a profit of $35 an acre. Mr. Lauder's calculation was that if beets were planted in rows eighteen inches apart, the beets nine inches apart in the row, with no misses, over 24 tons would be raised to the acre. As to the price, the promoters of the industry propose to give $4 25 a ton delivered at the factory and $4 at a convenient railway station. They expected an average of 14 per cent. of sugar in the beets, and would give an advance of 25c. a ton for every additional one per cent. of sugar in the beets. By close attention to cultivation, Mr. Lauder believed the farmers could easily get beets averaging at least 15 per cent. Mr. Lauder gave figures to show in the future of sugar from beets. For instance: A ton of 16 per cent beets would cost $4 75 to raise and there would be $3.05 left for manufacture and profit.

THE PROFIT THERE WAS

The practice in Europe is for the companies to raise the beets on their own land surrounding the factories. Beets were tested in a satisfactory way also. Mr. Lauder read from a report showing that land derived benefit from beet produce, because only fallow land was generally used in their growth and the grain area not diminished, and the beets furnished good fodder for cattle and the land received splendid manuring, from which the benefits were surprising. We now import, he said, about 200 000 pounds of sugar annually, one-fifth of which was raised from beets and made in Germany. There was no reason why this could not be raised in Canada. There was some misapprehension that beet sugar was not as good as cane sugar. The fact was beet sugar when properly refined was not distinguishable from cane sugar. No care was necessary to make beet sugar at all. There was also practically no difference in the price of the two sugars. In reply to a question regarding the waste material of beet sugar factories, Mr. Lauder said the beet pulp sold for fodder at about a dollar a ton. It made good feed to fatten cattle, good as ordinary mangolds or turnips. The patrons of the factory were also given free of charge the syrup off the refinery.

As to the proper time for pulling the beets, Mr. Lauder said the beets should ripen from 15th September to 15th October.

WHERE TO LOCATE.

This resolution was then put:

Moved by Mr. STOTHART, seconded by Mr. DAVIS, that the farmers of the county of Peterborough desire to strongly recommend to the consideration of the promoters of the proposed beet sugar manufactory, the advantages to be derived from the location of said industry in the town of Peterborough, which is in the centre of a farming country well adapted for the cultivation of the sugar beet, and which possesses unrivalled shipping facilities and water privileges.—Carried.

GOVERNMENT AID.

It was also moved by Mr. C. D. MOORE, seconded by Mr. ALEX. FITZGERALD, that this meeting of farmers of the county of Peterborough convened for the purpose of considering the advantages to the farming community arising from the cultivation of the sugar beet, and the manufacture of sugar therefrom, is strongly of opinion that every encouragement and assistance should be awarded the proposed industry, and hereby memorializes the Ontario Government to grant such aid to the early construction of a factory as may seem reasonable and in the interests of the farmers of the Province.—Carried.

EXEMPTION WANTED.

Mr. DAWSON KENNEDY moved, seconded by Mr. FERGUSON,—That the farmers of the county of Peterborough, in this meeting assembled, desire to express the favourable impression they have received of the process of manufacturing beet sugar outlined by Mr. Lauder, and the advantages that will accrue to the farming community therefrom, and should the proposed industry be established in this locality, to undertake the cultivation of a sufficient quantity of beets to supply the factory at the price named.

Mr. KENNEDY supported the resolution with some remarks encouraging the farmers to enter into the industry, which required no capital and incurred no risk. He asked Mr. Lauder, if, the right quantity of beets being guaranteed, there was a good prospect of the factory being established here. Mr. Lauder replied that the prospects were as good for it being established here as anywhere.

Mr. R. M. DENNISTOUN urged the farmers to take the matter up and make it a success. The town council was moving in the matter, hence this meeting. It would be to the interests of the farmers in this district to have the factory established here. The promoters of the scheme propose to get $300,000 into the industry, so that there would be no risk to the farmers. Mr. Dennistoun urged the farmers to act promptly and not allow the farmers along the front to get ahead of them in this factory.

The resolution was carried.

NO DUTIES.

It was moved by Mr. D. P. MCFARLANE, and seconded by Mr. DAWSON KENNEDY, that the farmers of the county of Peterborough hereby memorialize the Dominion Government to remit the customs duties on imported machinery to be used in the construction and equipment of a beet sugar factory, as they feel assured that the proposed industry will open a new and productive system of agriculture to the farmers of this Province.—Carried.

Mr. LAUDER, in conclusion, said he had laid the matter before the farmers, and it rested with them to act. If they wished the company to consider any proposal to establish a factory, they would have to appoint a committee to ascertain definitely whether the necessary amount of beets would be raised, for, unless that was done and there was any failure of supply, the factory would be a failure.

The meeting then adjourned, and Mr. Lauder remained behind for some time and gave further information to enquirers. He also showed samples of the sugar beet and the sugar produced from it.

Getting on in the World.

From the cradle to the grave this question meets us at every turn:—"How are you getting on?" and it is remarkable how often the answer depends on the state of our health. If the health is good the answer can be generally made: "very well, thank you." And if these unfortunate persons who are unable to make this happy reply would give a fair trial to Beecham's Pills, when they are suffering from dyspepsia, disordered liver, sick-headache or any of the many other ills resulting from a diseased physical or nervous organization, they would find immediate relief. w8d

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.

MRS. KENNEDY, 50 Smith Ave., Hamilton, Ont. 2w6d

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rosseay, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Pulmonic for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

No Shadow of Doubt.

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2 6d

WE cheerfully recommend any preparation that stands as high as SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL. It has crept into the confidence of the public solely through its merits. For wasting diseases of throat or lungs all druggists will testify to its efficacy. w8ws

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the Cancer is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

WEALTH FOR CANADA.

THAT IS WHAT THE EXPERIMENTAL FARMERS PROPOSE TO GIVE.

Description of their Aims—Increasing the Weight of Cereals and Searching for Secrets for Farmers—A Work that Deserves Every Encouragement.

The dictum of the philosopher who said that the man who made two blades of grass grow where before but one blade grew deserved to be honored by his kind, has never been called in question. The only wonder is that the universal acceptance of the aphorism has not led more men to devote themselves to this species of well-doing. It is not so immediate or so spectacular a way of earning fame as by butchering one's way through savage countries or playing fast and loose with the commandments, and has perhaps on that account been somewhat neglected. Nevertheless the task which is so commended by the philosopher quoted is the one that the officers of the experimental farms have set before themselves, and any measure of success which they may attain will redound to the advantage of this country and perhaps in a measure to the world at large.

The first of these farms, the Central Experimental Farm, just outside the municipal limits of Ottawa, was established in 1887. Since that time branch farms have been established at Nappan, N. S., at Indian Head, N. W. T., and at Agassiz, B. C.

THE AIM.

The purpose for which they have been established is often misunderstood. One meets so many people, who fancy that the object aimed at is to show farmers how land can be cultivated with profits large and sure. Undoubtedly it is intended to discover how farming may be made to yield the largest returns for the labour expended, but it never was expected or intended that the piece of ground on which the discoveries are made was to show a balance on the right side of the ledger. The title, experimental farm, ought to be expressive of its intent and mission.

The observant eye can see all about in garden and field the effects of human intelligence applied to the growth of plants. The evolution of the single petaled wild rose into the multi-petaled queen of the garden is an excellent and familiar example of what may be done by intelligent and continued processes of selection and cultivation. Your luscious Fameuse and Northern spy are the haughty descendants of the humble sour-veined common crab-apple. There is scarcely a fruit that has not been improved out of resemblance to its plebeian ancestor by care and cultivation. What has been done for these luxuries of the eye and palate may be measurably accomplished for other more necessary if less aesthetic or appetizing productions of nature. A single seed of wheat was found in the hand of an Egyptian mummy. It was planted and was found not to have lost the reproductive powers which had lain dormant in it for centuries of harvests. The grain grown from this old-world cereal was not unlike and not appreciably inferior to the grain grown in the world to-day. No noticeable improvement had taken place in that important product during the long lapse of years. What does this betoken? Are we to account for it on the presumption that the cultivation of the necessary cereals was brought to its limit of perfection early in the history of our race, while the improvement of such luxuries as fruits and flowers has been left for the leisure-time of the world. There is doubtless a large amount of truth in this supposition, but true as it may be there is ample room for the belief that to keep any product up to its best standard requires unremitting and intelligently directed effort. This unremitting and intelligent effort cannot and should not be left to the unaided efforts of the individual cultivator, but is very fairly a task that governments should assume on behalf of man's earliest, noblest and most important employment.

Take two of the lines of enquiry and investigation that have been already pursued by these experimental farmers. That is the discovery of a good wheat whose time of ripening is so early that it would have a better chance of escaping the early frosts which have been such a discouragement to North-west wheat growers. Investigation of this problem has been steadily followed, and in Ladoga wheat, which ripens on an average a week or ten days earlier than Red Fyfe, they believe they have discovered what is wanted. If Ladoga wheat establishes itself to be capable of producing as good flour as the Red Fyfe who shall calculate the benefits to this Dominion of the selection and trial of this particular variety of an indispensable staple.

The other branch of enquiry I shall mention is that directed to increasing the weight of our barley and oats by the selection of good varieties. Sixty-four million bushels of barley were harvested in this country last year. Supposing the average value to be one cent a pound, it is easy to calculate that if the efforts of Prof Saunders and his officers succeed to the extent of increasing, even by an average of one pound per bushel, the weight of barley it will add by one stroke $640,000 to the revenues of the barley-growers of the country.

I will not mention the efforts directed towards encouraging the growth of the two-rowed variety of barley as most readers are familiar with that matter. These two examples will indicate the ends towards which the efforts of the officers of the experimental farms are directed.

STIRRING THE SPIRIT OF ENQUIRY

What I have always considered as one of the most important features of the Experimental farm system is the spirit of enquiry which it stirs up among farmers. Let it be remembered that this year the officers of the Central farm are in communication with 14,000 farmers throughout the length and breadth of this country. That is the number who have sent in their names and addresses and to whom each bulletin is mailed as it comes out. To 6000 of these farmers over twelve thousand three pound bags of sample grains were distributed. When it is considered that each of these farmers will be a centre of experimentation in his own neighborhood—that he will be sure to communicate his experience and talk up his successes to his neighbors—it can be appreciated what a vast agency of educative influence the farm will already be and how much greater it will ultimately become. Any farmer who enlists in his name will periodically receive the farm bulletins and if there is any grain distribution will get his quota to experiment with, the only condition of the distribution being that he shall communicate the results obtained. An elaborate record is kept of the seed distributed—to whom distributed and the result from year to year as gleaned from the annual reports returned by the recipients. By this means the officers get a vast mass of evidence laid before them in regard to their seeds under all sorts of conditions of soil, situation, treatment and weather.

SEED TESTING.

Another feature of the farm work is the testing of seeds. A farmer who is doubtful as to the fertility of his seed many send in a sample free of postage to the Central farm, Ottawa. The sample is carefully tested and the percentage of fertility in a short time communicated to the sender. From this report he can decide whether his seed is to be trusted or not.

The question of the value of ensilage has received a great deal of attention from the experimental farmers, and during last year an interesting bulletin was issued on that subject. Ensilage is one of the revolutionary features of modern farming.

I must not exceed my space and therefore have only room to give a mere catalogue of the subjects that form matter of experiment, and upon which bulletins will be issued from time to time.

THE OFFICERS.

Not the least important of these is stock-raising and dairying. These are comparatively recent additions to the branches of the farm. They are under the care of Prof. J. W. Robertson, one of the first dairymen of America. Good stock has been purchased and a dairy-house recently erected. The entomologist and botanist Mr. James Fletcher is a man of most blood-thirsty propensities, who is never content except when devising some means of encompassing the wholesale destruction of those insect enemies which make the farmer's life a burden. Mr. J. R. Craig, the horticulturist, has his lines laid in pleasant places. His life at the proper season is one long round of strawberries and cream—at least, if he stands in with the dairyman he will be able to procure the latter part of the combination. But, seriously Mr. Craig's work is not the least important on the farm, as everything that tends to sweeten and ameliorate life on the homestead must be considered to possess the highest value. Mr. F. T. Shutt, the chemist, one of the most promising students of science that Toronto University has turned out, has a part to perform that would want a separate article to properly set out. Enough to say here that it is his duty to pluck from the very heart of nature her deepest secrets, to turn the lantern on her most profound operations, trace plant life to its very source and essence, until at length there shall be no more haphazard groping, but that farming shall be conducted in the clear daylight of knowledge, sure, discovered and noted. Mr. A. G. Gilbert is the poultry-man and conducts his part of the establishment with the precision and care of a scientist. Over these is Professor Wm. Saunders, the director, not alone of the Central Experimental farm, but of the whole system of farms. And what I say of him, I can say of all the officers with whom I have came in contact. Their work is done in no mere perfunctory spirit such as government work is too often performed. They are an enthusiastic brotherhood, the farm a modern Port-Royal, where problems most important to humanity are laboriously, conscientiously and unwearyingly spelled out. Their efforts are confined to no set hours of labor, but at all times and seasons with the zest of the true elucidator and discoverer they carry on their labors which are indeed their own reward.

THE LIBERAL CONVENTION

Mr. Richard Hall the Unanimous Nominee.

He Heartily Accepts the Nomination—Enters Actively Upon the Work of the Campaign—Speeches Endorsing Mr. Hall's Candidature—An Enthusiastic Meeting—Vigorous Work and Victory the Watchword of the Campaign.

There was a very large attendance at the adjourned convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough in the Opera House on Saturday. The spirit shown by those present indicated that the idea of letting the West Riding go by default had not only not been entertained, but that on the contrary there was a deep-seated and settled determination to redeem the riding and return a supporter of the principles and platform of the Liberal party. The chair was occupied by Mr. M. Sanderson and on the platform besides him were R. Waram, W. McAllister, Walter Paterson, Wm. Rutherford, Peter Hamilton, George Ball, R. McGregor, J. R. Stratton, M.PP., George Rose, C. J. Leonard, L. Leplante, F. Fairer, D. Daly. After the meeting had been called to order,

MR. PETER HAMILTON said that the contest this meeting was designed to be the beginning of, was not a contest for party but one of self defence, to resist the encroachments of the Dominion Government, and he urged the electors to unite to fight for their own interests. He went on to say that according to our constitution the people were responsible for the Government of the country, but, as the electors could not get to Ottawa as a body, a representative was chosen who, no matter what party he belonged to, represented the whole people of a riding, and he (Mr. Hamilton) had no sympathy with the slavish subserviency of a member of parliament who, in extenuation of the crime of a bad vote, pleaded that he was sent to parliament to support a certain leader. (Cheers). Mr. Hamilton, continued, denouncing in vigorous terms the iniquity of the Dominion Franchise Act, based on a list prepared in 1885, with one revision since, with the consequences that thousands are disfranchised, thus stifling a full expression of public opinion. The Dominion Franchise Act arrogated to the Government, what would be tyranny if wielded by the Czar of Russia. The electors were urged to unite to resent this outrage upon their fellow citizens, which might, for aught they knew, be repeated upon them at another election. He was pleased to inform them that, since the last convention, a candidate proposed at that convention had consented to become a candidate. At that time the nomination had been "sprung" upon Mr. Hall—(cheers)—he had not an opportunity of consulting with the one of the two business partners of the firm, one being out of town. But since that time Mr. Hall had consulted with his partners and friends and the result was, even at this late hour, a hearty acceptance of the nomination. (Cheers.) It was with great pleasure, Mr. Hamilton said, that he proposed Richard Hall as a candidate. (Loud cheers.)

The nomination was seconded by Mr. MARTIN LEONARD, of Eamismore, and carried unanimously by a standing vote.

MR. HALL, on coming forward, was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. He said he could not find words to express his thanks for the great honour done him in making him the candidate of the Liberal party for West Peterborough. He was making a great sacrifice in both business and personal matters in so doing, but the demands made upon him by the party he was proud to be a member of, put him in the position of accepting as a public duty the position of candidate of the Liberal party in West Peterborough. He went on to say that, he placed himself in the hands of his friends. Owing to his not very robust state of health he would depend upon his friends to do a great deal of the hard work of the canvas. He, however, would by no means be idle, as he would use his best endeavors to win a victory for the cause of the Liberals with which he was so heartily identified. Of course it was out of the question to think of his seeing all the electors personally in the short time that remained. He must therefore depend upon his friends to assist him, and, with united effort, he could see that success would crown the battle of the Liberal party in this riding on the fifth of March. He closed by saying that as the time was short earnest work should be entered on at once.

Before the convention adjourned a few short ratification speeches were made.

MR. C. J. LEONARD was glad to be present to endorse the candidature of Mr. Hall, who was a strong and excellent candidate. Referring, amongst other cries to the disloyalty cry, he, as a Canadian, repudiated the dastardly accusation of "veiled treason." Canada was a country of magnificent resources, and a perfect constitution founded in the blood and sacrifice of noble men—based upon the rights of the people to select their representatives in Parliament. This the Dominion Government, by the iniquitous Franchise Act, had denied the people, and if it was disloyal to stand up for the free expression of public opinion at the polls, then he was disloyal to the end. He went on to point out that the Conservative party with their policy of driving thousands of young men from Canada to build up another country were the real traitors, and the party that advocated the policy that would develop the resources of the country and retain the population in the county to assist in its development and give its inexhaustible resources a chance to expand were the true loyalists. He urged that the work of electing Mr. Hall should begin at once and be vigorously carried out.

Short addresses, endorsing Mr. Hall's candidature heartily and extolling the policy of the Liberal policy, were made by Messrs. Wm. Rutherford, Richard Waram and Wm. McAllister. They spoke as farmers, and pronounced it just what would meet the farmers' needs. They followed a few brief speeches upon the relation of the workingman's interests to the Liberal platform.

MR. GEORGE BALL pointed out that the promised prosperity of the farmers under the N. P. had been falsified. The price of farm produce was governed by the price of free trade England, and if a man got a dollar a bushel for his wheat there, he got his dollar's worth of value if he spent in free trade Canada, but if he spent in "protected" Canada with a tariff of 40 cents he only got the value of 60 cents for his grain (cheers). He showed that the farmers would make most important gains if a policy of unrestricted trade were inaugurated. Referring in the most commendatory terms to Mr. Hall, he said that he was in Mr. Hall's employment for three years, and his experience was that Mr. Hall was the decentest man to his employees in Peterborough. He said this with no idea of carrying favour for he was in busines for himself, but because it was true, and he could say that there was no better practical friend of the workingman (cheers) in the country, and he felt sure that with hard work he would be elected. (Cheers.)

MR. ROBERT MCGREGOR entirely endorsed what had been said. The labouring men were more inclined to the Liberal party, because they had got more justice from them in the past, and had more hope in the future, and that accounted for the position that he and other workingmen took in the present crisis.

MR. GEORGE ROSE also endorsed what had been said in Mr. Hall's favour, and showed that the Liberal party was the true friend of the "masses" as against the classes.

MR. J. R. STRATTON, M.P.P., said the large attendance was complimentary and encouraging to Mr. Hall. It showed that fight was meant and he insisted that vigorous fight was necessary. They had an opponent who would leave no means unemployed to gain his ends. He went on to point out that a vigorous campaign had been instituted, and he mentioned the numerous meetings that had been announced, and the means adopted to perfect organization and ensure the success of the campaign. Owing to Mr. Hall's not too robust health he had made it a condition of accepting the nomination, that he should not be required to undergo the hardship of a country campaign. That condition had been met and he (Mr. Stratton), with others, were going to take the country and use every means compatible with honourable effort to bring victory to the standard-bearer of the Liberal party on the fifth of March. And it could be done with a continuation of the energy and vigorous work that had marked the Liberals in the beginning of the campaign. While it would be a pleasure to hear from more of the farmers present, it seemed to him that it was better to begin work at once, and he would, therefore, suggest the adjournment of the meeting by proposing three cheers for the Liberal candidate and three cheers for the Queen, which were given with the most hearty enthusiasm.

Campaign Notes.

Vigorous Work For Mr. Hall Begun—Organization and Attack.

The Liberal Party is entering into the contest with a vigour and energy that presages success.

On Saturday evening a very large and enthusiastic meeting of the supporters of Mr. Hall was held in the Liberal Committee Rooms, Old Knights of Labour Hall, Water street. Addresses were given by Messrs. Richard Hall, Peter Hamilton, W. A. Stratton, E. B. Edwards, R. R. Hall and others. After which the work of organization in the town was very satisfactorily effected, and full preparations completed for a most energetic and aggressive contest of the Riding. If the hosts of workers who are rallying to Mr. Hall's standard, and the spirit of enthusiasm and vigour that animates them, are any indication of the result of the present contest, then there is the brightest prospects of the Liberal candidate being triumphantly returned.

The Opening Gun in the East.

The first organized meeting held in Mr. Rock's interest was held at Westwood on Saturday night. The town hall was filled with a large and enthusiastic meeting. Mr. Wm. Sharp occupied the chair. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Blezard, M.P.P., Mr. Rock, Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.PP., Peterborough, and Mr. C. J Leonard, Peterborough, whose addresses were listened to with great interest. Mr. Kidd and Mr. Stone also delivered addresses, but their remarks were received with little favor, the audience evidently thinking that the trade question was the paramount issue in the present contest. The hearty manner in which Mr. Rock is being received indicates that he is certain of being returned for East Peterborough.

The Equal Rights Convention.

A Fairly Attended Meeting—Unsuccessful Effort to Bring Out a Candidate—Mr. Carnegie not the "Man For Galway."

A fairly attended mass meeting of the Equal Rights were was held in the Orange hall, George street, for the purpose of nominating a candidate. Mr. A. R. Kidd, the Equal Rights candidate for the East riding, occupied the chair, and Mr. John Carnegie, the unsuccessful candidate in the West riding last June, performed the duties of secretary.

Addresses were delivered by Messrs. Wm. Graham, E B Stone, C. W. Sawers, Robt. Weir and others. At length, after considerable discussion and conferring, the name of Mr. John Carnegie was submitted as the candidate to contest the West riding. The nomination was carried, but not unanimously, some who advocated a postponement of the nomination till another meeting, refraining from voting either way.

Mr. Carnegie declined the nomination. He pointed out the difficulties he had met in the last election, the real meaning of which was that neither party would trust him. The last election had shown that he was not "the man for Galway". He pointed out that in political matters the Roman Catholics were more honest than many Protestants, a statement which his audience received with applause. After some further talk Mr. Carnegie suggested that it would be wise to let West Peterborough go by default, and unite the forces of the Equal Rights party in the East.

Mr. STONE said that if they refrained from bringing out a candidate, it would be pointed out that the Equal Rights party only wanted to put out Mowat. A man must be nominated whether he went to the polls or not. He suggested that E. Douglass Armour, of Toronto, be procured as a candidate. On his motion, seconded by Mr. Merrick, Messrs. Carnegie, Stone, Weir, Merrick and Hughes were appointed a committee to confer with Mr. Armour and (presumably) report at an adjourned meeting of the convention on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock p.m.

Sons of Canada.

The Supreme Grand Lodge Will Meet Here This Week.

The annual session of the Supreme Grand Lodge of the Sons of Canada Benevolent Association will be held at Peterborough Tuesday and Wednesday. There is a live and progressive branch of the Order in Peterborough, and the holding of the Grand Lodge meeting here is due to their enterprise and push. It will bring to Peterborough about 75 delegates from different parts of the province, and no doubt the town, as well as the local lodge, will be greatly benefitted by it.

Some of the delegates are expected to-night and the remainder will arrive in the morning. Hotel accommodations have been secured for the visitors.

The Supreme Grand Lodge will go into session at ten o'clock to-morrow in the Sons of Canada Hall (Peterborough Oddfellows' Lodge Room), and will close, it is expected, Wednesday night. To-morrow evening the visiting delegates will be tendered a complimentary banquet in the Grand Lodge hall, when it is expected Mayor Stevenson will be present to formally welcome them to the town.

The local lodge is making complete arrangements for the reception of the delegates and the holding of the Grand Lodge meeting.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The young men's meeting Saturday evening was well attended and much interest was manifested in the regrets of the Provincial Convention held at Kingston, Feb. 5 8 given by Messrs. William Collins and General Secretary. A helpful and fruitful after meeting was held for prayer and consecration.

Mr. Scanlon led the consecration meeting Sabbath morning, which was a time of blessing.

The personal purity meeting Sabbath afternoon was fairly attended and a heart-searching time was spent, many present taking part.

Mr. Isaac Richardson gave a very earnest and impressive address at the Gospel and song service last evening, from Rev.. iii. 20. The hall was crowded and many were unable to get in. The Holy Spirit was present with power to convict of sin. We trust many may accept Christ.

MAKING OIL CLOTH.

THE INTERESTING PROCESS OF MANUFACTURE DESCRIBED.

The Technical Terms Employed to Distinguish the Materials in Its Composition—The Painting and the Coloring—The Designs When Completed.

The body of oilcloth is what is called burlaps, made of jute and imported from Scotland. This coarsely woven fabric is limp, and is stiffened by being passed through a mixture of starch and glue and over hot rollers, coming out, it might be said, laundried. It is then ready for the paint machine, where it is given the body. There are four qualities of oilcloth, depending on the number of body coats of paint. That which is to be the best quality receives five or six coats; the poorer grades, a less number. The cloth, in pieces twenty-five yards long by two yards wide, is dried in racks which are constructed in tiers of twenty. The factory has a rack capacity of 11,000 square yards. The thickness of each coat of paint is governed by a steel knife, in manipulating which a workman becomes so proficient that he can tell nearly to the pound what a piece of cloth will weigh when the coating process is completed. Three men at a paint machine can turn out in a day one hundred pieces containing fifty square yards each. The

the first quality cloth occupies a week, as each coat requires twenty-four hours in which to dry. It is then sent to the rubbing machine, where surfaces coated with glue and sand pass rapidly over the side which is to be printed, ridding it of all irregularities. The better qualities are afterward given another coat of paint, when they are ready for the printers. This is the most interesting part of the operation. For every color in the pattern to be transferred to the oilcloth there must be a block. These blocks come from Maine. They are about two inches thick, two feet square, and are composed of several layers of wood. The surface to be used is of maple, crossed and recrossed by narrow grooves, which form a surface of small squares, 144 of them to the square inch. Those squares look like, and are in reality, so many pegs. Where the pattern is desired to show, the

those on the portion of the surface which is not to be printed from being cut away. The styles in pattern change twice a year. Some are designed in Utica, and others come from Philadelphia and New York. Some patterns containing many colors require from twenty-five to thirty blocks, and consequently that number of impressions to reproduce the design. Rug patterns are the most difficult to make, as it requires different blocks for the corners, sides and the centre. The printing is done on the top floor, so that the oilcloth can hang for a distance of fifty feet to dry. Each printer has a table with eight pads, on which he smears his colors. Pressing a block to the pad containing the required color, he transfers it to the surface of the cloth, using hand pressure only. Having done this with every block, as each transfers but one color, and consequently but a small

PORTION OF THE COMPLETE DESIGN

he has finished about four feet square of printing, and goes about repeating the operation on another portion of cloth and so on. Two men generally work at a table, and can turn out from 100 to 150 square yards of oilcloth a day, when printing seven or eight color patterns. The paint used is similar to the ordinary house paint. When the printing is completed, another block is pressed on, which gives the embossed surface, of which there are two kinds, pin and line finish. The wet cloth then hangs from the loft for a week, when by an ingenious mechanism it is transferred to the drying room, where for another week it remains in a temperature of 130 degrees. The door to this dry room is fifty feet high, allowing that length of oilcloth to be passed through without rolling or bending. Coming out, it is varnished, three men, with the aid of a machine, varnishing 6000 yards a day. Next it is trimmed and the cloth is ready to be shipped.—American Analyst.

Bismarck's Wooing.

It seems that Bismarck did his courting as the Irishman played the fiddle—by main strength. The following story is authoritatively told of this tender passage in the life of the Iron Chancellor: On a journey into the Hartz Mountains with the Blackenburg family he fell in love with Fraulein von Puttkammer, who was of the party, and whom he had first met at the wedding of his friend, Von Blackenburg; but he never made her acquainted with his sentiments.

On his return from the journey he wrote direct to the young lady parents, with whom he was not acquainted, and demanded their daughter in marriage. The good people were rather frightened at Bismarck's reputation for high living, but their daughter having intimated discreetly that she did not regard the young gentleman unfavorably they decided not to hurry matters nor take any decided step in one direction or the other. So they wrote Bismarck, inviting him to come and see them.

The parents met him with an air of great solemnity, and the young lady stood with eyes modestly bent on the ground, when Bismarck, on alighting, threw his arms around his sweetheart's neck and embraced her vigorously before anyone had time to demur. The result was an immediate betrothal.

Prince Bismarck is fond of telling the story, and he is careful to finish it with this reflection:—

"And you have no idea what this lady has made of me."—St. Louis Republic.

GENERAL SHERMAN DEAD.

The Hero of "The March to the Sea" Died Like a Babe Falling Asleep.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Gen. Sherman died at 1.30 p.m. He passed away without speaking to any of the members of his family, who were gathered about the bed. There was just a slight quiver of the muscles of the face, the old soldier ceased to breathe, and all was over. Secretary Barrett reached the telegraph office about 3 o'clock and sent messages announcing the General's death to President Harrison, Secretary of State Blaine, Secretary of War Proctor, Mrs. Rusk and many others. He could not restrain his tears. "He died like a babe falling asleep," he said "there was no suffering, no pain." The funeral services will take place Thursday next from his late residence. Thursday evening the body will be taken to St. Louis in a special train of three cars in charge of Gen. Schofield.

William Tecumseh Sherman was born at Lancaster, Ohio, Feb. 16, 1820. He served in the Florida war in 1840-42, afterwards practising law in Leavenworth, Kansas. He was reappointed in the U.S. army with the rank of colonel in 1861 and commanded a brigade in the first battle of Bull Run. He was wounded at Shiloh. In February, 1864, with 20,000 men he marched to Meridian, Miss., and broke up the railroad centering there. He was also engaged at many of the leading battles of the civil war.

Lost His Leg.

PICKERING, Feb. 14.—While Richard Woodworth, aged 19, was felling trees on a farm near here on Friday, he met with a serious accident. He had chopped around several trees when one of them fell upon him, crushing one leg through four inches of ice and grinding the bones to powder. The leg was amputated above the knee and young Woodworth will likely recover.

Whisky and Open Lights.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 14.—The coroner's jury in the Mammoth Mine explosion have returned a verdict finding the company had not been guilty of neglect. They protested against the employment of fire bosses who were addicted to drink and also to the use of open lights, and suggested that a register be kept at the pit's mouth with the names of those employed.

Sang Her Death Requiem.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—Miss Octavie Chagnon, 29 years old, living at 29 St. Felix street, was attending to her household duties yesterday, singing merrily, when suddenly she threw up her hands, gasping, fell to the floor and expired instantly. She came from Vercheres. Death was caused by valvular disease of the heart.

Crushed Into the Depot.

SAGINAW, Mich., Feb. 15.—John A. Schultz, John Rice and Link French, with a number of other employes, were sitting in the Michigan Central roundhouse at Roscommon yesterday chatting, when, without a moment's warning, a train of log cars dashed in upon them, owing to a misplaced switch, scattering and destroying everything right and left, killing Schultz and probably fatally injuring Rice and French.

Split His Tongue in Sections.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 12.—While sawing wood in James Wilkie's woods with others a small sapling was held down by another small tree which had fallen across it and when it was cut the smaller one sprang back and struck Mr. Darling in the mouth, cutting his tongue through the centre.

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

West Peterboro

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequence to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retaliation policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

THE MOTION TO CENSURE THE TIPPERARY EXECUTIVE

Defeated by Straight Party Vote Parnell and McCarthy Exchange Words—Killed in a Duel The Alleged Jack the Ripper on Trial.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—A daring robbery was committed here to-day. A stylishly-dressed stranger accosted in the National Provincial Bank of England a clerk from the London branch of the Bank of Scotland. The clerk was standing at the public counter of the National Provincial Bank making a deposit. When spoken to by the stranger the clerk turned towards him and an accomplice snatched the wallet containing bonds and checks worth many thousand pounds and ran out of the bank. He has not been captured.

JACK THE RIPPER.

The Alleged Murderer of Carroty Nell Arraigned in Court.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The latest discovery made by the Metropolitan police in connection with the Whitechapel murder of Friday morning last, by which a woman known as "Carroty Nell" lost her life, bids fair to connect the man Sadler now in custody with this "Jack the Ripper" crime.

A knife was traced to the possession of Sadler, who as stated was a fireman on board a steamer which arrived from Turkey. The police have no doubt that Sadler was the murderer of "Carroty Nell."

The prisoner was placed in the dock this afternoon. His face was dirty and scratched. He seemed to be utterly careless as to what happened to him and is apparently entirely composed. He kept his hand in his pocket and glanced calmly around him as if he was a disinterested party. During the examination a man testified that he had seen Sadler in company with the murdered girl on Thursday night. As the witness was making his statement the prisoner watched him sharply, and exclaimed, addressing the man in the witness box, "Be careful about what you are saying." Continuing, the witness described in detail the visit of Sadler to a small coffee shop. Sadler, according to this witness, sat in the coffee house with the murdered girl and seemed to be quarrelling with her. Sadler, the witness said, claimed to have been robbed. Finally Sadler and "Carroty Nell" left the coffee shop separately. Upon the conclusion of the testimony the prisoner was remanded until Feb. 24.

Further details in regard to the blood-stained knife in possession of the police show Sadler sold the weapon to a sailor on Friday, the day of the murder. Opinions differ as to whether Sadler is "Jack the Ripper."

To avoid trouble the police transferred Sadler to the police court during the night, hoping thereby to avoid a vast crowd of people, mostly women. The women are eager for a sight of the prisoner. Wild threats of lynching and tearing the prisoner to pieces were uttered by the most excited of those females. When the man was removed to the police court an immense force of police was employed, and every precaution necessary was taken to prevent the Whitechapel mob from lynching the prisoner.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

The Motion of Censure Defeated in the Imperial Parliament.

LONDON, Feb. 16. In the House of Commons to-day John Morley moved that the House adopt a vote censuring the Irish executive for its action in the Tipperary prosecutions. Mr. Morley's motion declared that such action on the part of the executive was calculated to bring the law into contempt and was a violation of the rights of citizens. Mr. Morley's motion was rejected 330 to 245.

The announcement of the figures was received with prolonged Conservative cheers. Interest in the debate was lessened by the limitation of the line of assault on the Government to the incidents at Tipperary already thrashed out. For the first time since their rupture the Irish members were grouped all together.

Parnell exchanged words with McCarthy and Sexton but ignored Healy. The division on Morley's motion was on strict party lines, Gladstone having paired and the whole Irish party supporting Morley. Mr. Morley opened the debate with a strong denunciation of the conduct of the police at Tipperary and the vindication of the Irish executive. Mr. Gladstone supported Morley's motion in a vigorous speech. Mr. Balfour and Mr. Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, opposed the motion.

Mr. Gladstone felt indisposed and after speaking left the House. His illness is not serious. He is suffering from over-fatigue.

Killed in a Duel.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 16.—A duel with pistols has been fought at the village of Krasno, Selo., between Prince Vadlolsky and Lieut. Tomoucsow, officer of the Imperial Guard. Tomonosow was killed. The affair was due to a quarrel arising after both had drank wine freely.

Labor Troubles Abroad.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The outlook of the dockers' strike here and at Cardiff is serious. The lightermen here started to unload 20,000 frozen sheep to-day but soon afterwards withdrew, alleging their lives were in danger from violence threatened by the strikers.

GLASGOW, Feb. 16.—A wrestling match for the championship of the world took place here to-night between Antonio Pierre of Greece and Tom Cannon of America. Pierre won.

'TWAS STRONG AS SATAN'S

BLUE BLAZES IN COURT FROM WHISKY TRUST FLUID.

Paper, Corks, Towels and Fingers Burned at Its Very Touch—Startling Discoveries.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—There was more fire in the package sold to have been given by Whisky Trust Gibson to De War, the agent employed to destroy Staufeldt's non-Trust distillery, than even the most suspicious and credulous among the prosecuting witnesses were prepared for. They made an official examination of it before Judge Blodgett this morning. Attorney William Barry of counsel for Gibson, was present, as he had urged the examination. So were District Attorney Milchrist, Inspector Summerville, Special Agent Brooks, Marshal Hitchcock and Captain Stuart.

Opening the 6x12 inch package they found a pint bottle full of light-bluish fluid. The cork was drawn with some difficulty. Upon a piece of paper lying on the table a single drop was poured. The instant it came in contact with the paper there was a flash, a stream of fire shot out and the room was filled with suffocating sulphuric flames. So quickly dip the paper burn that a bucket of water had to be thrown on to prevent the fire from communicating with other materials.

In attempting to cork the stuff up again the cork was ignited. A towel was thrown over the bottle, and the towel caught fire burned up before the fire could be put out. As soon as the crowd succeeded in extinguishing the fire and getting the fluid safely in hand a rush was made for the door, the room was so filled with blue smoke.

United States District Attorney Milchrist was greatly excited, and in answer to the question exclaimed: "What is it? Great Scott! Can't you smell it? Look at my hands!"

"What do you suppose a whole pint of that stuff would do, when a single drop of it nearly set the whole building on fire?"

The strong fume emitted by the fluid proved its principal ingredient to be phosphorus. Some of it had gotten on the hands of Captain Stuart and Mr. Milchrist, and it continued for a long time to send forth a blue smoke.

The market value of the trust certificates found in the satchel Gibson had prepared—an alleged reward to De War, was $15,000—just what De War swears that Gibson promised him.

WITH A BABE IN HER ARMS.

For Two Hours a Mother Walked the Streets of New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Mrs. Rosie Markowitz, who resides with her husband at No. 95 Orchard-street, left her home intending to visit her brother, Jacob Grosse, who lives in Eighty-fourth-street, near Second-avenue. She walked to the Seventieth-street station of the L road, and then, removing some of the covering from around the baby's head and face, took a look at it. The child's eyes were closed; it lay motionless and quiet, and her crooning words of endearment brought forth no answering sign. Then she bent down her head and kissed the little one's face. A piercing cry was the first intimation that the others upon the platform received that anything unusual had happened. Then they saw the poor mother fall upon her knees and place the child upon the platform. Stooping over the babe she lifted its little head between her hands and began to kiss it frantically. The baby was dead.

The police officials informed her that she could not take her dead baby home until she had secured a coroner's permit to remove it.

So for over two hours, and during a journey of more than two miles, Mrs. Markovitz was compelled to carry in her weary, benumbed arms the body of her dead baby before she found a coroner at home.

England's Gigantic Scheme of Mail Subsidy.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The platform of the two parties in Canada is causing a good deal of interest in England, and it is felt that the issue will determine a momentous question affecting all the English colonies. The McKinley bill is said to be responsible for the present situation, but it is officially known that the Government recognize the necessity of active measures to revive the drooping trade between Canada and England. During the year 1890 there were only £12,000,000 worth of Canadian imports against £29,000,000 worth from Australia, £41,000,000 worth from the East Indies. From the United States England took £79,000,000 worth in the same year.

The Old Country is anxious to wean Canada, it is said, from any longings for reciprocity or absorption, and the Imperial Government, after consulting a number of big financial houses, has decided to back to an almost unlimited extent the projected mail routes to Japan and Australia via the Canadian Pacific Railway. In connection with this route it is proposed to run a line between a port in the south of England and Halifax under a Government subsidy, and also to proceed to immediately fortify Esquimalt as a first-class naval station. The Marquis of Lorne, the Duke of Sutherland, the Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Brassey, Sir G. Baden-Powell and others are assisting in the project. The new route, it is claimed, would effect a saving in time of 30 hours between England and Chicago, as compared with the New York route, and eleven days after leaving London the passenger could be in Vancouver. Its competition with the San Francisco route would be important, as the new route would be 900 miles shorter to and from Europe.

Black Skin on a White Body.

READING, Pa., Feb. 16.—Will the skin of a black man, engrafted upon a white man's body, turn white? That is the question Dr. John Ege of this city is solving. He has just grafted 18 small pieces of cuticle from a Boston negro's arm to the spaces that will not heal on Joel Saul's white leg, which has been sore for two years, and which did not readily assimilate all of the 30 pieces of healthy white skin planted thereon Jan. 10. Ten of the white particles did grow, though some of them are from the size of a pin-head to two inches in diameter.

If the black skin should grow white on a white body it would give rise to entirely new theories in surgery.

A Naked Lamp, Fire, Death.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Feb. 16.—The Moyer mine, three miles from this place, is on fire. An employe dropped a naked lamp which is thought to have caused an explosion. Four men are understood to be entombed and there is but little prospect of their being rescued.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

FOUR STRANGE BROTHERS.

A Quartette of Farmers Who Will Not Allow Wearers of Petticoats to Come Near Their Home.

READING, Feb. 16.—In an old log house half a mile from Werbersville, this county, live four "women haters," Benjamin, Samuel, Michael and Nathaniel Kunkle, aged respectively 78, 71, 65 and 61 years, are brothers who have neither married, nor, as far as anyone can remember, associated with any members of the fairer sex, except their two sisters and mother, all three of whom have been dead for many years. Since the death of their sisters the four brothers have never allowed a woman to enter their home to do any kind of work. All the household labors, such as baking, cooking, churning the butter from six cows, is done by the mysterious men who shun the society of women as they would the presence of an evil spirit. The two sisters when living bore a similar aversion to strange men, and both of them went through life without husband or lover.

A Lonely Dwelling.

The brothers are thrifty farmers. They can speak but little English. A farm of 135 acres is tilled by them very economically. It is a "hill" farm, located in what is known as the "Dark Corner" of Berks county, near the springs from which flows Maiden Creek. It is a wild section of country, where the houses stand a mile apart. Close by are the Blue Mountains, in which the "Blue Mountain Hermit" secluded himself for nearly half a century, and where he was murdered a short time ago and robbed of the money he had hoarded. The Kunkle farm yields good crops. The brothers are averse to the use of any labor-saving machinery, so they mow their hay with scythes, cut their wheat, rye and oats with cradles, and thresh their grain with flails. Four well-fed horses are kept, many fowls of various kinds flock about the barnyard, droves of sheep, a pen full of pigs and six cows are all well tended. No thrifties men can be found in Berks county than the Kunkle brothers.

No Visitors Wanted.

The latch-string of their door is not hung on the outside. Even strange men seldom get within the old log house, which is but a story and a half high. Things about the place are as neat and trim, however, as though a good housewife had charge. The floors are clean, furniture of the oldest and simplest kind is used, much of it being made by those who use it. Two long-barreled rifles hang on a hook above the door, and near them are the bullet pouches and powder horns. In this same place the family has lived for nearly a century, the father of the eccentric sons being one of the pioneer settlers in that region. There seems to have been but one single object in the lives of the boys, and that was to stick together and make money. They have succeeded in carrying out their desire to a large extent. The same roof has always covered their heads, and it is said that they have accumulated in money $35,000.

The Money Goes in One Pile.

All the earnings are thrown into a common fund, which has been invested by them with a solemn compact that it shall not be divided so long as one of them survives. Although they have a large farm and a hard one to cultivate, the brothers earn a great many dollars by working for their neighbors. They are never idle from the beginning to the end of the year. In the long winter nights one of the chief occupations is to make baskets and brooms to sell. The baskets are made from young white oak trees, which are sawed in pieces about five feet long, but varying according to the size of the baskets and then split into long thin strips These strips are shaved with draw-knives down to the proper size and made very smooth. Then the "splints" are woven together, making a very strong basket. For a basket that will hold a bushel of ears of corn they receive about 50 cents. The brooms are made from little hickory trees. One end is sawed off, then the broommaker takes a sharp knife and a strong one splits back the end for about 15 inches into little strips half as big as a lead pencil. When the whole stick has been split that way the splints are straightened out, tied around with a tarred rope, making a very serviceable instrument for scrubbing wooden floors.

Regular Church-goers.

The brothers, although the most pronounced "woman-haters," are regular in their attendence at church on Sundays. They go and come together and sit together while at the services. They are German Lutherans and attend a church of that denomination at Stony Run, of which Rev. Mr. Smuli is pastor. They are very much alike in their general appearance, all being tall, rather bony and lank, and have gray hair and clean-shaved faces.

The clothes that cannot be purchased ready made they make themselves, and they are said to be quite handy with the needle. Such work as cobbling shoes is always done by one of the brothers. It is an exceedingly rare thing for them to hire any work done. A few years ago when their old barn had rotted down they themselves built a new one.

The bread they make and the butter they churn are of the very best, showing that by long practice they have become as skilful in the art of baking and making butter as women.

A STRANGE TRAGEDY.

The Story of "The Bells" Recalled by a Murder in Westphalia.

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—A horrible murder, which recalls in some of its features the motive and method of the Erckmann-Chatrian story, "Le Juif Polonais," or "The Bells," as it has been made familiar to English audiences by Mr. Irving, is reported from the village of Diepholz in Westphalia.

The victim was a young woman named Margaret Krumm, the daughter of a farmer who lives in Damme. She was waylaid and murdered in a forest, on her way home from the railway station at Diepholz.

A gendarme discovered the body and rode off for help. The first cottage that he reached was that of a woodcutter named Rotzky. The officer knocked at the door, which was opened by Rotsky's wife, who explained that her husband was not in, but she expected him very shortly. Almost immediately he came up and his appearance at once aroused the gendarme's suspicion. His clothes were stained with blood. He was at once charged with the crime and was so surprised that he made a confession on the spot.

He explained that the girl had called at the house an hour before and asked him to accompany her on her walk through the forest, explaining that she was afraid to go alone, as she was carrying a large sum of money.

Rotzky refused to comply with her request, and as soon as she left he took another path which brought him out at a lonely place ahead of her. There he lay in wait and when she came up demanded the money, and on her refusing to give it to him he murdered her. Had he then destroyed her body by throwing it into a lime pit and escaping detection, growing rich and respected on the proceeds, only to perish miserably by the awful weight of remorse, the resemblance to "Le Juif Polonais" would have been complete.

The Good White Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 16.—The Rabbi Marcus and a Jewish physician named Chesnanovetch living in Grodno have been arrested and exiled from that province for two years for sending to the Government, in behalf of the Jewish community, a petition demanding redress for an outrage committed by a Russian doctor named Granowski, who was charged with having branded the word "thief" in three languages on the forehead of a Jewish boy who was accused of having stolen a small quantity of fruit.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.

A Moulder Struck By a M.C.R. Engine and Hurled Through the Air.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Saturday afternoon as the Michigan Central express was nearing Chiswortth the engine struck a man and hurled him through the air to the fence. The engineer stopped the train and backed up to where the accident occurred. The man who was struck by the engine was standing with two companions placidly winding a handkerchief over his left hand, and remarked when the engineer asked if he was hurt, "It never touched me." The man, who gave his name as George Wright, a moulder belonging to Hamilton, was under the influence of liquor. His only injury consists of two broken fingers.

Smothered the Baby.

WEST MCGILLIVRAY, Feb. 16.—Mrs. William Steeper had been on a visit to her mother in Clandeboye with her one month old infant, and on returning, the day being cold, she wrapped the little one too closely, in her solicitude to keep it warm. On arriving at Pumfrey's hotel she undid the wrap, and found with horror that her child had been smothered to death on the journey.

After the Irish Organ.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—At a meeting of the McCarthyite members of parliament to-day it was resolved to acquiesce in the proposition to devote the remainder of the league fund, £36,000, to the benefit of the evicted tenants provided the money is distributed by the Tenants' Defence Association. It was also resolved to endeavor to secure by legal means control of United Ireland.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—The finals for the Ontario Tankard begins to-morrow. The four large rinks will be occupied for the first draw. As there are 16 champions from the different groups and the contests are two-rink ones 16 sheets of ice will be required for the eight preliminary games. Four events will take place in Victoria Rink, six at the Granite, four at Prospect Park and two at the Caledonias. The four matches in the afternoon will be played at Victoria and Granite. The two semi-finals will take place at the Victoria Rink Thursday morning, if the Granites still remain, and the grand final in the afternoon. The draws take place this evening at 9.30 at Mr. Russell's office. It is just possible that a lack of ice will cause a postponement of the event.

The master in chambers yesterday gave judgment in the alimony suit of Zybach v Zybach, on the motion for particulars, ordering the defendant to give particulars of the charges of improper conduct alleged in the statement of defence against plaintiff.

Judgment was also given in the libel action of F. H. Faegster against The Empire, dismissing with costs the motion for security for costs. This is the action in which the plaintiff, a barrister of Stouffville, sues The Empire for $10,000 damages for the publication of what he alleges was a false report of proceedings before a magistrate, in which he was charged with fraud but the charge dismissed.

The final motion in the quo warranto proceedings instituted some time ago, against the Mayor of Ottawa, was made before the master in chambers yesterday, when he was asked to unseat Thomas Birkett, hardware merchant, from the position of Mayor of the City of Ottawa, and for a new election. The ground alleged why Mr. Birkett should be unseated is that at the time of the election he had an interest in a contract for the supply of hardware to the city. The argument of the case occupied most of the day, and judgment was reserved.

Ex-Deputy Chief John Macpherson reached the end of a long and useful life on Sunday evening at 11. His death took place at his late residence, 304 Seaton-street, and was quite unexpected. On Saturday Mr. Macpherson was apparently in the best of health, taking his customary walk and eating heartily. On Sunday he partook of a good dinner as usual, and on going out between 5 and 6 to look after his pet dogs he was suddenly seized with a fainting fit and required assistance to reach the house. Later he became unconscious and died at the hour named. He was in his 68th year.

The Drygoods section of the Board of Trade met yesterday afternoon, Mr. S. Caldecott in the chair. The business tax was discussed and it was resolved to attend in a body the meeting of the sub-committee of the Executive Committee of the City Council, to be held this afternoon to consider the question.

AMERICAN WHEELMAN.

Between the L.A.W. and Canadian Wheelmen—The League Membership.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The National Assembly of the Board of Officers of the League of American Wheelmen was held here to day. Secretary Bassett's report showed the present membership to be 18,113, an increase of 5710. There are 441 ladies on the list. The Membership Committee reported 14 cases of doubtful membership had been considered with the expulsions and stated that petty jealousies in the ranks of the league led to many useless protests. The president, Mr. Dunn, in his annual report, recommends that steps be taken to secure a more complete harmony between the L.A.W. and Canadian wheelmen.

President Dunn was re-elected. W. S. Brewster of St. Louis was chosen treasurer. The secretary holds over. The next assembly will be held in February, 1892.

They Wanted to Boom the Game.

BOSTON, Feb. 16. A meeting of the Board of the Amateur Athletic Union was held here Saturday. The disqualified lacrosse players, including the Montreal Club men, who attended the assizes A.A.U. by playing at the recent Madison-square Garden tournament were, with the exception of the Druids, reinstated because they sent in a satisfactory explanation of their action, to the effect that they merely played in the tournament to boom the game and were ignorant of any possible violation of the rules. The Druids will probably explain their case in short order.

The matter of the indoor championship meeting came up for a long consideration. The eyes of the managers seem to have been turned toward Buffalo, and they have appointed E. C. Carter to look over the ground and see what the Buffalo Athletic Club is willing to do toward managing the affair.

Sale of Trotting Stock.

BUFFALO, Feb. 16.—The biggest sale of trotting horseflesh ever recorded took place to-day in this city, whereby General Rufus L. Howard sold the entire stock of his farm, including the celebrated stallion Wilkie Collins, by George Wilkes (2.22), valued at $25,000, and 90 other good mares, stallions and youngsters, to W. J. White, Cleveland millionaire, for $60,500.

Hamilton sports lost quite a boodle on a cocking main with Rochester men Sunday morning near Buffalo. The wager was $350 and $50 on each battle. Rochester won 4 out of 7. The Spectator says that between $1,000 and $1,500 was lost on the result.

The Dead.

A cable despatch from Paris announces that Admiral Barriere is dead.

News of the death, at the age of 60, of Rev. Father Pendowey, at the Okanonogon Indian Mission, was received yesterday at Victoria, B.C. He was a native of Marseilles and a son of the famous Admiral Pendosey. He entered the missionary service of the Catholic Church 48 years ago, joining the Order of Oblate Fathers. He was looked on by redskins as a supernatural being on account of his large knowledge of medicine. On entering the church he gave up a fortune of 2,000,000f and a high social position. Three days ago he was buried in an Indian village. His body was encased in a wood coffin. He devoted nearly half a century of his life to the redemption of the Indians.

The New Party Out of It.

WYOMING, Feb. 16.—Two or three gentlemen interested in Canada's New Party met together to-day in the Temperance Hall here to receive the answer of the delegation appointed to interview Messrs. D. S. Robertson of Plympton and Miles Hagle of Warwick as to their acceptance of the nomination tendered them to contest the west and east ridings of Lambton in the interests of Canada's New Party. After talking over the matter and receiving the refusal of the nominees mentioned the following resolution was carried unanimously: "That, owing to the absorbing interest taken in the tariff question and the comparative indifference of the public on the Prohibition and Equal Rights questions, our lack of organization and the shortness of time previous to election day, we consider it inadvisable to place candidates in the field at this election."

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and builds the weak strong.

A CONVERT TO RECIPROCITY.

Another defection from the ranks of the revenue loyalists. Ever since the N.P. was hatched, the St. Catherines Journal has been a staunch, straight-out, thick and thin supporter of the high taxation policy of the Dominion Government. But it has found the load too heavy—for its brain to defend or its conscience to carry, and on Saturday the St. Catherines Daily Journal, which has been the leading Conservative newspaper of the Niagara district, published this reconstruction:—

"The Journal, feeling the full responsibility of its utterances, believes that sooner or later there must be a change in our trade relations with our neighbors, and, therefore, of the policies advocated by the respective parties, maintains that of unrestricted reciprocity to be the best and the most likely to be obtained. THERE IS NO DENYING THE FACT THAT THE N. P. HAS PROVED A FAILURE IN PROMOTING PROSPERITY IN THIS SECTION. It has, it is true, benefitted a FEW individuals AT THE EXPENSE OF THE MANY. As a matter of fact, however, there ARE MORE IDLE MEN in St. Catherines NOW, relatively speaking, THAN EVER BEFORE. There has been, under THE MISTAKEN TRADE POLICY we have pursued, an exodus of our citizens, OUR POPULATION HAS DWINDLED ANNUALLY BY THE HUNDREDS, building operations, always a sign of progress and development, have almost entirely ceased, our SHIPYARDS, ONCE HIVES OF INDUSTRY, ARE ALMOST SILENT, OUR FOUNDRIES BUT A SHADOW OF THEIR FORMER IMPORTANCE, DOZENS OF STORES AND SHOPS ARE VACANT, WHILE OUR TENANTLESS HOUSES are numbered by the hundred. For every effect there is a cause. What are the people going to do about it? The Journal has faith in the people. It believes that THE HOUR HAS COME for a great upheaval against THE RULE OF THE COMBINE AND THE RING. The iron heel of the monopolist has been remorselessly felt on the neck of the people. The hour to overthrow the tyranny of the N. P. has arrived. The Journal believes that in taking this stand it is best conserving the interests of Canada, and that it is best carrying out its principles of being of the people, by the people, and with the people." Bravely spoken, Brother Journal. There are scores of others who have not your means of speaking to so many thousands at once, but on their behalf the still small voice of the ballot box will grow into a thunder peal that will reverberate from Cape Race to Nootka Sound.

NOT AFRAID OF RECIPROCITY.

It is naturally to be expected that the manufacturers, for whose benefit and enactment the N. P. was specially concocted, would oppose tooth and nail any proposal that interferes with their trade. This is true only of a certain class of manufacturers. The sugar refiners, and the cattle kings, who have been especially favored. But the rank and file of the manufactures, are by no means a unit upon the benefits of "protection," especially with a restricted market and a business tax upon their raw material, two circumstances which seriously handicap their operations and restrict their output and diminish their profits. There are hundreds of enterprising manufacturers all over the country who see that the "N.P." has not proven the bonanza its originator promised it would be, and are declaring themselves for the Liberal platform of unrestricted reciprocity. The extent of this feeling may be judged by one example: The Brantford Expositor says that the following manufacturers are supporting Mr. William Patterson, the candidate of unrestricted reciprocity in South Brant:—The H. A. Harris, Soa & Co., employing 400 hands; the Waterous Engine Works Co., employing 215 hands; J. O. Wiener, Sons & Co., 170 hands; William Buck, 170 hands; Clayton Slater, 125 hands; Brantford Cordage Company, 65; Schultz Bros., 65; Gould Bicycle Company, 45; Brantford Furniture Company, 45; Wm. Fowler, paper boxes, 40; Eagle Plough Works, 35; Bain Bros. Manufacturing Company, 20; Adam Spence, carriages, 15; E. L. Goold & Company, beekeepers' supplies, 15; H. B. Gardner, cigars, 15; A. Murray, builder, 13; W. E. Welding, pottery, 10; Workman & Watt, 15; William Morse, carriages and sleighs, 10. This list embraces only the pronounced supporters of Mr. Patterson. It is not intended to indicate the manner in which the employees vote, which can, however, be judged by the large majority obtained by Patterson in the city of Brantford. The best manufacturers in Canada are not afraid of unrestricted reciprocity.

THE Tory journalists claim that the deposits in the Government and Post Office Savings Bank is a test of the prosperity of the people. In the year ending June 30, 1890, the deposits in the government and post-office savings bank declined to the extent of $1,943,891. In the last six months of 1890 there was a further decline of $1,344,640.

A Startling Fact.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

It isn't the usual way

—it's just the reverse—to pay a patient when you can't cure him. Nevertheless, that's what's done by the makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. They promise to pay you $500 if they can't cure your catarrh, no matter how bad the case. It isn't mere talk—it's business. You can satisfy yourself of it, if you're interested. And you ought to be, if you have catarrh. It's faith in their medicine that's behind the offer. It has cured thousands of the worst cases, where everything else failed. You can be cured, too. If you can't, you get the money. They're willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

Live Long and Live Happy.

Statistics prove that wealth does not necessarily favor long life. In Prof. Humphrey's "Report on aged persons," containing an account of 824 individuals of both sexes, and between the ages of 80 and 100 it is stated that 48 per cent. were poor, 42 per cent. were in comfortable circumstances, and only 10 per cent. were described as being in affluent circumstances. High and sumptuous living, a lack of proper exercise, and being continually in the hands of the doctor will account in a large measure for the small percentage who reach old age. The poorer class and those in moderate and comfortable circumstances, when any of the symptoms of disease show us, as a rule use that great and infallible remedy Paine's Celery Compound, which is nature's true restorer.

The nervous, used up, brain-tired mortal is braced up and strengthened up for life's battles.

The sleepless, wakeful, irritable, morose, despondent and morbid victim secures sleep, rest, peace of mind, joyousness and vivacity of spirits, and is therefore enabled to enjoy life and long years. Ample proof is on record of the fact that men and women of from 80 to 90 are living to-day through the agency and power of Paine's Celery Compound.

What Medical Science is Doing

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve the ills that flesh is heir to, restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Beware of imitations.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. dw

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

NAPOLEON'S FIRST LOVE

HIS HEART CAPTURED BY THE FUTURE QUEEN OF SWEDEN.

Bonaparte's Own Account of it—Extracts from His Letters When He Was Under the Spell of Desiree Clary—One of the Great Soldier's Romances.

Napoleon's first love. Such was Bernardine-Eugenie-Desiree Clary, afterward wife of Bernadotte and grandmother of the present king of Sweden.

The Napoleonic epoch is the most dramatic and romantic in history. The entire destruction of all the fences of society in the demolition of property and class distinctions gave an unprecedented opportunity for men to shape and make their own careers. Tradition no longer weighed them down. For the first time the lowest had a better chance in the struggle than the highest—for he was more sure of keeping his head on his shoulders. Napoleon's career is but the type of a dozen other sudden rises from the humble origin to fame and fortune. Nor was this quick ascent confined to the men of that age. The women, the Josephines and Desirees, were as numerous as the Napoleons and Bernadottes.

Baron Hochschild in his little memoir called "Desiree, Queen of Sweden and Normandy," gives an interesting sketch of this youthful first love of Napoleon. Most of what he tells us he got direct from her own lips during the years he was her court chamberlain, when her chief pleasure was to talk of bygone days.

When she was 13 years old chance threw Desiree Clary with Joseph Bonaparte. He was fascinated by the bright, pretty little girl, and they agreed to be married when she should have reached her 17th year, but at that time man proposed and Napoleon disposed. Although Joseph was the oldest Napoleon was even then at the head of the family. He was at that time a young artillery officer at Toulon, from which place he came over to Marseilles, where his brother and the Clarys were living to make the acquaintance of Joseph's youthful fiancee. Desiree describes Napoleon as being "extremely lively and boyishly playful."

THE LITTLE CORPORAL'S STORY.

Napoleon had not been there many days when he said—to quote her own account—"In all well managed households either the husband or the wife must be the one to yield. You, Joseph, have no decision of character, and neither has Desiree, while Julie (Desiree's sister) and I know very well what we want. You will do much better, then, to marry Julie. As for Desiree," added he, as he took me on his lap, 'she shall be my wife.' And that is the way I came to be betrothed to Napoleon."

This was 1794. Napoleon went away with the understanding that when his little Eugene, as he called her, was sixteen, he should return to claim her. Then came his appointment to Paris, his meeting the fascinating widow Beauharnais, and the gradual breaking up with Desiree.

None of his letters to her and but few of hers to him have come down to us. Those that we have, show a great deal of tender, faithful love on her part, even much passion for one so young. When at length the news of his marriage to Josephine came she wrote him:

"You have made me unhappy for the rest of my life, and still I am weak enough to pardon you for all. And now you are married. Poor Eugenie is no longer permitted to love you or think of you. And you said you loved me; you to be married! I cannot get accustomed to the thought; it kills me. I cannot survive it; I will show you that I am more faithful to my pledges and, in spite of your having broken the ties which united us, I will never engage myself to another, will never marry * * * Life is a burden to me since I can no longer devote it to you." Remember, this was the cry of a girl just 14 years old, when it was natural to voice her misery, and pride was yet a scarcely developed quality.

She had many suitors for her hand, Junot among others, but finally when she was eighteen years old she married Bernadotte, then an honored general of thirty-seven. Their union was a calmly happy one. She regarded him with much respect and admiration, while his affection for her seems to have been almost paternal, to judge from his letters. He certainly gave her no cause for jealously, for Mme. Recamier asked, in a tone of complaint, why it was that when Bernadotte was alone with her in a grove he always talked politics.

Through all her husband's wanderings Desiree lived very quietly in Paris. And when finally she joined him in Stockholm, when he had accepted the Swedish crown, she pined continually for her French home. She never learned the language of her adopted country, and cared only to talk with those acquainted with her fatherland. In this part of the narrative her admirable biographer unconsciously shows us the weak, unpleasant side of her character, revealing by his excuses the fact that she had a quick temper, was capricious, and hard to please.

It was a curious chance of fate that when her one son came to the marriageable age the only suitable wife to be found for him was the daughter of Eugene Beauharnais, duke of Leuchenberg, and of Desiree's hated rival, the Empress Josephine.

Desiree survived her husband and son and lived to see the third generation of Bernadottes on the Swedish throne. She died in 1860. She was not great or good. Simply a pretty, pleasure-loving Frenchwoman, whom chance had thrown on the crest of fortune's wave

Paris Letter.

Whisky of the Olden Time.

"More than one half of the men that are arrested for drunkenness and taken to the police headquarters are crazy drunk," said a veteran officer. "There is something about the whisky men drink nowadays that winds their understanding all up, twists them all up and fumbles their ideas into a shapeless mass," he continued.

"Now, years ago, back East, it was nothing unusual to see a man so that his legs would all twist up and his tongue would even get a little thick now and then, but he seldom got crazy drunk, like men do nowadays. Why, just the other day we had a man up here that had too much of that Jackson Street whisky, and he was crazy that he was hysterical. He could walk all right, but he would laugh like a maniac one minute and weep like a whipped baby the next, and then he would throw himself into an attitude that would melt a wooden man in front of a tobacco stand to tears.

"This is a great line of improvement, but I don't believe that they have improved on the whisky of our grandfathers' day very much, and just then the officer had to saw off this interesting dissertation on whisky to go below and unlock a prisoner, but everybody agreed that he spoke as an oracle.—Seattle Times.

A Woman on Women.

Bab makes these unkind remarks: "I often wonder how it is men marry women who they know use a lot of rouge or, worse still, paint, and whom they never have seen in the morning. Women is essentially a lazy animal. When she is industrious it is for her a misfortune, not a virtue. Consequently, when she comes home from a theatre and a supper, nine times out of ten she tumbles into bed without a thought of what she has on her face, and nine times out ten she doesn't even take her hair down—that is, if it is her own hair. And the consequence is she is anything but beautiful to look upon in the morning by the bright light, and her temper is pretty much in consonance with her looks. She either finds nothing in nothing or else she is in a pitiful stage, when the person on whom she lavishes all her confidence is herself."

An Undeniable Fact.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, disagreeable headache, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claim for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

OUR FUTURE.

The issue between the parties is, as against Free Trade.

Protection builds up a small body of men, who become wealthy, and being few in number, and with a common interest, they unite to get more of that on which they fatten. They, through their combination, are easily reached—they control the votes of their employees and so become an object of barter. The party that will give them the most gets them, and the red parlor is their market place. Self-interest is before their country and their birthright; loyalty to their fatherland is freely offered for a mess of pottage. The growth of a body of men whose prosperity depends not upon skill or effort, but upon the amount of license given them to plunder the people, is an evil to the state, and an element of great danger. The people who are sacrificed, not being organized to resist, are made easy victims, the robbers all the time shouting at any who refuse to submit that they are traitors to their country and disloyal.

The evil intensifies itself, for the Government which owes its existence to red parlor support cannot resist the cry of the horse-leech,—more! more! Our country, having abandoned the career of tariff for revenue for that of tariff for protection—i. e., tariff to order of the red parlor—must, either now, at the beginning, call a halt and get back to better ways, or go on until, enchained by links of our own forging, we find ourselves crippled and undone. What shall it be?

Extending for 3,000 miles along the same latitude, our productions are throughout the entire country uniform and alike. We cannot exchange products, for all parts produce the same natural productions. Our wealth is in our crops, our stock, our lumber and our mines. Across the border 65,000,000 consumers, who in a varied clime have productions that we need and who can take all the wealth of our soil and who in as many years as have elapsed since Confederation will be over 120,000,000 of consumers, offer us the best market in the world—with short haulage and quick returns—a market whose every pulse is felt and watched, and which, within twenty-four hours from the tick of the telegraph, may be supplied with the required goods. This market is deliberately ignored, and we are told to drag our wares over thousands of miles of land and water carriage for a slow and distant market, which, after deducting freight, interest, commissions and deterioration, returns to the producer but a remnant of the product of his toil. Is this loyalty?

It was said that he who makes two blades of grass to grow where one grew before is a benefactor; but the new doctrine is that he is most loyal who encourages the wasting of one blade in dragging the other to market.

Across the line the farmer sells at home, for use in any State in the Union, and he gets the worth of his product; the Canadian who would sell in that market gets the same price, less the duty and price of haulage. Is it to his advantage to have thirty per cent. of a barrier between him and his market, or would he be better with that duty off?

The farmer who has to sell does not pass by the market at his door, to spend a day in reaching a distant market, wearing out his horses and waggon, losing his time, and bearing the expense. Nor does he prefer that market which has the heaviest market tolls. No, he wants a near market, and he wants a free market, and he wants a quick return. Then strike down the barriers. Freedom to sell in the dearest and to buy in the cheapest market is the motto for our country; and now is the time and the hour when he who loves his country will show his loyalty by refusing to submit to a tyranny which would enslave the many to build up the fortunes of the few who hold their country cheap, if only they may fatten at her expense.

Sir John has put himself in the hands of the manufacturers—the few who fatten at their country's expense; the Liberals throw themselves upon the people, who demand that the true policy for our country shall be THE GREATEST GOOD FOR THE GREATEST NUMBER.

The Trent Valley Canal, A Timely Report.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—On the night of the last election Mr. James Stevenson, at the Opera House celebration, gravely told the people that "next summer you will see 500 or 600 men on the section between Lakefield and Peterborough."

The government which keeps this old campaigner in its stables has trotted it out again.

Instead of 500 men the government employed just 3, and called them "Commissioners." They should have been called "Generals," every one of them.

The report, which according to all decent usage, should have been first presented to parliament, has been sent up to Mr. James Stevenson, to be printed and published, and made to do duty in the Trent Valley district. A model old animal is this Trent Valley Canal specimen—hoary with old age, he has gone through many a bloody field and now at the train pets' blast he has broken his halter, and with head and tail erect he prances into the field. He evidently snuffed the battle from afar, and the brave Mr. Stevenson hopes to enter Troy safely ensconced within his wooden sides. Too thin, James—ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, may catch the first time, but the horse is hollow, and you will be taken by the scruff of the neck and seat of your breeches and sent back to the honorable duty of weighing out 20 cwt. to the ton of black diamonds for the people. You can serve your people better and do less harm while so employed, than by playing Jack in the box for the Old Boy.

NESTOR.

COURSE OF THE CAMPAIGN

Past, Passing, and Future Events in the Riding.

Peterborough.

Mr. John Bertram, will address the electors of Peterborough and vicinity in Bradburn's Opera House on Wednesday evening, Feb. 18th, in support of the Liberal platform and candidate. Dr. Goldsmith will occupy the chair. The gallery will be reserved for ladies.

This should be an effective answer to the malicious statement made by Mr. Moore on Saturday night at a meeting held in Enniscore in Mr. Stevenson's interests. Mr. Moore said that Mr. John Bertram, ex M.P., Toronto, has declared that he was not in favour of Sir Richard's scheme (respecting improvement of our trade relations), and it was significant that Mr. Bertram and Mr. Cox were in town on Saturday and did not attend the Reform convention. They were not because they were at an annual meeting of an important financial institution. If Mr. Moore wants to see what Mr. Bertram thinks of Sir Richard's policy, let him come and hear him in the Opera House next Wednesday night. He will then have to invent some other tale to try and bamboozle the honest farmer with. But the Tories think the honest farmer will stand every kind of imposition and believe everything their stumpers tell them. And the 5th of March will show that farmers can think for themselves and that they have determined not to be ground down forever.

Campaign Addresses.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., addresses a meeting of the electors in Mr. Rork's interests at the Town Hall, Harvey, to-night, and at Ventress' school to-morrow night.

Mr. E.B. Edwards appears in the interests of Mr. Hall at Beaufort to-night.

Eastmore.

A rousing meeting was held in the town hall, Eastmore, last (Monday) night in the interest of Mr. Hall. Mr. P. Sullivan, the veteran Liberal of the township, now brisk and active in the 90th year of his age, occupied the chair. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Hall and Messrs. P. Hamilton, C. J. Loonard and J. R. Stratton, M.PP. Their presentation of the cause of the Liberal party and of Mr. Hall's claims met with a hearty response from the audience, and there is no doubt that the sensible farmers of Eastmore will give a good account of themselves on March 5th. Mr. J. Hampden Burnham and Dr. Brennan appeared on behalf of Mr. Stevenson and high taxation.

Havelock.

Last night (Monday) at Havelock there was a large attendance of East Peterborough electors assembled at a joint meeting of the three candidates. The meeting was opened by Mr. John Burnham, who delivered a lengthy address. He came out boldly as a flat-footed protectionist, was not in favor of reciprocity, either partial or unrestricted, and ran up the old flag at the conclusion of his address, with the stereotyped embellishments.

Mr. Rork followed Mr. Burnham in a short address, advocating Unrestricted Reciprocity in the interests of the farmers of the county.

Mr. Kidd followed, assuming to himself all the virtues of the different parties, and none of their failings. After short speeches from Mr. W. A Stratton, Dr. Mallory, Mr. Stone and Mr. Burnham, the meeting closed with cheers for the Queen.

Lakefield.

Both political parties here are getting down to good working condition. The Conservatives are very anxious in the contest. They have a large banner in the window of their Committee rooms, which is one of the best advocates of Reform principle we could get, viz., it says:—"Conservative Committee Rooms." "Vote for Burnham and the Trent Valley Canal." "Employment for the Workingman." "The Old Flag." "The Old Chief." "The Old Policy." Now, the workingmen here are well aware that when the Trent Valley Canal was in full operation, very few of our local workmen were employed, principally Italians and others from a distance, so of what benefit is the Trent Valley Canal as a means of work to our local labourers? And we have heard that cry for the last three election, and since the last election not one cap of work has been done in that direction. The workman and labourers have got over being deluded with such chaff. Regarding the Old Policy, the general opinion here is that a New Policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity with the States would be a very desirable thing to have, as times could not possibly be much worse than they now are. Regarding the Old Flag, is it not trailed in the very dust by the party who cry out so much about loyalty, loyalty? If the flag is to be raised up aloft where it should be, it will be by the ballot of our electors on the 5th of March, voting for Mr. Rork, the Reform party and Unrestricted Reciprocity.

Bailliebore.

Mr. E. B. Edwards addressed a meeting at Bailliebore last night in the interests of Mr. Hall. There was a large and enthusiastic gathering of the electors of South Monaghan, and Mr. Edwards, in an eloquent address of an hour and a half duration, pointed out the advantages of supporting the Liberal party. Dr. Gray, of Bailliebore, occupied the chair. The meeting, which was most decidedly reciprocical, was an evidence that the farming community have determined to support the Liberal policy and will return Mr. Hall by a large majority on the 5th of March.

Millbrook.

The East Durham convention held here to-day resulted in Mr. H. A. Ward, the late member, being thrown over. Mr. J. P. Clemes, of Port Hope, was nominated on the sixth ballot. Mr. Ward refused anything but a unanimous nomination, and the Manvers Equal Righters refused to support him.

Mr. Armour Declines.

Mr. E. Douglas Armour, of Toronto, stated yesterday that it was impossible for him to accept the nomination offered to him by the Equal Righters of Peterborough West.

Farmers in Council.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16.—A meeting of the Patrons of Industry is to be held to-morrow at Warkworth, to consider the question of bringing out a farmer as a candidate in East Northumberland.

The electors are reminded of the address by Mr. John Bertram upon the issues of the campaign, in Mr. Hall's interests, in the Opera House, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 18th.

Personal.

The EXAMINER had the pleasure of a call this morning from Messrs J. W. Magill and H. W. Laird, of the Port Hope Times, who are in town attending the Supreme Lodge of the Sons of Canada.

Mr. James Gale, editor of the News, Bowmanville, and supreme vice president of the Sons of Canada Benevolent Association, is in town attending the Supreme Grand Lodge meeting, and favored the EXAMINER with a fraternal call.

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. John Cox died very suddenly on Saturday evening of apoplexy. Having been at his work as usual, after tea he lay down and in a few minutes was dead without any apparent suffering. The deceased was a native of Wiltshire, England, being 75 years and 5 months old, resided in Canada, 56 years ago, finally settling down in Lakefield 17 or 18 years ago. He lived for some time in Peterborough.

CANADA'S SONS FORGATHER.

Seventh Annual Session of the "A. B. C." Association.

Opening of the Supreme Grand Lodge of the Sons of Canada—List of the Delegates Present—A Thriving and Active Order.

The seventh annual session of the Supreme Grand Lodge of the Sons of Canada Benevolent Association was opened in the Sons of Canada hall in the Cox block this forenoon. It is only eight years since this society, which has for its motto, "Assistance, Brotherhood, Country," the A B C of benevolence and loyalty, was established in Toronto, but its rapid progress has been truly remarkable. Its principles appeal to the sympathies of every Canadian who has the cause of humanity and his country at heart, and the society will help build up a Canadian nationality and a sentiment of love and faith in the future of our broad Dominion. Little wonder, then, that the Order of the Sons of Canada has already taken deep root, and bids fair to flourish in the years to come.

The number of delegates in attendance does not by any means indicate the extent to which the society has developed. A large number of lodges are not represented for various reasons. The elections are keeping many delegates at home, while those in the far west find Peterborough rather too far distant for their convenience. Nevertheless, there is a fair representation, and there is no doubt the Order, as well as Peterborough, will be greatly benefitted by the holding of this annual meeting here. A further contingent of delegates is expected to-night.

OFFICERS AND DELEGATES.

The Grand Lodge opened in the hall (Oddfellows' Lodge Room), at ten o'clock, Bro. Nelson D. Mills, of Toronto, Deputy Supreme President, in the chair. The following officers and delegates were reported in attendance:—

SUPREME PAST PRESIDENT—L. L. Walker, Toronto.

SUPREME PAST PRESIDENT—F. Saunders, Toronto.

Oddfellowship.

Monday night's meeting of Otonabee lodge of Oddfellows was an unusually interesting one. The proceedings were enlivened by the presence of two Past Grand Masters of the Order—Mr. Reid, of Brockville (who was installed in office during the session of the Grand Lodge in Peterborough) and Dr. Bell, who filled the high office last year. Both gentlemen delivered excellent and instructive addresses to the Oddfellows assembled, Past Grand Master Reid, as the visiting brother, being warmly received. There were also two other visitors—Bro. Wood, a Past Grand also of Brockville, and Bro. Smith, of Collingwood. A resolution of condolence was passed to Bro. Van Norman, of Emily, who had buried his young wife that afternoon. One new member was also initiated into the mysteries of Oddfellowship at the same meeting.

Obituary—The Late Susan Duffus.

It is with deep sorrow we have to chronicle the death of another old and respected settler in the person of Mrs. Susan Duffus, of Otonabee. She was born in Suffolk, England, in 1819, and came to Canada in 1830. She resided in Quebec, where she was married to the late William Duffus in the year 1835. Afterwards she settled in the township of Otonabee, in which place she resided until her death, which occurred last Monday morning at St. Joseph's Hospital. She leaves five sons, of whom the eldest is Mr. Wm. Duffus, architect, of Lindsay, and the youngest the Rev. Father Duffus, now parish priest of Perth archdiocese, of Kingston. The funeral will take place to-morrow (Wednesday) morning at 9.30 and proceed to St. Peter's cathedral.

Worn Out and Broken Down.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

It Does Its Work.

Prepare for Death.

Having lived in the neighborhood of Peterborough for some years, I feel like enclosing these few lines, of my own composition, trusting they may bear a message to the hearts of some of my old companions.

JAS. H. MCCALL.

Brandon, Man., Jan. 20th, 1891.

When the day is far advancing, and you are free from care,
Has the shades of night close round you, will you listen to my prayer?
Will you hasten to the pleadings of that voice so small and still,
As the loving Saviour calls you, with light your soul to fill?

Do you never think how terrible it is to stand and fight Against God's Holy Spirit, your conscience and what's right?
Do you never scan the future, with its justified reward,
For those that serve the devil, and those that love the Lord?

Oh do, I say, be earnest, regardless of the cost—
Accept God's offered mercy ere your precious soul is lost:
Your days they now are numbered, the time is drawing nigh
When in the hand of cruel death your body is shall lie.

Your soul shall its departure take, prepared or unprepared,
To meet its meritorious, its final just reward;
Oh then, you'll think, if not before, of all the warnings given
By others, who have trod the path,—the path that leads to heaven.

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In deed of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

TIPPERARY EXECUTIVE.

THE DEBATE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Full Report of the Speeches—Mr. Morley Makes a Brilliant Speech and Mr. Gladstone Sustains Him, But His Motion Is Lost.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—In the House of Commons Mr. John Morley arose and, in accordance with the notice previously given by him, moved that the House adopt a vote censuring the Irish executive for its action in the Tipperary prosecutions. Mr. Morley's motion declared that such action on the part of the Irish executive was calculated to bring the law into contempt, and was a violation of the rights of citizens.

The House was filled from the galleries to the floor. Mr. Parnell sat below the gangway, between Mr. Thomas Bayley Potter and Mr. Timothy M. Healy. Mr. Thomas Sexton sat right behind Mr. Justin McCarthy on the same bench as Mr. Morley.

Mr. Morley, rising amid cheers, said that the motion, instead of being put out of date by recent events, was most opportune in view of the fact that two prominent Irish members of Parliament had just passed on their way into prison within sight of the House. ["Hear, hear!"]

The imprisonment of these members of Parliament, continued Mr. Morley, was the climax of the Tipperary prosecutions. He appealed to the House as to whether, until September last, his attitude toward the Irish police has been hostile; but after seeing in Tipperary the work of the tremendous coercion machine his eyes had been opened as to what a pitch of demoralization, brutality and lawlessness the agents of Mr. Balfour had been brought to by Mr. Balfour's standing up for every act of their's, right or wrong—(cheers)—crediting every statement of the police and refusing to make any inquiry, however strong the evidence was against them. [Hear, hear!"]

The Conduct of the Police.

After passing ten minutes in Tipperary, added Mr. Morley, he saw mere cheering and "booing" made a pretext for the violent dispersal of a small crowd. The police adopted a course on that occasion for which, in England, Colonel Caddell and every man concerned in it would have been cashiered. The scene at the entrance of the court house was further evidence of police lawlessness. It was not the dense savage crowd some people supposed, but as quiet and harmless a crowd as he ever saw. The police used brutal, ferocious and absolutely unprovoked violence, of which any disciplined force in the world ought to be ashamed.

Some of the constables did seem to be ashamed and disgusted. It was not that he was unnerved by the sight of the broken heads brought to the surgeons. Broken heads did not alarm him. It was the spectacle of agents of the law brutally violating the law. He was astounded that Mr. Balfour accused him of exaggeration. He (Morley) was ready to attest to everything in court. It was no fault of his that an action had not been brought. [Cheers.]

At this point Mr. Balfour signified dissent, and Mr. Morley asked him if he meant to say he shrank from going into a court of evidence.

Mr. Balfour: No, but your friends succeeded in postponing the trial until March.

Mr. Morley, continuing, said that the Judge held that the reasons for postponement were adequate. When the Coercion act was passed it was not intended that cases like those in Tipperary should be withdrawn from the jury. The Bench there was deliberately packed to try a great State case to which 90 witnesses were summoned. The selection of magistrates Shannon and Irwin was about the most monstrous act even Mr. Balfour ever committed. [Cheers.] It was prostitution of the tribunal.

Powerful Denunciation

Mr. Morley then proceeded to denounce the vindictiveness of the Irish executive, whose actions, he said, which would not be for a moment tolerated in England, had alienated the people of Ireland. Alluding to Mr. T. W. Russell's amendment alleging that the action of the police executive was made imperative by the activity of the Irish conspiracy, Mr. Morley said he concluded that it was an admission of the failure of the Coercion Act, and after three years the Government still confessed its inability to cope with the conspiracy.

This was probably the last time he would speak against the Coercion Act in the present Parliament. The noiseless soot of time was rapidly bringing the time near when the Government would be brought to accounts The country would then require an explanation as to how the Coercion Act—a fraud upon the nation—had been administered in a spirit of fraud on Parliament. [Cheers.]

The Other Side.

Mr. T. W. Russell (Unionist) said that Mr. Morley spent three hours in Tipperary and bolted by the next train. [Laughter.] He ridiculed the statement that the crowd was harmless. No Tipperary mob, he said, had ever before been held up to admiration as a pacific crowd. His amendment asked the House to vindicate the action of the police in view of the conspiracy of which Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien had been convicted. Their inciting advice turned Tipperary, which was once one of the most prosperous towns of Ireland, into a place as desolate as if it had been swept by an avenging army. He would not contest Mr. Morley's right to share in the faction fight, but why, while in Tipperary, did he not enquire of the people the causes of local ruin? He would have learned that their misery was due to boycotting, accompanied by every kind of violence. [Hear, hear.] Thanks to the Government, honest Irishmen now had a better chance of pursuing lawful business. Village ruffianism had been suppressed. Mr. Morley had sought to tie the hands of the executive and prevent the protection of friends of law and order in Ireland.

Mr. Gladstone expressed surprise that the Government countenanced an amendment evading the main accusation against Mr. Balfour, as assisting to violate the civil rights of the people. Assailing the authors of the plan of campaign was not an answer to the charge. Mr. Balfour defended the officers and the executive against the charge of violation of the law and the use of illegal force against the people. That was not a response to the charge that the bench was packed with magistrates whose justice was impugned. [Cheers.] Counter charges of riot were part of the practice of the executive, who even [illegible] soldiers from the [illegible] [Hear, hear.] Mr. Balfour was always willing to accept wholesale statements of officials. It was undecorous of him to charge Mr. Morley with deliberately suppressing facts. By garbling evidence the government aimed to exclude the people from the protection of a jury in order to let the executive work their will upon their opponents. They (the Government) had thus succeeded in effecting compulsory exclusion from the House of two of the ablest and most honored Irish members at a period when all sides felt that the country had special need of their services. [Cheers.] It was a noble stroke to close the prison doors on Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon on the eve of the discussion of a question on which they were best entitled to speak. [Cheers.] Doubtless the House would again distinguish itself by voting confidence in the Government. The vote, however, would not avert their coming doom nor obscure ever growing evidence that the country was determined that the fellow subjects in Ireland should soon enjoy the same precious and invaluable liberties possessed by Britain. [Cheers.]

Interest in the debate was lessened by the limitation of the line of assault on the Government to the incidents at Tipperary, already thrashed out.

Mr. Morley showed unwonted animosity while speaking. The memory of Mr. Balfour's contemptuous reference to his inaccuracies, committed while telling of the Tipperary row, is probably rankling in his mind. Mr. Parnell sat with folded arms listening to Mr. Morley, evidently with close attention, but he did not join in the Irish cheers. He left as soon as Mr. Gladstone rose to speak. Mr. Gladstone spoke for half an hour. He manifested no special enthusiasm till toward the close of his speech. Then his voice, in ringing tones of triumph, declared that the doom of coercion and the Government was assured. In the early part of his speech Mr. Gladstone turned his back upon the government benches and addressed his remarks directly to Mr. Russell. On the Conservatives shouting "Order!" Mr. Gladstone asked what the noise was about. Said Sir William Vernon Harcourt. "They are howling at you. Those are their good manners." Mr. Gladstone thereupon turned about, bowed and resumed his speech. Mrs. Gladstone occupied a seat in the ladies' gallery, in full view of her husband. For the first time since their rupture the Irish members were grouped altogether. Mr. Parnell exchanged words with Messrs. McCarthy and Sexton, but ignored Mr. Healy.

Mr. Morley's motion to censure the Irish Executive was rejected—330 to 245.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The A.O.U. Convention Railway Engineer Hurt.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—The Globe train met with a slight accident yesterday morning about 5 o'clock. It was nearing the Grand River bridge, about three miles east of Paris, when the driving rod of the engine broke, striking the cab and slightly injuring the driver, Jack McLarty of London. The train did not leave the track.

The 24th annual convention of the Ontario Association of Architects opened yesterday afternoon at the School of Practical Science. Mr. W. G. Storm, the president, occupied the chair, and Mr. S. H. Townsend, the registrar, acted as secretary. Thirty-four members were present as follows: James Balfour, W. A. Edwards, F. J. Rastrick Hamilton; J. E. Belcher, Peterboro'; W. R. Billings, Ottawa; J. L. Wilson, Chatham.

The registrar reported a membership of 145 and 90 registered students. The treasurer reported a balance on hand of over $2000.

The president's address was a resume of the history of the association, including the various proceedings which culminated in the Act of the Legislature last session, securing incorporation, the first in the history of any architectural association. The president referred also in feeling terms to the death of one of the vice-presidents of the association, Mr. J. D. Durand of London, Ont.

The annual convention of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will commence in Victoria Hall this morning at 9 o'clock. All arrangements for the convention were completed at the meeting of the Executive Committee held in the Rossin House last night.

The finances show that there is a balance in hand, Jan. 1, 1890, of $10,210.80; receipts during year $319,520.64; total $309,520.64 The disbursements amounted to $311,833.97 leaving a value on hand of $3596.56.

The report of Grand Recorder M. D. Carder shows that the total cash received on beneficiary fund is $284,700. This, with balance on hand, Jan. 2, 1890, $1315, makes a total of $286,015, out of which they have paid 142 death losses, $216,000, having a balance of $15 in the Imperial Bank to the credit of the grand receiver.

CONFESSION OF FAITH.

The United States Presbyterian General Assembly Make Important Changes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The committee of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States on the revision of the confession of faith, after a very harmonious session lasting eleven days, completed its work and adjourned last night. The changes made have generally met with unanimous approval. The report will be presented to the assembly in Detroit next May and by it referred to the Presbyteries for adoption or rejection. The changes made in the statements of the confession have been of great importance, but have in no way impaired the integrity of the system of doctrine so long held by the Church.

The Burning Mine.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Feb. 17.—The fire is still burning in Meyer mine. One body has been recovered, while three more are still entombed. They are Poles and are known to have been fighting the flames from the interior, though it is believed they have been burned. Water is still pouring into the shaft, and the loss from a careless lamp is said to have reached $50,000.

Johnstown Again Menaced.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 17.—A flood, unequaled since 1884, is looked for by experienced river men here. Bradford reports the lower street inundated and people in Anastreet are being taken from their houses in boats. The water put out the fires in Seyfargo's iron works. Advices from Johnstown say the situation is becoming serious. The low lands are completely flooded and people are leaving their houses and thousands are gathered on the [illegible]

DEATH ON THE STAGE.

A HOLOCAUST IN A RUSSIAN OPERA HOUSE.

McCarthy and United Ireland—Very Hot Weather in the Antipodes—A Case in Which Strikers Defended the Nobility.

LONDON, Feb 17.—A despatch gives a thrilling account of the burning of the Roncheoeid Theatre during a performance. The stage performers appear to have been the principal sufferers, three actresses having been burned to death and several seriously injured.

Two Costumes That Attracted the Attention of Guests.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—The carnival came to a close during the week with the grand ball at the royal castle which, up to about four years ago, was of annual occurrence at the Berlin court. Although 2500 persons participated in it there was nothing novel or original about the affair to distinguish it from its predecessors except the exquisite costumes worn by the Princess Frederick Charles and Queen Louise.

The Princess' white toilet was of dead silk, with a purple train and ermine, all the ornaments being of precious stones, sewn on to the dress three fingers broad or sprinkled over the costume. The color effects were most artistic, and the whole was a marvel of the modiste's combined with the jeweler's art. Queen Louise's dress was similar to that worn by the Emperor's great-grandmother in the well-known picture of that beautiful and unfortunate queen. The material was of white silk, cut round at the neck, and with the waist under the arms circled by a girdle of gold and precious stones. The hair was worn high, in the Grecian style. Broad gold braiding, with sprays of flowers were worked into the hem of the dress and train.

CYCLONES AND COCOANUTS.

Snapped Like Pipestems—Very Hot Weather in the Antipodes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Australian advices by the steamer Alameda say that Christmas in the Antipodes is, of course, midsummer, but this year the heat was unparalleled during the holidays. On New Year's day, in Sydney, the mercury stood at 85 degrees, the following day 94 degrees and for six days did not fall below 88 degrees. In the interior the heat was still worse, ranging from 100 to 110 degrees, while in Condobolin great bush fires swept a district 30 by 60 miles in extent and destroyed 20,000 sheep. A cyclone in the Hervey group of islands destroyed over 70 houses and nearly all the cocoanut and bread-fruit trees, many 16 feet in circumference being snapped in two by the gale like pipestems. The schooner Arauru, near Raratonga, was wrecked and 14 lives lost.

THE STRIKERS WON.

Grand Duke Alexis Degrades and Dismisses a Russian Admiral.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 17.—Admiral Virkofski, who was recently assaulted by strikers in the admiralty shop building dockyard on account of his alleged tyranny, was summoned before Grand Duke Alexis, the high admiral of the fleet, to explain his actions. The Grand Duke was dissatisfied with the Admiral's explanation and dismissed him from the post of command and of the Port of St. Petersburg and transferred him to Vladivostock. The Grand Duke also ordered that the demands of the strikers be satisfied.

Not Believed to Be the "Ripper."

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The police of London are coming to the conclusion that the drunken sailor now under lock and key is not the much-sought-after "Jack the Ripper." There is no doubt that the fellow has been in a row with somebody and that the row was attended with blood-spilling, but there is nothing in his appearance to indicate the desperate murderer. The detectives are continuing their search in every quarter.

The police place no confidence in the theory that the criminal is a woman, as while it might be possible that one or two of the murders has been committed by a woman, the general character of the murders indicates that the assassin was a man who obtained the temporary companionship of his victims.

Another "Jack the Ripper" scare is agitating this city. A woman was found dying this morning with her throat cut and suffering from a stab wound in the chest. In spite of the popular "Jack the Ripper" theory the police declare the woman committed suicide.

Oysters Frozen to Death.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The correspondent at Whitstable of The Daily News writes: "Since the disappearance of the frost it has been found that enormous damage has been done by the recent severe weather to the extensive oyster beds at Whitstable, the damage sustained by the two companies being estimated at £15,000. The French and Dutch sorts have suffered most, and these have almost all been killed by the effects of the prolonged frost. The oyster beds are two miles long by one mile wide and are laid in different sections, according to the kinds of oysters. During the intensely cold weather the sea was frozen over, the frost reaching the oyster and causing its death. As it takes from three to five years for an oyster to become marketable from the time the spat is laid, it will be nearly this time before the beds will recover from the loss that has been caused."

Many Lives Lost in the Storms.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Terrible storms are reported on the coast of Greece. A steamer has been wrecked off Zea and nine lives were lost. Other disasters are feared. From Malta comes similar news. The weather has been unusually severe, and latest advices are that the schooner Dominico has been wrecked in a terrific storm. Four of the crew were drowned.

Queen and Commons Aroused.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—In the House of Commons to-day the Right Hon. Edward Stanhope, Secretary of State for War, replying to a question as to what action the Government proposed to take with reference to the military officers who were concerned in the recent baccarat scandal, said that, pending the result of the legal proceedings taken by Sir William Gordon Gordon-Cumming against the persons who had accused him of unfair play, the War Department did not propose to retire any of the officers concerned in the affair. Mr. Stanhope further said that the colonels of the various regiments were making successful endeavors to prevent gambling among the officers of their commands.

The Queen has called upon the Earl of Coventry, Master of the Buckhounds, for a full statement regarding the gaming scandal in which the name of the Prince of Wales and Sir Gordon Gordon-Cumming are involved.

Mr Charles Tupper's Narrow Escape.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 16.—Sir Charles Tupper, Canadian High Commissioner, after a speech at the political demonstration here on Saturday night left on a special train for Toronto, where he was to appear at a Conservative demonstration.

The tier of the engine's driving wheel broke near Sackville, N.B., this morning, and the locomotive was thrown from the track, delaying the train six hours. It was a narrow escape, but no one was hurt.

On the Instalment Plan.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—Prince Radziwill has offered to compound his gambling debts, which amount to several millions, by paying a 10 per cent. dividend. F. Howard, Secretary of the British Embassy here, who is one of the Prince's creditors, has declined the offer and insists on being paid in full It is reported that in consequence of this the Prince will use his influence to compel Howard to resign.

Mischief for Idle Brains.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—The latest scandal concerns the dead Prince Frederick Charles, who, it has been ascertained from documentary evidence, loaned the use of his name to butchers, bakers, hatters, etc., for a cash consideration. Charges are made against the Prince of Saxe-Alterberg that he has ruined a number of boys. The case is said to be somewhat similar to the recent London scandal. The Prince has been banished on unlimited leave of absence.

Attacked by Dervishes.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—A despatch from Suakim says Osman Digna yesterday threatened to attack Handoub, thus preventing 500 friendlies from joining the force advancing to Tokar, and at midnight the friendlies were attacked by a body of Dervishes, several women being killed.

Behring Sea Correspondence.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Lord Salisbury's reply to Mr. Blaine's despatch of last December on the Behring Sea question has been forwarded to Washington, and will be forthwith presented to Mr. Blaine by Sir Julian Pauncefote.

Some of the Crew Drowned.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 17.—The steamer Sherlock to-day struck a Kentucky pier as she was going down the river. Several of the crew were drowned.

A BRAWLER IN CHURCH.

EXTRAORDINARY SCENE IN A DEVONSHIRE SANCTUARY.

He Snatches a Chalice From the Hands of An Officiating Clergyman and Drinks the Wine—Heavy Fighting Anticipated at Tokar—The London Card Scandal.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—At Newton Abbott, Devonshire, to-day, Rev. Dr. Pope was fined £2 for brawling in church. Dr. Pope attended a religious service Sunday, and while the communion was being administered walked up to the officiating clergyman, wrested the chalice from his hands and drank the wine while standing near the ethar rail. Dr. Pope then returned the empty chalice to the clergyman, remarking in a voice heard all over the church, "You are no Christian—you are unfit to administer the Communion."

By this time Dr. Pope was greatly excited. He stood gesticulating near the altar rails during the rest of the service. The court to-day was crowded with clergymen and others. Amid considerable excitement Dr. Pope at first said he was not guilty and afterwards pleaded guilty and apologized for his conduct in the church.

Dr. Pope's lawyer said his client's mind had become unbalanced and it would not be just to be too severe upon him.

The Card Scandal.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The card scandal continues to attract considerable attention. The Prince of Wales is greatly irritated at the facts having leaked out. An intimate lady friend of the Prince, not Mrs. Arthur Wilson, the hostess of the card playing party, is said to have made known the facts at a party where the lady and Sir William Gordon Cumming were present. The latter in some way offended this lady, who divulged the secret. She said all the accessories of the baccarat game in question belonged to the Prince of Wales. This, however, is not believed to be true.

Tokar Occupied.

CAIRO, Feb. 17.—The Egyptian troops today occupied El Teb without having to engage Osman Digna's troops. The Dervishes retreated to Tokar, upon which the Egyptian troops will advance to-morrow. The latter are now throwing up light entrenchments about El Teb. It is expected there will be serious fighting should Osman Digna make a stand at Tokar.

The Russian Inquisition.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Advices from Russia state that no such scenes have been witnessed in Europe since the days of the Inquisition as are now going on there. The agents of the Holy Synod are inquiring everywhere into charges of heresy against sectaries, and the latter are being arrested, imprisoned and subjected to brutal treatment to compel them to retract and join the orthodox faith. The Roman Catholics are spared from actual punishment, but even in Poland the Roman Catholic churches have, with few exceptions, been closed. The expulsion of the Jews from Novgorod involves the ruin of a number of eminent Hebrew families that have lived for centuries in that famous capital. The police made an attempt to fix on the Jews the burning of the Novgorod Cathedral and thus excite prejudice against them among the more ignorant.

Soldiers Suffocated By Gas.

DIEUZE, Feb. 16.—The Alsace-Lorraine Company of Bavarian Light Horse stationed here has just had a wonderful escape from death. During last night a gas pipe in the barracks burst and the escape of gas rendered the men partially insensible. In the morning when the bugle sounded the reveille no one appeared on parade. Inquiry was made only just in time to rescue 40 men who were lying unconscious. Three have died and a dozen others are in a very critical condition.

A Very Ugly Count.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—Count Kleist, who has been in prison for some time past for an attempt at manslaughter on Herr Altert, a porter in a hotel in this city, is again in trouble. On Friday last, on the plea of sickness, the count was liberated from prison. On Saturday he was seized with a fit of maniacal rage and made a savage attack upon his valet, who was in bed at the time. The count beat the man so brutally that he fractured his skull. Count Kleist has been re-arrested and taken back to prison.

Daily Examiner.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1891.

The electors are reminded of the address by Mr. John Bertram upon the issues of the campaign, in Mr. Hall's interests, in the Opera House, To-Night.

THE TRUE CAUSE.

The campaign spouters on Mr. Stevenson's behalf are not at all particular to their statements so long as they think they can advance their own cause. In yesterdays EXAMINER are exposed the falsity of a statement made by Mr. Moore, in Mr. Stevenson's interests to the effect that Mr. John Bertram had deserted the Liberal party in this contest, the answer to this misleading statement being the announcement of Mr. Bertram's address in the Opera House to-night, in Mr. Hall's interests. Mr. Moore's attempt to deceive the electors were not confined to this misstatement. At the same meeting Mr. Moore made an assertion to the effect that the managers of the Edison company had told Mr. Stevenson that the Edison company established themselves in Canada, at Peterborough, to escape the payment of the $5,000 weekly tax which the products of the Edison company had to pay by way of duty on entering Canada, and further if the Reciprocity with the United States were to be brought about the works would remove from Peterborough. The speaker argued that the high tariff, the N. P. had caused the Edison works to settle here and that reciprocity would cause their removal. Now, Mr. Moore as a lawyer and as a member of the manufacturers' committee of the town council, should know that the "N. P." had nothing whatever to do with bringing the Edison Works to Peterborough. He must either consent to occupy the position of being ignorant of the law, and the facts in the case, or take the responsibility of wilfully misleading the electors. The Edison Company came to Canada because they were compelled to do so. They have certain valuable patents, and according to Statute they must within a certain time begin and continue in Canada the manufacture of the articles covered by their patents. Following is the clause of the Patent Law —Revised Statutes, chap. 61, section 37, relating to the forfeiture of patents, which reads thus:

37. Every patent granted under this Act shall be subject and be expressed to be subject to the condition that such patent, and all the rights and privileges thereby granted, shall cease and determine, and that the patent shall be null and void at the end of two years from the date thereof, unless the patentee, or his legal representative, within that period, commence, and after such commencement continuously carry on in Canada the construction or manufacture of the invention patented, in such manner that any person desiring to use it may obtain it, or cause it to be made for him, at a reasonable price, at some manufactory or establishment for making or constructing it in Canada, and that such patent shall be void if, after the expiration of twelve months from the date thereof, the patentee, or his legal representatives or his assignee for the whole or a part of his interest in the patent, imports or causes to be imported into Canada, the invention for which the patent is granted; and if any dispute arises as to whether a patent has or has not become null and void under the provision of this section, such dispute shall be decided by the Minister or the Deputy of the Minister of Agriculture, whose decision in the matter shall be final.

Thus it is seen that it is not the N. P. but the patent law that accounts for the presence of the Edison Company's works in Canada, and the superior transport and other facilities of Peterborough account for their establishment in this town. There is not the slightest danger of the company removing their works in case of reciprocity—the protection of their Canadian patents is of vastly more importance to the company than the protection which a tariff of 25 per cent. ad valorem implies. We do not underrate the benefits and boon of having this great establishment in Peterborough—we recognize in it a most important and valuable factor in our local prosperity; but we do object to the Edison Company being used to bolster up a policy which has proved a failure at all points—and condemn in the strongest language an attempt to fasten more firmly upon the farmers the burden of high taxation, and to deprive them of the immense measure of relief which the adoption of a policy of untrammelled commercial intercourse with our neighbors to the south of us—our natural market—would result in.

COST OF GOVERNMENT IN CANADA.

For the year ending June 30, 1863, being the first year under Confederation, the expenditure on account of consolidated fund was $13,486,093. For the year ending June 30, 1874, the first under Mr. Mackenzie's administration, the expenditure was $23,316,316, being less than the estimates voted under Conservative rule. For the year ending June 30, 1878, the last for which Mr. Mackenzie's administration was responsible, the expenditure was $23,503 158. For the year ending June 30, 1890, the expenditure was $35 994 041. During the first period the Conservatives increased the yearly expenditure by $9 830,223, and during the second period they have increased it by a further sum of $12 490,573. During the Reform period the increase of yearly expenditure was only $186 842.

The public expenditure of the United States in 1845 was on the population of that country was 20 000 000, was $23 000 000

In Canada in 1890, with a population of 5,000,000, the expenditure was $36,000,000.

But, giving the Federal Government of Canada the benefit of $4 000 000 for subsidies to Provinces, the comparison stands:

Expenditure of United States
Government in 1845 with a population of 20 000,000 . . . . $23 000,000
Expenditure of Canadian Government in 1890, with a population of 5,000,000 ..... 36 000 000

Can the country stand this tremendous pace?

Mr. White, the Government candidate in Cardwell, said in the House, in which he was a member of the late parliament:—

"The Dominion Government during the last fifteen years or thereabouts have borrowed some $200 000,000; the Canadian Pacific have borrowed many millions; the Grand Trunk and other railways have borrowed largely; the Provincial Governments have followed the same course, as have also our municipal corporations. * * * To-day it is no exaggeration of the facts to say that at least $25,000 000 have actually to be sent out of the country each year, either in the shape of goods or of gold or foreign bills, for interest alone, in payment of interest on amounts borrowed abroad, and we know the amounts are not sent in goods or gold."

This is a tremendous drain, caused, in large part by the extravagance of the Dominion Government. For the protection of the population, enabling the latter to pay seven-tenths of their proper share of this amount, and they get no protection, while the monopolistic manufacturer is protected to the eyes. Is it any wonder that farmers begin to strike for their rights, and are looking to reciprocity to put them in a condition to live?

Church City Oil for Anchor's Castoria.

ASKING FOR BREAD; GETTING A STONE.

Whenever and wherever the subject of hard times amongst farmers is mentioned in Tory circles the offensive and insulting statement is made that farmers are extravagant and shiftless. Surely it is not extravagant for the farmer's family to wear decent clothing? Or to have the house decently furnished? Or to have plenty of bed coverlets? Or yet is it extravagant for the farmer's wife and daughters to have an organ or a piano at home? The Tory policy of hostility between Canada and the United States, and the big custom houses are depriving the farmers of the money which would enable them to buy comforts, and pay for them too! The Reform Policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity will give the farmer a free market in which to sell his product and to buy his wants. Reciprocity will give the farmer better prices for horses, lumber, hay, barley, beans, potatoes, eggs, hops, poultry and nearly everything.

Farmers! Vote for Unrestricted Reciprocity and Fair Prices. Vote for Prosperity and Good Times.

PROFITS AND LOSS.

When the American buyer of horses comes over the lines, he counts on having to pay the American duty, and so gives the Canadian so much less, and our farmers in place of getting a hundred dollars for his animal, only gets seventy dollars, for the American duty is $30 per head for all horses worth less than $150. This is a true statement of loss. Since Confederation there have been exported from Canada the enormous number of 330,000 horses, of which 320,000 were sent to the United States—to enter which market the Canadians had to pay the fabulous sum of $6,500,000 in duties. Had their been Unrestricted Reciprocity the farmers of this country would have that amount in their pockets to-day. Under the McKinley Bill this item will be increased by about fifty per cent., making in the next twenty years a tax of $9,600,000 if Unrestricted Reciprocity is no secured. This is also a clear case of loss. Our high tariff masters tell the farmers that England is the best market for horses. Not so. Common sense tells us that the cost of shipping horses to England is the same for low-priced horses as for high-priced ones, therefore the Canadian farmer cannot sell his stock anywhere but at home or in the United States. Remember, Reciprocity and a Reform Government will give you $30 more for every horse. Farmers! A Reform Government will increase the selling price of all your stock The farmers of this country know that there is now no American market for horses. The McKinley Bill has killed that, and Reciprocity will kill the McKinley Bill and high taxation.

Vote for the Reform candidates, and vote for Farmers' Rights.

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KENNEDY, 50 Smith Ave., Hamilton, Ont. 2w6d

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rosseway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 142 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE.

AS SHOWN IN THE SIGNS OF THE AMERICAN INDIANS.

A Most Interesting Article About the Best Sign Talkers of the World—Illustrations of Hand Gestures and Forms Which Stand for Important Things.

The language of signs is the only universal language, and it is the oldest language, says The Illustrated Christian Weekly, to which we are indebted for the accompanying engraving and article. It is by signs that the brutes converse. Monkeys talk with their hands and legs, and even insects talk with their antennæ. The child speaks at first by gesture though the gesture language is discouraged, and the limbs are put aside for the tongue. But just as we have to converse with a little child by signs so we have to talk to the insane, who often have no knowledge of words. And signs are still used by the sane. When we pray we use our clasped hands as a sign of appeal, or bow the head in sign of reverence or adoration; and when we welcome a friend we clasp hands in token of welcome. In fact, try as we will, we cannot yet dispense with the gesture language.

At Washington, on March 6, 1880, seven Ute Indians who were proficient in the sign language were introduced to seven deaf mutes, and conversed with them. The experiment was entirely successful. They told each other stories, and the stories were written down and examined, and found to agree in every particular.

The Indians are the best sign talkers in the world. The multiplicity of their dialects renders some general means of communication inevitable among them, and though legend assigns the invention of the sign language of the plains to the Kaiowayn, we shall not be far wrong in assuming that it is much older than the division of the Indian race into its minor tribes. This language, to which we propose to devote some attention, is curiously complete. By it one Indian can converse with another from Alaska to Panama. It has its general signs, its conversational signs, and its tribal signs. Let us take the general signs first.

The blanket is often used for signaling. When the Omahas discover buffalo, the blanket is held out at length with the hands as far apart as can be. When a signal is made to approach, the lower edge of the robe or blanket is waved inward to the legs. The signal of the discovery of enemies, game, or anything else is to ride round and round in a circle, passing and repassing each other if there is danger.

If at any time it becomes necessary to communicate with friends at a distance, smoke signals or dust signals are used, so many pillars at different intervals apart signifying certain warnings or encouragements. At night a most remarkable system of signaling by means of arrows of fire is in use. The arrows are wrapped with tow round their heads, the tow is dipped in some resinous matter and lighted, and the blazing messenger is then shot aloft, to be visible over a wide extent of country, and by many to be mistaken for a meteor.

SUN.

Take bad, for instance. The general sign for this is to scatter the right-hand fingers outward, as if spurting away water from them. But among the Arapahoes the fingers of the right hand are half closed, the thumb is hooked over the fore and middle fingers, the hand is moved back upward a foot or so toward the object referred to, and then the fingers are scattered, so as to show that the object is only worth throwing away.

But it is with the conversational signs that most interest lies. Over and over again furs have been sold, leases granted, and treaties made in the far West without a word being spoken between the parties. The Indian interpreters employed by the United States government are all proficient in this wonderful universal language; and, though it varies in different districts, yet its meaning is always unmistakable. Some of the gestures used are strangely eloquent.

NOTHING.

THE SUN.

CHEYENNE.

Peace is shown among the Shoshoues by clenching the right fist, and placing it on the breast. But among the Sioux the two fists are pulled forward about a foot at the height of the breast, with the palms toward the right being about two inches behind the left. Among the Comanches and Kaiowayn the sign is that given in the illustration.

Dead is shown by throwing the forefinger from the perpendicular into a horizontal position toward the earth, with the back downward, or else by the arms on the then letting them the same time at The Bannock sign give, which is also among the Sho- For dying we give common to the Comanches, and Kaiowayn. NEARLY DYING.

Grow has another eloquent sign, the hand being held as in the illustration, and moved upward in an interrupted manner. Much the same sort of sign is used for smoke, but in that the hand is thrown upward several times from the same place instead of continuing the whole motion upward.

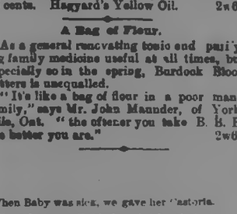
For None, Nothing, or I Have None, a very expressive sign is used among the Sioux. The palm of the flat right hand is passed over the left from the wrist toward and off the tips of the fingers. With a little modification this sign is used among the Kaiowayn, Comanches and Apaches.



For Friend, we give the Dakota sign. It is worthy of note that an Indian rarely shakes hands with Indians; that is a ceremony he reserves for his pale-face friend.

KILLED.

For Killed, the Cheyenne sign is given. Rain is denoted by the Shoshones and Apaches by apparently dripping fingers.

We give the ordinary Sun and the Cheyenne Sun. Both mean the same, the completeness of the disk being shown in each case.

DEAD.

Tree is given according to the Dakotas, the right hand being held before the body, as shown, and pushed slightly upward, to give the idea of growth.

Untrue. The Arikara emblem of a falsehood is significant, the first and second fingers being moved in the direction of the dotted line.

UNTRUE.

Daily Examiner.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1891.

The electors are reminded of the address by Mr. John Bertram upon the issues of the campaign, in Mr. Hall's interests, in the Opera House to-night.

THE OLD, OLD, SCHEME.

It needed no shrewdness of prevision to know that the Trent Valley Canal would be resurrected and made to do duty in another of the half dozen elections in which it has been held up as a bribe to the people of this district; nor to know that the report of the commission would "bob up serenely" in time to play its part as an election dodge. But no one thought the government would be so lost to decency and so anxious about the shaky prospects of its candidates in East and West Peterborough as to outrage parliamentary propriety by publishing the report of a royal commission first in the columns of a local party paper. If the object of its publication was to give a report, purporting to deal with a matter of local interest, to the people, why was not a copy sent to the EXAMINER also, which would have gladly published the report, for it has never failed in advocating heartily the speedy construction of the canal, though it has steadily set its face against making political party capital out of a public work. The object of the premature and irregular publication of the report, to influence the elections, is palpable. If promises would have built the canal it would long since have been completed. For several election contests this enterprise has played an important part on behalf of the government candidates. What good purpose the commission has served except to delay the matter and to help the government to confront its broken pledges, it is difficult to conceive. It contains little that was not known before, and the declaration of the Commission in favour of constructing the canal is superfluous, because long ago the Government was pledged to the construction of the work, and promises being cheap, we are provided with another instalment. But, while the people would hail with joy the construction of the canal, their past experience does not justify them in supporting the candidates of the Dominion Government, and thus endorsing all the sins and extravagances of the Government on the strength of promises that are not any more binding than pledges that have been repeatedly ignored and broken in the past. Let the Government candidates be judged on their merits. The Dominion Government, being pledged to the work, Commission or no Commission, their successors in office are bound to carry out their pledge as much as to assume responsibility for obligations incurred by their predecessors.

COURSE OF THE CAMPAIGN

Past, Passing, and Future Events in the Riding.

A Sorry Sight.

The Tory party must be driven to sore straits when the Premier of Canada resorts to the desperate dodge, as he did in his Toronto speech last night, of magnifying a pamphlet written by an American citizen and containing an American's sentiments, into a conspiracy to coerce Canada into annexation. There is not the slight st evidence adduced to connect the Liberal party in any way with the pamphlet in question. The Tory papers, the pap-fed, came out in startling head-lines about "treason," but the plot, whatever plot there is, is of their own concoction, the fruit of their own excited prejudice. This is a desperate resort of desperate men. The sole object of the Government in this campaign is to prevent the discussion, as far as they can, of the misdeeds and records of the Government. They dread discussion. Delay would have brought discussion and therefore, dissolution was resolved upon in spite of the outrage upon the constitution and the impossibility of a full and fair discussion of public questions affecting the country's interests. Thus we have the disgraceful disloyalty cry and such diaphanous frauds as the fishery pamphlet plot. Verily, the Government are put to desperate straits.

Campaign Meetings.

Mr. E. B. Edwards attended a meeting called in Mr. Stevenson's interests at Beaufort last night. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Stevenson, R. M. Dennistoun and Mr. Edwards. Mr. Stevenson said the high taxation policy was the sole issue of the campaign, and Mr. Dennistoun "carried coals to Newcastle" by distributing loyalty amongst the honest yeomanry of South Monaghan, who are just as loyal as any Red Parlour patriot in the Dominion. Mr. Edwards made an effective speech upon the people's platform.

Mr. Stratton addressed a meeting in Mr. Rork's interest at the town hall, Harvey, last night.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock Mr. Stratton and Mr R R. Hall addressed a meeting in the same interest at Taylor's school house.

The Liberal Workshop.

Never in any election contest has there been more largely attended, more enthusiastic, or more energetic committee meetings than those held at the Reform committee rooms, old Knights of Labor hall, Water street. The spirit of the honest toilers seems to pervade the place and intuse the spirit of work into the Liberal workers. There are good prospects that with energetic work the West riding will be redeemed.

Mr. Creelman in the Opera House.

Mr. J. C. Creelman, Q. C., of Hamilton, who speaks in the opera house on Monday evening Feb'y 23rd, was at one time a resident of Peterborough, having about 20 years ago been an employee in the Bank of Montreal. At that time he gave indications of the promising position he now occupies, and as member of a local debating club foreshadowed the eloquence which he is now noted for. Those who listen to Mr. Creelman in the opera house next Monday night when he will address the electors on behalf of Mr. Hall, will be edified by hearing a masterly treatment of the issues of the present contest.

An Encouraging General Outlook.

Not only are the prospects bright in there riding, but the outlook in the country is very cheering.

The Toronto Mail says:—"The Mail has made enquiries in nearly every constituency in Ontario with a view to eliciting impartial opinions as to the probable result of the elections in this Province. As may be supposed, the reports vary. Some Conservative ridings and some Reform ridings report no marked change of opinion. Possibly the most significant summary of the situation is contained in these words: 'Unless Sir John can give the people some more positive assurance than he has so far given that he really intends to adopt more liberal relations with the United States he is almost certain to lose this country, which has always gone with him.' This is the keynote of a great many of the responses. In fact the tendency of the replies, taking them as a whole, is decidedly favourable to the Liberals."

The Sons of Canada.

Continuation of the Report of their Annual Meeting—An Interesting Address—Officers Elected for the Year.

At the morning session yesterday of the Supreme Lodge of the Sons of Canada, in the absence of the Supreme President, ex-Ald. Ritchie, of Toronto, the Deputy, Mr. Nelson D. Mills, delivered the annual address, which proved a more than usually interesting deliverance. He said:

It is owing to the unfortunate illness of our worthy Supreme President that upon me falls the important and pleasing duty of extending to you all a sincere and cordial greeting to the seventh annual session of the Supreme Lodge. I trust that our meeting together may be productive of much brotherly regard, and that our deliberations may be as they have been in the past, conducive to the best interests of our association.

Since the last session of the Supreme Lodge, ever mindful time has never stayed his hand, and in the line of our march many fresh mounds mark the final resting places of brethren who once counselled with us. They are no longer to be heard in the lodge room. They have responded to the call of the Supreme Gavel of the Universe. We who are left should feel thankful to Almighty God for permitting up once more to assemble for roll call, and to take up the fibrous ends of the web which we are weaving for the future well being of our countrymen.

Aid has been extended to the bereft families of those deceased brethren, and in addition words of comfort have been spoken to console the hearts made lonely by that dread visitor whom we must all some day entertain.

The year just closed has been a most propitious one to us as an Association. Our membership has materially increased, lodges have been instituted in Belleville, Deseronto, Blackstock, Uxbridge, Barrie, Collingwood, Owen Sound, Hamilton, Simcoe, South London, St. Thomas, Ridgetown, Chatham, Sarnia, Petrolia, Bowmanville, and two extra lodges in the city of Toronto, a truly great showing for an Association so young in years. During that time there have appeared some slight signs of the harvest which we hope to reap from our sowings as a national society.

* * * * *

During the last year we have received communications from Canadians now resident in the neighboring Republic, asking about our Association and suggesting that we extend to them the privileges of membership. I believe that a great many of our countrymen who are now earning a livelihood on the other side of the border would, if it were possible, avail themselves of membership. I would recommend that the legislation necessary for the institution of lodges in the U. S. and the admission of those Canadians into our Association be made, so as to retain for Canada the sympathy of a people who otherwise might become hostile to the land that bore them.

On motion, Bros. Laird, Wellbridge, Magill, J. J. Mason, Mowrey and Mason (Peterborough) were appointed to draft a reply to the Deputy President's address.

An adjournment for noon was then made.

Afternoon Session.

The afternoon session was opened in the Prentice Boy's Hall at 2 o'clock, the number of delegates having been largely augmented by arrivals from the east and west on the morning trains

After the election of officers was concluded the reports of the Finance, Legislation and and Correspondence Committees were received.

Wednesday Morning.

A number of reports were presented and adopted.

The Committee on Legislation recommended an amendment providing for the institution of an honorary membership to admit Canadians not eligible for the benevolent department of the association on payment of nominal initiation fees and dues.

The Committee on Correspondence reported and the Committee on Ritual reported, recommending that the matter of revising the ritual, so as to include a number of degrees, be left to a special committee to act with the Executive Committee.

The Committee on Endowment favored the appointment of a special committee to act with the Executive in the matter.

The following extra delegates were reported from Waterloo Lodge, No. 201—W. A. Reymo and C. H. Froehlich.

Two of the delegates to the Supreme Lodge of the Sons of Canada were unable to attend this morning's session. Supreme Past President Walker, of Toronto, is lying ill at the Grand Central with heart and lung trouble. He will be removed to his home this evening. Mr. J. H. Magill, of Port Hope, was taken ill during the night and returned home at noon to-day.

Complimentary Supper to the Sons of Canada.

A Jovial Gathering About the Festive Board—Some Real Smart Speeches Delivered—The Sweeping Sentiment Was Canada for Canadians.

Judging from the grateful expressions used at the banquet in the Sons of Canada hall last night, there can be no doubt that the local members of the Society have fully sustained the provincial reputation obtained by Peterborough for being a most hospitable town. The visiting delegates to the Supreme Lodge session gave marked emphasis to their appreciation of the kindnesses shown them by the Peterborough brethren, and they will return to their homes with most pleasant recollections of our town and the jovial Sons of Canada living and thriving here.

The monotony of business routine was varied last night by a banquet tendered to the delegates. It was a flattering success at which the representative Canadians present demonstrated their happy faculty of judiciously commingling business with pleasure, wit with wisdom, jovial festivity with a serious and patriotic consideration of their country's needs.

All the speakers recognized the necessity of Canadians being more assertive of their nationality—an end which it is one of the principal objects of the society to secure. Warm expressions of loyalty and patriotism, and faith in Canada's future, flowed from the hearts and lips of those who spoke, and the impression was forced upon one that already a great deal had been accomplished in that direction.

Over a hundred persons found seats at the tables, including members of the society and some invited guests outside the order. Mr. F. Mason, Chaplain of the Supreme Lodge, occupied the chair.

Mr. Thos. Hooper, catered satisfactorily and spread a very good table. After gastronomical exercises were finished, toast and speech-making began.

CANADA OUR HOME.

The CHAIRMAN proposed the toast to the "Queen," followed by one to the "Governor-General and Lieutenant-Governors." Then came the toast of the evening, "Canada Our Home," to which replies were made by several excellent speakers.

Mr. SHEPPARD, the newly elected Supreme President of the Order, made a neat speech, in which he humorously, yet effectively, touched up the manifest lack of a recognized Canadian nationality in this, one of the greatest countries in the world. In this country there were Englishmen, Scotchmen, Irishmen, Frenchmen—but no Canadians. This should not be. Canadians, while revering the motherland, ought still to feel a patriotic interest in the land in which they live, and insist upon Canadians born in this country being universally recognized as Canadians—not Scotch, English, Irish or French, according to their extraction. This object was sought to be accomplished by the Sons of Canada, by making the idea of a Canadian nationality the sentiment of the country. This was an effort being made outside of politics and religion, and Canada as a nation should be sung of and talked of everywhere.

Mr. F. S. WALLBRIDGE, Belleville, spoke in a similar strain, and suggested the importance of a society such as the Sons of Canada, whose principles would tend to destroy sentiments of annexation. He also expressed the thanks of the delegates to the Peterborough brethren for the kind attention shown them.

Dr. ORR, of Toronto, supreme medical adviser, said Canadians should be proud of the position they occupied as a nation, but their nationality was not sufficiently asserted at home and abroad. The fact was, Canadians were at a discount in their own country, but still he decried the imputation of any sordid motives of personal interest that would tend towards annexation. Dr. Orr spoke of Peterborough as a surprisingly progressive and city-like place.

Mr. MONAGHAN, of Port Hope, interlarded a comic song, and was vigorously encored.

OUR SOCIETY.

To the toast of "Our Society," Deputy Supreme President N. D. MILLS, of Toronto, replied first. In spite of all the adverse circumstances pointed against a young society, he said the Sons of Canada had prospered, just as did the early pioneers who settled in Canada and gave birth to the nation. The men in the order to-day were men of stamina and devoted loyalty who had made the society a success. Canadians had sprung from a varied parentage, and though we were perhaps a little slow commercially, our manner was characterized by the cautiousness and steadfastness peculiar to our forefathers. This society was destined to amalgamate the homogeneous masses of the people here, and blend them together into one compact nationality. He believed that as time went on the annexation sentiment would dissolve, and those few men who held such views would then rather see Canada a nation by herself.

Mr. FITZPATRICK, of Toronto one of the Executive, brought forward the benevolent aspect of the society, which he urged as the most important feature of all its many good ones. He would like to see the insurance scheme boomed. The beneficiary part of the society would attract the membership, the national sentiment could be afterwards boomed.

OTHER TOASTS.

The "Supreme Officers" was responded to by Bros. B. BLAIN, General Secretary; J. GALE, First Vice-President; J. J. MASON, First Steward.

Mr. Monaghan again favored the company with a song.

"Our Sister Societies" was next on the list. Mr. E H. D Hall and Mr. B. Shortly, Peterborough, and Mr. Sheppard, of Toronto, replied.

"The Mayor and Corporation" was responded to by Councillors Adam Dawson and E H. D. Hall. Both speakers referred to the satisfactory progress made by Peterborough and welcomed the delegates of the Society to the town.

"Our Past Supreme Presidents" was proposed by Bro. J. E. Doran. Bros. Walker and Saunders, of Toronto, responded.

"Our Guests" was proposed by Bro. Fitz Patrick and acknowledged by Bros. Dr. Orr, Toronto, E. B. Morrey, Ingersol, and H. W. Laird, Port Hope. The Peterborough brethren came in for some very complimentary remarks for the generous and hearty hospitality they had extended the visiting delegates.

The Ladies were championed by Bros. J. J. Mason, Bowmanville, and T. O. Monaghan, Port Hope, whose humorous recitations, as were his previous efforts, were vociferously encored.

The toast to the Press was acknowledged by the local representatives, and Mr. Doran, Toronto, who is connected with a society paper.

"Our Hosts—Peterborough Lodge of the Sons of Canada," was proposed by Bro. Shepard. To this toast Messrs. H. Robertson, W. C. Mudge, H. S. Dixon, and F. Mason, chairman, replied, after which "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, and the company dispersed.

Second of the Series.

The Foresters' Grand Carnival Friday Night—Splendid Events and Prizes.

Another grand glacial spectacle and brilliant panorama will be seen at the rink Friday night, when the second carnival under Foresters' auspices takes place. The rink will be beautifully decorated, and the gay costumes of the skaters skirling over the ice to the rythmic melody of band music, will form a scene of kaleidoscopic grandeur seldom to be witnessed. The committee of management are pushing the carnival for all its worth and intend to make the second of this season's series grander than any of its predecessors.

The splendid prizes offered for competition among the skaters are exhibited in the show window of the Peterborough Bookstore. They will incite a keen rivalry and draw together a collection of costumes of rare excellence. There are also four races for the amusement of the spectators.

Four guessing prizes are offered for the ladies and gentlemen guessing nearest and next nearest to the actual number of tickets taken in at the door. At the last carnival the correct number, 1220, was guessed by two parties.

A curling bonspiel is to take place between rinks representing the Foresters against the world for a barrel of flour, and between two rinks of juniors for a set of curling brooms.

A large attendance is expected from other towns and cheap railway fares have been arranged.

For fuller particulars see the pictures which have been liberally printed.

Bit His Cheek.

At the police court this morning an assault case was disposed of. Readers of the EXAMINER will remember that on Sunday last a young man named James Lang, a broom-maker employed with Sherwood Bros., was badly bitten in the cheek during a fight in the arcade. To both he pleaded guilty and was fined $5, or ten days in gaol, in each case. The fines were paid.

A New Industry.

The Manufacture of Fan Lamps to be Begun in Peterborough.

A carload of machinery arrived for the Brooks Manufacturing Co. yesterday, and premises are being fitted up rapidly in the Carbon Works building for the reception of the new industry. The plant came from Hamilton. It belongs to the Heath Manufacturing Co., who make a patent fan lamp similar to the Warzer lamp, but an improvement on it. The patentee is Mr. J. B. Heath, who first introduced the Warzer lamp. The latter will run for four hours and a half, but Mr. Heath's new lamp is good for nine hours' continuous service without touching. Mr. Heath has been manufacturing the lamps in Hamilton, but his business has been purchased by the Brooks Company, who with their usual enterprise and keen-sightedness, saw a good thing in it and brought it to Peterborough. Some 400 finished lamps, ready for the market came with the plant. These will be put on the market while the manufactory is being established.

The Brooks Manufacturing Co. expect eventually to employ about 25 men in the making of these lamps. The machinery is all light, and there will be sufficient room for the present in the Carbon Works building.

Distressing Itching Skin Disease Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got no better. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them faithfully, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, and now he is three years old and no signs of it returning. The child was so bad I had to tie the skin in a pillow-case and put his hands down so that he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. A Startling Fact.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit. And yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

TO THE ELECTORS
—OF—
West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequence to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,
RICHARD HALL.

TOPICS FROM TORONTO.

A YOUNG MAN THROWN FROM HIS HORSE AND KILLED.

Returned From Jamaica—The A.O.U.W.—Death of a Prominent Citizen—Annual Meeting of the Architects—General News Items of Interest.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—Soft ice greeted the Ontario Branch curlers for the first day of their Tankard finals.

The Granite Rink was unfit for play and all the matches except two occurred at Victoria Rink. The Granites knocked out Walkerton, thanks to the great work of Skip Williamson and his rink. Prospect Park and Belleville showed up unusually strong and won handily in the first round. Paris had an easy victory over Lakefield.

In the second round the Hamilton Thistles and Belleville had easy work with their opponents. The final and semi-final rounds take place to-day as given below.

Thrown From His Horse and Killed.

One of the most distressing accidents which has occurred in this city since the death of Eddie Coates took place at 10 o'clock last night. It resulted in the death of George A. Badgerow, son of County Crown Attorney Badgerow, who is now in the Bermudas for his health. The young man was returning on horseback to his home in Avenue-road from Mr. A. H. Badgerow's in North Toronto. While galloping along through Deer Park in the dark his horse fell. He was thrown forward and shortly after was picked up dead. Dr. Armstrong was immediately summoned, but human skill was powerless. The body is now lying at Mr. Badgerow's in North Toronto. The time for the funeral has not been decided on.

The deceased young man was about 21 years of age. He was in his third year in the faculty of arts in Toronto University, and a lieutenant in "K" (the University) company Q.O.R. In person he was tall and singularly handsome. His disposition and manner were such as to win him great popularity among his fellows.

A. O. U. W.

The 13th annual session of the Grand Lodge A.O.U.W. met yesterday morning in Victoria Hall, the grand master, John Milne, mayor of Essex, presiding.

The report of the committee on distribution was taken up and adopted. Past Master M. D. Dawson of London moved the adoption of report of Finance Committee which was done. The figures presented under this order to be in a flourishing condition. The order collected during the year $256,015 on beneficiary account. For this purposes they made 14 assessments. They paid 143 death claims amounting to $286,000, leaving the small balance of $15. The smallest amount collected in any one month, when there was one assessment, was about $19,000. The months that a double assessment was made produced about $40,000. The committee congratulate the order in having no unsatisfied or disputed claims. A very large proportion of the deaths were young men, 53 passing away under the age of 40 years and 81 dying under the age of 45 years; 17 young men died under 30. The order paid in 1890 to their widows and orphans $286,000, and it cost $24,000 only for expenses, showing that the certificate holders got for the year 1890 eleven-twelfths of all moneys received by the grand recorder.

Twenty-six new lodges have been added to the roll during the past year; 19 in the province of Ontario, four in Quebec and three in Manitoba. The membership has made a net increase of 3135, making the total membership 23,404. The average death rate per 1000 was only 8.7.

A telegram of fraternal greeting was received from the Grand Lodge of the Sons of Canada in session in Peterboro. A committee of the Grand Lodge, A.O.U.W., responded in suitable terms. An official communication was also received from the grand officers of the Order of Canadian Home Circles, conveying fraternal congratulations, which was reciprocated.

The time of the evening session, from 7.30 to 11 p.m., was occupied in the consideration and discussion of the revised constitution.

An agreeable break in this work was caused by the visit of Edward Towe, high chief ranger of the Canadian Order of Foresters, who was warmly greeted by the A.O.U.W. Grand Lodge.

The discussion on the new constitution will be continued this morning and the election of officers will take place in the afternoon.

Well-Known Citizen Dead.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Mr Alexander McDonald of 158 Euclid-avenue, for the past 30 years an official of the Crown Lands Department, died after an illness of less than five days. The deceased came to Canada in the forties with the 93rd Highlanders. In Quebec he bought his discharge and was employed as messenger in the offices there attached to the Department of Crown Lands. Afterwards he was transferred to Ottawa and on Confederation was removed to Toronto where he held the position of clerk and messenger in the Crown Lands Department until his death. He was an honorary member of the Army and Navy Veterans.

Peter McSweyn, of the firm of McSweyn & Sons, merchant tailors, Queen-street west passed peacefully away yesterday afternoon at his residence after a three weeks' illness. The deceased was a most distinguished and much respected member of the Royal Templars of Temperance, the Gaelic and other societies. He leaves a widow and three children, all grown up, to mourn his loss.

Foreign Labor Notes.

The Labor Council of the port of London, at a secret meeting held yesterday, reported that they would consider the proposal for a general strike as an answer to the Shipping Federation's manifesto. The council represents all the shipping and dock unions.

A recurrence of serious labor troubles which may affect the wool crop is feared in Victoria, Australia. The trouble originates in the opposition of the shearers who belong to the union to the employment by the sheep farmers of "free" or non-union shearers. A wholesale strike upon the part of the union shearers is anticipated.

Lynched on General Principles.

NACOGDOCHES, Tex., Feb. 18.—News has just reached here of the lynching at the village of Douglas of a negro named Tom Robin. The cause assigned is on general principles. He a notorious character, who somehow succeeded in getting out of tight places in the law's meshes, and had been guilty of numerous crimes.

THE NEWS OF EUROPE.

A HOT FIGHT PROMISED THROUGHOUT IRELAND.

Justice Stephen and The Maybrick Case—Wholesale Murders of Children in London—The New Cure For Anthrax—Emperor William and Bismarck.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The chief interest in the pending Irish dispute now centres around the campaign about to be opened in Ireland, and for which the McCarthyites have about completed their preparations. The authorized report of their meeting yesterday hardly conveys an adequate idea of the result of their deliberations. An active, vigorous campaign was decided upon and will be undertaken in advance. It will be well maintained even if, to do so, it is found necessary to deplete the Irish benches during the discussion of the Irish Land bill.

Between 20 and 30 Nationalists, including the unpopular Healy and the popular Sexton, leave London at once. To ensure for these orators a fitting reception, the priests have been communicated with and full directions sent out.

The officials are congratulating themselves upon the fact that 8176 persons, representing that number of families, are now employed upon the light railways in the west of Ireland, the appropriation for the construction of which were made by parliament early in the session. The result of this Government measure of relief has already been to largely mitigate the suffering in the congested districts and bridge over the most trying season of the year.

Capt. Vandeleur is about to again begin evictions in County Clare. It will be remembered that 18 months ago Capt. Vandeleur met the National League half way and agreed to leave the dispute with his tenants to the arbitration of Sir Charles Russell. The cause of Capt. Vandeleur's present action is the failure on the part of the tenants to carry out the conditions of Sir Charles' award.

Fierce Language and Broken Heads.

DUBLIN, Feb. 18.—The Express says Ireland is committed to the strife of two powerful parties, a state of affairs not seen before, save in the time of the civil war. Soon fierce language will be used and probably broken heads will follow. The contest really is between Mr. Parnell and the hierarchy and will result in the overthrow of the hierarchy by Mr. Parnell, or vice versa. $25,000, the first instalment of the Liberal grant to the McCarthyites, has been deposited in checks signed by Mr. Morley and Mr. McCarthy.

Michael Davitt, who has been visiting the west coast of Ireland, reports that the inhabitants of that coast are badly in need of seed. Mr. Davitt pronounces the road repairing work being done at Achille to be mere burlesque and adds that the children are suffering from a lack of milk.

The Cure for Anthrax.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Some further particulars have now transpired concerning the cure for anthrax, which, as announced last month, has been discovered by Mr. E. H. Hankin, the English bacteriologist. His cure of anthrax is based upon his previous discovery of protective proteids. It is a well-known fact that rats possess immunity from many diseases, including anthrax. This is due to the presence of protective proteids, which in rats has a greater power of resisting microbes than it has in the case of other animals. This substance Mr. Hankin has succeeded in isolating, extracting it from the system of rats with the aid of a 50 per cent. solution of glycerine. This is the same medium as is employed by Dr. Koch, but it is observed that it was used by Mr. Hankin prior to the publication of the German professor's articles on the completion of his remedy for tuberculosis. By Mr. Hankin's process, the extract is precipitated in alcohol, and the precipitate is then dissolved in water. Experiments with the new remedy on mice and other animals have given highly satisfactory results. The importance of Mr. Hankin's discovery is not confined to anthrax, as it is possibly capable of extension to the other diseases from which rats enjoy an immunity.

JUSTICE STEPHENS RESIGNS.

He Has Never Recovered From the Worry of the Maybrick Case.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Sir James Fitz-James Stephen, M.A., justice of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, has resigned his seat on the bench. Justice Stephen is in ill health, his sickness being attributed to the worry and excitement which he was subjected to during the trial of Mrs. Florence Elizabeth Maybrick, the American, in August, 1889, who was tried and convicted in Liverpool on the charge of having poisoned her husband, James Maybrick, by administering arsenic to him. Justice Stephen presided at Mrs. Maybrick's trial.

LANCASTER, Pa. Feb. 17.—The mutilated body of a colored man was found Saturday in a chicken coop on the premises of Mrs. Mary Spencer, in North Duke-street, a fashionable part of this city. His head had almost been severed from the body by three gashes inflicted in the back part of the neck. The body was taken to an undertaker's establishment.

Shortly afterwards the son of Henry Roland entered, and after looking at the corpse exclaimed that it was that of his father. A moment later, to the surprise of all present, Henry Roland himself entered. It was noticed that he bore a striking resemblance to the deceased man. It seems, however, that the dead man was John Roland, as shown by a railroad ticket found in his pocket, although he is not related to Henry Roland. It is said that Roland had sold a carload of horses and was robbed and killed.

Manager and Dancer Elope.

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—Al Haynes, one of the proprietors of the dime museum known as the Nickelodeon, disappeared this morning and so did Cyrene who has been billed as Carmencita's rival. Judging from the fact that Haynes left a letter for his partner, Austin, stating that he had eloped with the woman, this statement of the case is probably true. Early this morning Cyrene settled her bill with her landlady on Alston-street and drove away with her trunks in a hack. A short time afterward she and Haynes were seen at the city ticket office of the Old Colony Railroad, and it is supposed that they fled in the direction of New York.

Cyrene began her engagement only yesterday, but she had danced at the Nickelodeon before, and her acquaintance with Haynes was formed then. She is alleged to have a husband in New York. Haynes' accounts are all straight.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

COLONIAL QUESTIONS DISCUSSED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Great Britain Opposes the Request of the Newfoundland Assembly and Will Not Approve of the Proposed Convention With the United States.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Lord Dunraven, the champion of an imperial zollverein for Great Britain and the colonies, questioned the Government in the House of Lords regarding the documents which the Government had promised a few days ago to present, relative to the draft of a convention between Newfoundland and the United States.

Lord Knutsford, in behalf of the Cabinet, said that a misapprehension had arisen on the subject in Newfoundland as to the course of the British Government, which has been condemned for breaking engagements that never were made. Leave to negotiate did not imply imperial sanction of the results of the negotiation. The Canadian Government was strongly opposed to the Newfoundland convention and the Imperial Government had decided after mature consideration that the proposed convention should not for the present be completed.

Lord Denman offered a motion for a bill giving suffrage to women who were householders.

Lord Salisbury thought it unwise to interfere with the franchises as at present established, as the Commons might take advantage of such a proposition to initiate other and less desirable changes.

A Colonial Zollverein.

In the House of Commons Mr. Vincent moved that the Government at the earliest opportunity invite the British colonies to a conference in London to decide the best means of forming a zollverein. He contended that imperial federation was only to be obtained through commercial federation. Many of the leading colonial statesmen and others favored commercial federation.

Sir Lyon Playfair criticized the motion as covering a protectionist movement. He argued that owing to the varied interests of the colonies a zollverein was impracticable. He quoted statistics showing the increase of British trade during the present regime. He contended that it would be most injudicious to arrest the reaction in America against excessive protection induced by the McKinley law by introducing differential duties against America for the benefit of the colonies. Considering all the circumstances there was no basis to justify parliament in inviting the colonies to a conference. In conclusion, he expressed a hope for an ultimate union of the colonies on a free trade basis.

Mr. Lowther declared that there was no real free trade party in America and that the whole world with the exception of England was becoming protectionist. He said: "Unless we give our colonies commercial facilities we had better make up our minds to advocate the imperial position."

Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that, whatever might be the fate of the motion, England had no desire to influence the Canadian elections. He sympathized with some points of Mr. Vincent's speech. He believed that the increasing desire for a closer union between England and the colonies ought to be fostered. He also conceded that many of the views of Adam Smith and John Stuart Mill had lost the authority they formerly exerted and that it was no longer possible to denounce opposing views as clap-trap. Still he must hold to what was sound in their views and he hoped that the suspicions of barking protection would not retard a union of the colonies.

While he granted that the country must be prepared for some fiscal changes in the interests of that union, colonists must understand that it was impossible for England to tax corn. [Cheers.] There was no likelihood, he said, that the colonies would consent to a conference on a free trade basis. There only remained differential duties, and he failed to see how they could be imposed. It seemed to him, therefore, that the conference would be merely an invitation to follow a "will-o'-the wisp."

Mr. Vincent withdrew the motion.

The Alabama Claims.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—In the House of Commons Hon. W. H. Smith said, in reply to a question, that, according to published accounts in America, a portion of the Alabama indemnity remained in the hands of the United States Government, but it would be contrary to the engagement of the treaty of Washington in 1871 for the English Government to request a return of the money.

William Will Not Prosecute.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—A Berlin despatch says that at the dinner given by Chancellor von Caprivi Emperor William distinctly stated that he had no intention of prosecuting Bismarck.

Due to the Tariff.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—James Wilson & Sons, builders of Bradford, have failed, liabilities £80,000. The failure is attributed chiefly to the new U.S. tariff law, killing cash trade in packing cases for woolens sent to America.

Bismarck Discredits It.

LONDON, Feb 8.—A despatch from Berlin says Bismarck is convinced the reports as to the Emperor's "injurious opinion" of himself are untrue and are "inventions of Bismarck's enemies." Bismarck is quoted as saying: "The Emperor knows too well how to estimate the motives which prompt my political warnings to doubt my patriotism."

Sitting Bull's Cabin has been Given Over to Them.

BISMARCK, N.D., Feb. 18.—The Indians give Sitting Bull's cabin a wide berth. Every Indian on the reservation shares in the belief that the building is nightly inhabited by the disembodied spirit of the old warrior and his men. Even Sitting Bull's two wives and children have deserted the cabin.

An Apparition Flags the Trains.

WAY CROSS, Ga., Feb. 18.—Conductor Pierson of the Brunswick & Western Road has asked for a day-run because of a ghost-like apparition which, he avers, meets the night trains near here. The ghost appears on the track as if to signal down a train. Several nights ago loud screams were heard as the train dashed by here.

Driven Out By a Valentine.

ATLANTA, Feb. 19.—The Rev. R. R. McKay of Lagrange tendered his resignation to the Baptist Church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service and insisted that it should be accepted, which was finally done. He stated that he had received an anonymous letter on St. Valentine's Day signed "Your Valentine," informing him that the church was tired of him and musing charges against him which he branded as utterly false. He will go back to Canada, whence he came.

He Was Undressed in Three Seconds.

TROWBRIDGE, Pa., Feb. 17.—Clarence Belknap runs a portable wood-sawing machine in this place. The other day while the machine was running rapidly Belknap was caught in the shafting. In just three seconds after he was caught he was set down in a snowbank 25 feet away. Every stitch of clothing from his shirt to his boots and stockings had been stripped off him and he was not hurt to the extent of a scratch.

Fireman and Two Passengers Killed.

CHARLOTTE, N.C., Feb. 17.—A mixed passenger and freight train on the Chester & Lenoir Narrow Gauge Railroad jumped the track on the trestle two miles south of Newton yesterday afternoon. The killed were: J. Hoag, fireman; H. M. Morrow and W. W. Ross. Those seriously injured were: Frank Coulter, C. C. Dunlap, conductor; M. Johnston and Rev. J. M. Little.

C.P.R. Earnings.

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—The following is the return of traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Feb. 7 to Feb. 14 1891: 1891, $334,000; 1890, $253,000. Increase for 1891 $101,000. Earnings of the New Brunswick Railway included both years.

THEY FOUGHT TO A FINISH.

Ryan Knocked Out Needham in Seventy-six Rounds at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 18.—Ryan knocked Needham out in the seventy-sixth round.

At 2.30 o'clock President Harris of the Twin City Club announced his intention of making Needham and Ryan fight to a finish. Up to that time 73 rounds had been fought, and the men were simply walking around each other, letting fly a blow occasionally.

With round 76 each man came up for blood, Ryan leading effectively with his left. Ryan used his left again, and knocked Needham down. A clinch followed, and Needham was knocked down again. Ryan dealing an upper cut, knocking Needham down repeatedly, and the call of time only saved him from being knocked out. As it was he was carried to his corner in a dazed condition, and before time was called his seconds threw up the sponge. The fight is universally considered one of the greatest fought in the country. The exact time of the fight was five hours and five minutes. Needham was badly punished, especially about the face. Ryan escaped without a mark.

DEATH BY DIPHTHERIA.

Terrible Ravages of Diphtheria in Essex County.

WINDSOR, Feb. 18.—Six members of the family of John Prosser, a farm laborer on the Walker farm, near Walkerville, have died from diphtheria during the past three weeks. The first child died on Jan. 28, the second within a week, two others last week, within a couple of days of each other, and these had scarcely been buried when a pair of twins were affected, and they died last night. Out of a family of eight children but two are left.

POWDERLY STRICKEN.

Suddenly Attacked With Heart Disease After Making a Speech.

TOPEKA, Kan. Feb. 18.—T. V. Powderly, General Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, at the conclusion of his speech in the Hall of Representatives last night fell to his chair prostrated by heart disease. He recovered in a short time and walked to his hotel and immediately took to his bed. This morning he decided to cancel all his Western engagements and departed for his home at Scranton, Pa. This is the third attack of that kind which Mr. Powderly has suffered while on his present trip.

AN ASYLUM FOR DEFAULTERS.

The Absconding St. Catharines' Loan Co Manager in Buenos Ayres.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 18.—Mr. David Mills, a widely known drug traveler of this city, writes to a friend here a letter bearing date Jan. 12, from Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, South America. "On the 9th inst. I was walking on one of the principal streets in this city in company with my wife when I suddenly came face to face with A. M. Macrea. He was walking alone and looked very crestfallen and unhappy. He appeared to recognize us, but neither of us spoke. He is not extraditable in this republic, whose population is about one-third composed of refugees from justice."

It will be remembered that the A. M. Macrea mentioned in this letter is the dashing "Matt" Macrae formerly secretary-treasurer of the St. Catharines Security Loan & Savings Co., who absconded with some $30,000 of the company's money in September last.

Fatal Fire in Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—A woman and four children were suffocated and a man was probably fatally burned in a fire that occurred at Delmonico-place and Hopkinson-line, Brooklyn, this morning. Jacob Enrich was at work in the basement over a pot of boiling fat in a large pot at 4.30 o'clock this morning, when the pot boiled over, and running to the floor set fire to the surrounding woodwork. In a few minutes the building was on fire and dense smoke was pouring through the halls. Enrich was badly burned and cannot live. On the top floor were found Mrs. John Henry and her four children, dead. The woman and her children were asleep when the fire broke out and were overcome by the smoke before they could escape.

A Hundred Dollars Stolen by a Mouse.

MONMOUTH, Ill., Feb. 18.—Fifteen years ago a $100 bill disappeared from the cash drawer of the Second National Bank of Monmouth and a customer, now deceased, was suspected of having been overpaid. Last night a workman in dissecting an old counter found the lost bank note in a mouse nest and the cloud on the dead man's name is lifted. The bill, which was issued by the Pittsburg National Bank, is not badly mutilated and will be readily redeemed.

Discovery of a Murderous Conspiracy in Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 18.—A startling conspiracy has been discovered here, but the details are kept secret by the police and government officials. It is known, however, that the plot embraced the proposed assassination of the principal members of the government. Considerable excitement, naturally, has followed the discovery of the conspiracy.

The A. A. Jumps.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The report of the withdrawal of the American Association from the National agreement was substantiated at the St. James' Hotel to-day, where the delegates of the association are in session for the purpose of effecting organization. President Thurman has been removed for bad faith to the association. New officers are being elected.

Frightened to Death.

CLINTON, Mo., Feb. 18.—Mrs. M. Trois linger of Leesville died yesterday from fright. She was sitting in a wagon watching her son cut down a tree. The tree fell toward the wagon, and the boy called to his mother to get out of the way. She seemed unable to move. The tree crashed down just behind the wagon without touching Mrs. Trollinger, but she fell over dead. Physicians examined the body and say they found no sign of the woman having been hit. They assign the cause to paralysis of the heart.

Coasting Accident.

HASTINGS, Feb. 18.—John Walsh, a lad of 9, was coasting when the sled collided with the Clarendon House platform, throwing Walsh against the brick wall. When picked up it was found that the left thigh bones were shattered.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Feb. 18.—Ida May and Willie May, twin daughters of David Leman of this city, aged 14, were playing with a loaded revolver to-day, when it suddenly exploded in the hands of Ida. The bullet entered Willie's right eye and lodged in the brain. She died this evening.

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle class one because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

Not Charity, But Justice.

St. John's Second Lenten Address—An Eloquent Discourse on "Our Social Responsibilities"—Justice, not Charity, the Right of the Poor.

There was a large congregation at St. John's Church last night to attend the Wednesday evening service and listen to the second lecture of the Lenten series, delivered by Rev. E. A. Oliver, of St. Simon's Church, Toronto, on the subject of "Our Social Responsibilities." The address was thoughtful, eloquent, and was attentively listened to. A summary of the address can in no wise do it justice.

REV. MR. OLIVER said that the social problem was the burning problem of this age—one which gained the attention of the Lambeth conference, and no other problem more than socialism demanded the efforts and best thoughts of clergy and laity. The teaching of Christ was that the poor had a special claim upon the sympathy of the Christian Church. The matter for the church to consider was not that of charity, but justice towards humanity. The extremes of poverty and wealth were not as yet very noticeable in Canada, except as the result to a great extent of improvidence and intemperance; yet living under the same economic conditions as other civilized countries we must look for the same conditions in Canada. The world at present was characterized by a revolt on the part of wage earners against the tyranny of capital. The condition of the wage-earner was sketched up to the time of the invention of the steam engine, after which

and the old social and friendly relations of employer and employed changed, and the latter became regarded by the former merely in the light of animate machinery, which was to yield the maximum of work at the minimum of cost. Business became a substitute for conscience. The struggle of the workmen with manufacturing monopolies, with immense ramifications as it existed in the form of combines, was that of the slave against his oppressor. The real menace to the moral and political commonwealth lay in a tolerance of a plutocracy, and the oppression of the wage earner. A plutocracy first corrupted, and then destroyed a nation. A plutocray was unfitted to be a governing body. What was wanted to to deal with these questions was not light upon the mind but love in the heart—a recognition in a practical form of the brotherhood of man. Christ's incarnation sanctified every condition and relation of life by personal contact. He made poverty and toil and the rights of man sacred. Only after Christ's coming could it be said "honour all men", for with God there was no respect of persons. A belief in the brotherhood of man would permit no sympathy with a state of society that made the rich the oppressors of the poor, that made life a perpetual struggle, that made

A WOMAN SACRIFICE HER VIRTUE

to support herself or children. We should extend our generous sympathy to labour organizations. The absence of organization among women gave rise to the "Song of the Shirt," and the speaker denounced in burning terms the grinding cruelty of the system that crushed out the life of women toiling for a miserable pittance of a few cents. While there was much said against labor organizations, there was more to be said against the tyranny of capital that oppressed and degraded the workingmen. The leading members of labor movements were the best representatives of their class. Kindly sympathetic interest in those who try to help themselves was the only way to bridge over the chasm that divided society. If there were no remedy for these things, then God help us—or rather there is no God—for evil is enthroned above good. Has the development of political freedom arrested moral development and produced social slavery? It was not good political economy, when shocked by the present state of society, to say that it was unwise to interfere with

THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

The special mission of the church to the world was a social mission. We had devoted too much attention to the selfish work of saving our own miserable souls and paid too little attention to the bodily wants of our fellow men. Christ was our King, and the sermon on the mount was the statute book, and that would lead us to mete out justice, not charity. To the workmen the speaker said that high wages and shorter hours were not an end, but a means to an end, and that end was the search for a higher life. Warning against the curse of strong drink was faithfully made. Be faithful husbands and loving fathers. Read good books. Be moral and, above all, be religious, for moral evil could not be legislated out of the world. In Jesus Christ alone was the remedy for moral evil.

Sons of Canada.

Close of the Supreme Lodge Session—Citizens Honored.

The annual session of the Supreme Lodge of the Sons of Canada was brought to a close Wednesday afternoon.

After the installation of officers the Committees on Suspensions and Expulsions, and Districts, reported.

Then a civic deputation, consisting of Mayor Stevenson, Councillors E. H. D. Hall and R. S. Davidson, and Town Clerk Macdonald was introduced. They were received by the Supreme President very cordially, who thanked them for the kindly manner in which the delegates had been received in the town. It gave him pleasure, he said, in taking the rather unusual course of recognizing them as honorary members of the Supreme Lodge during the session. Each of the deputation replied appropriately, after which business was resumed, the two councillors remaining for some time.

On motion, London was chosen as the next place of meeting.

The press committee reported verbally.

A despatch of fraternal greeting was sent to the Grand Master Workman and delegates of the Grand Lodge of the A.O.U.W., in session at Toronto. A happy reply was received.

A motion was passed that the full proceedings of the session of the Supreme Lodge be printed and copies sent to the subordinate lodges.

The question of establishing an official organ was discussed and referred to the executive.

The report of the committee appointed to draft a reply to the Supreme President's address was read and adopted.

On motion of Mr. Laird, of the Port Hope Times, the thanks of the Supreme Lodge was tendered, by a standing vote, to the local papers for their reports of the proceedings.

The secretary's salary was increased by $100.

The Supreme Lodge then adjourned.

A Startling Fact.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every one of the poisons it inhales passes over [illegible] and thus affects the whole [illegible] no cure of catarrh so reliable [illegible] equals Nasal Balm, which [illegible] the Atlantic to the Pacific [illegible] certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50c's. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Hallard & Co. Brockville, Ont.

No Equal Rights Candidate.

The Dominion Elections Allowed to go by Default.

The adjourned convention of the Equal Rights Association Wednesday afternoon ended in a fiasco. Mr. E. Douglass Armour's retusal of the nomination was placed before the meeting, and it was decided that the Association should not put a candidate in the field. A resolution was passed giving the members of the Association the right to vote as their "consciences dictated." This clause provoked considerable opposition, a number of those present contending that to thus fall back into the old party lines would be practically abandoning their principles. However, the resolution carried. And thus ends Equal Rights, so far as the present campaign is concerned at least.

Fourth Line, Smith.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The directors and patrons of the central Smith cheese factory assembled Tuesday evening at the temperance hall to hold their annual tea and entertainment. Mr. McEwan was called to occupy the chair, and the following programme was arranged for the occasion:—

Address	Chairman.
Overture	Band.
Address	Mr. A. Young.
Music	Archer Bros.
Reading	Miss Phillips.
Solo	John E. Hodgson.
Address	B. Davis.
Selection	Band.
Recitation	Miss M. McEwan.
Reading	R. Bell.
Solo	John E. Hodgson.
Dialogue	Misses Milburn and McEwan.
Address	W. Graham.
Music	Archer Bros.
Recitation	R. McEwan.
Selection	H. Williamson.
Recitation	Miss E. Darling.
Music	John E. Hodgson.
Address	Chairman.
God Save the Queen.

The remarks were confined chiefly to the art of cheese-making in all its branches. The ladies furnished the edibles, and a most sumptuous repast awaited everybody. The music and vocal solos were rendered in a good style, especially Mr. J. E. Hodgson, who was repeatedly encored. Mr. Hodgson is a young man of great musical ability, and bids fair to be a fine musician and vocalist. The entertainment came to a close in the usual manner. Everybody was well pleased the way the evening had been spent.

What Medical Science is Doing

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Beware of imitations.

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. dw

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of Yorkville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w61

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Elm street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

THAT tired, languid feeling, and dull headache, is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good. dw

Dull headaches, dimness of vision, partial deafness, constant hawking and spitting are a few of the symptoms of catarrh. Nasal Balm is the only certain cure known. Give it a trial sodw

Was the remark made by a prominent representative of one of the largest and best American Life Insurance Companies, when he had carefully examined the ordinary life policy of The TEMPERANCE AND GENERAL Life Assurance Company.

This is the only policy offered to the Canadian public that cannot either lapse nor expire as to its paid up value till death ensues, after three annual premiums have been paid on it.

Our Limited Payment Life Policy, or Instalment Bonds, our Common Sense Renewable Term Policies, and our Survivors' Endowment Bonds are all possessed of new and excellent features and are all worthy of careful consideration.

CHARCOT ON HYPNOTISM

A NIECE OF THE FAMOUS DOCTOR ON THE MYSTERIOUS FORCE.

Some Dangers From Charlatans—A Victim May be Completely Wrecked in Mind —A Mysterious Power That May Cure Diseases of the Nerves.

Mlle. Aguar Charrot, a neice of the famous Paris doctor, writes: My object in coming to this country is to give private exhibitions of hypnotism with a view of introducing the science to the notice of the medical fraternity especially and of the public as well. In France hypnotism is acknowledged as a power. There are two schools there for the study and practice of its principles.

One of these, the Ecole de Nancy, is under the control of regular medical men, and also has financial support from the Government. It claims that almost all persons are susceptible, and works on the subject to be hypnotised by means of the optic nerve and will power. That is, the person to be put in the trance is made to look at some bright object until his eyes become tired, when he readily falls asleep at the will of the operator. The other school is that of my uncle, M. Charcot, who operates under the auspices of the Hopital Saltpetriere. He claims that only "sensitives" can be worked upon, and depends on will-power and the ability to suggest to the subject the idea which he wishes him to have. There are also numerous "free lances," who wander around the country giving tests and exhibitions just as there are renegade doctors and lawyers; but the fact that there are regular schools gives hypnotism a position on the Continent which it does not hold in America or in England.

Hypnotism has undoubtedly been responsible for many cases of nervous prostration and even of insanity. The danger to one who is in the hands of an unskilful practitioner is very great.

The conquered mind is at the mercy of the stronger. But if the stronger, through ignorance or carelessness, does not return it as it found it to its former dwelling disaster must occur. When not properly awakened the subject acted upon returns to consciousness in a dazed condition. He feels as an ordinary person does when he first awakens from a deep sleep, but in his case a real awakening never comes. Always a haze, an uncertainty, the knowledge of something lacking is present with him. He cannot remember, he cannot understand things distinctly. A cloud seems to surround him, giving to everything an air of unreality. He is lost and he strives for he knows not what. All this increases, the nervousness grows, he becomes gloomy or hysterical: at last his mind gives way. He has been despoiled of his birthright. For one evening's experience he has paid what is worth more than life itself. But when the patient is properly awakened there is no after effect.

But aside from the mental danger from the hypnotic trance when improperly administered, there is also a physical danger. The effect on the action of the heart is especially marked when the subject is coming out of the mesmeric state. Unless the operator is very careful complications occur even in those whose heart action is normal, and when there is any latent disease the shock to this delicate piece of mechanism is apt to cause heart failure, and death may ensue.

The chief aim and end of the science, I repeat, is the healing of disease; that is, it aims to control the human organism by means of mental impressions produced on the subject by the operator. In other words, when the mind of the subject is made to act upon himself is one phase, and when his mind is made to act in relation to people and things external to himself is another. The first may be called the hypnotic-legal aspect of the science. For as soon as any one attempts to control the will of another so as to influence his actions he immediately assumes a legal responsibility, and the operator, and not the unconscious instrument in his hands, is morally, and should be legally, responsible for anything that he may do. I am very anxious that stringent laws should be passed which would make it a criminal offense for those not properly qualified to practise hypnotism.

The capabilities of hypnotism are as yet circumscribed: the future will show its possibilities.

And So Say We All of Us.

Church bells are gross offenders against the ease of Christian folk, and in England seem more calculated to irritate the sinner than sooth and invite the worshiper. We are not a musical nation in spite of our immense pretense in this direction, and our modern campanology is perhaps the most intolerable in Christendom. The chimes at Antwerp or Salzburg, for example, will offend only the most sensitive ear, but a clamorous little bell, rung from a steeple at early morning and evening time, with tinklings throughout the day, seems an instrument carefully designed to worry all the dwellers within its range. In an age when every room has its clock, and every adult his watch, this constant bell-ringing seems unnecessary.

It should be within the power of our councils and municipal authorities to deal sharply with persons who create disturbance at night by shouting, screaming and singing. For the weary and hard worked citizen these discordant sounds are hard enough to bear, for the sick and restless they are intolerable. The hours of rest are none too long.—British Medical Journal.

It Doesn't Pay.

Out of fifty counterfeiters arrested in the last eighteen months, only twenty-three of them had passed $30 worth of the "queer," and only five of them had made a profit of $3 per day for the time engaged. It doesn't pay as well as sawing wood at sixty cents a cord, and arrest is sure to come within a year or two.

The Modern Version.

Cross (wrathfully)—I wonder who could have sent me this abominable valentine.

Blackwell—A friend; most likely.

Cross—Why a friend?

Blackwell—Because "a friend should have a friend's infirmities."

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

FIRE AT AYLMER.

Big Brick Block in the Centre of the Town Totally Destroyed.

AYLMER, Feb. 17.—The large brick block situated in the centre of the business portion of this town and owned by D. H. Price was destroyed by fire last evening.

The block contained two stores, one of which was occupied by McIntyre & Davis, drygoods, and the other by J. E. Richards, druggist. So rapidly did the fire spread that not a dollar's worth of goods could be taken from the drygoods store and only a small proportion from the drug store.

The building is a total wreck. McIntyre & Davis lose $13,000 insurance $8500; J. E. Richards $4000, insurance $1700; D. H. Price $6000, insurance $3500; Mrs. Feald, fancy store, damaged by water and smoke, $5000, fully insured; L. J. Gunlry & Co., damaged by water and smoke, $500, fully insured.

TWO MILLION IN PRESENTS.

Some of the Gifts for the Astor-Willing Nuptials.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—Probably no bridal couple has ever been presented with gifts so numerous and costly as have been received by Miss Ava Willing and John Jacob Astor, who plighted their troth to-day at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 511 South Broad-street.

More than $2,000,000 has been spent by their wealthy friends and relatives. The presents consist chiefly of jewelry, silver and bronze and statuary. One of the most valuable ones is a completely furnished house in Fifth-avenue, New York, where the bride and groom will take up their residence after their return from abroad.

Mr. Astor's gift is a magnificent brooch, with diamond pendant, a diamond crescent, a sapphire and diamond brooch and a beautiful diamond riviere. Mrs. William Astor's present is a superb silver table service, modeled after her own service. Mrs. James R. Roosevelt sent a massive silver tray exquisitely etched. Mrs. J. Coleman Drayton's gift is two large silver dishes and Mrs. Orme Wilson's an exquisite set of silver candelabra.

The bride wore a Worth gown of rich white satin, made in exquisitely simple fashion, with a flounce of point lace across the foot of the skirt. The corsage was slightly opened at the throat and filled in with lace, which matched in pattern the priceless point lace veil. She wore the groom's gift—a magnificent tiara of diamonds made in the shape of fleur de lis. Her bouquet was of orchids, valley lilies and orange blossoms.

An Undeniable Fact.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claim for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hatchise, of Rokeway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1891.

A STRIKING CO-INCIDENCE.

In this country there is no connection between church and state, but last night presented a remarkable coincidence in the utterances and sentiments of a churchman and a statesman—for the happy, broad, liberal speech of Mr. John Bertram in the opera house was a statesmen-like deliverance. One of the chief points of his speech was that justice, not charity, was what the farmers and workingmen of the country required—not charity in the shape of state legislation, but just laws that would remove their shackles and place them on an equality with the rest of the community—laws just to all and not for the benefit of a favoured few. This was the grand work and basis of true prosperity, and the only prosperity that could be permanent—that resulting from right and justice applied to the government of the nation. On the same evening, at the same hour, Rev. Mr. Oliver, of St. Simon's church, Toronto, was delivering a Lenten lecture in St. John's church on the subject of our "Social Responsibilities," and the sum of the position he assumed, in his definition of the church's relation to the poor and humble, was that their claim was to justice, not charity—the application to their condition of the God-given right of justice. Our Divine Redeemer's incarnation means even-handed justice to all men, for God is no respecter of persons, and the state that founds its laws upon this rock gives the people the government in accordance with the divine will.

MR. BERTRAM'S SPEECH.

Though cabinet ministers have addressed the people from the platform of the opera house, there has never been a more statesmanlike speech addressed to a Peterborough audience than that given by Mr. John Bertram in the opera house last night. The speech was broad, fair liberal, respectful to friend and foe, bristling with hard facts and hard-hitting comments, and withal sonorous throughout with the true Liberal ring. It showed how the "National Policy" had failed to benefit the country; how it had handicapped the farmers the workingman and even the manufacturers—of peculiarly Canadian articles—by taxing raw material, and by closing the natural market of Canada to the farmer—how it had failed to promote or even protect the interests of the working classes—how it had enormously benefitted a few at the expense of the many. His logical arguments to show how the country had failed to derive benefit from a high tariff policy, and the benefit that would accrue from a policy of reciprocal trade, carried conviction to his intelligent and attentive audience. His speech was not a clap-trap appeal to passion, prejudice and ignorance, not an appeal to windy enthusiasm, but a thoughtful address for thinking men, a strong and telling arraignment of the Government's policy of corruption, high taxation and unpatriotic injustice, and a hearty endorsement of the liberal, just and patriotic policy of the Liberal party.

BARLEY HERE AND THERE.

Barley in Peterborough, on Feb. 17th was 43c. to 46c.

There is no doubt about these quotations being correct, and such as any good Conservative will accept. The Buffalo quotation is from the Empire of Feb. 18th, and the Peterborough quotation is given by Mr. W. H. Wrighton. No comment is needed.

COURSE OF THE CAMPAIGN

Ennismore.

A rousing meeting in the interests of Mr. Hall was held at O'Reilly's school house. Mr. Peter Hamilton, manufacturer, opened the meeting, and was followed by Messrs. Richard Hall, Geo. Ball and C. J. Leonard in vigorous speeches. Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for Mr. Stevenson. Mr. Hugh O'Leary, of Lindsay, closed the meeting with a rattling speech.

Centreville.

A meeting was held at Centreville in Mr. Hall's interest. Mr. Wm. Rutherford occupied the chair. The Liberal speakers were Messrs. E. B. Edwards and G. M. Roger; Mr. J. H. Beraham appeared for Mr. Stevenson.

Personal.

NOT CHARITY, BUT JUSTICE

Mr. John Bertram's Statesman-Address.

The Questions of the Day Fairly and Conclusively Dealt With—Speeches by Mr. John Bertram, of Toronto, Dr. Bell and Dr. Goldsmith—The Government's Money Squandered.

The political meeting in the opera house Wednesday night in the interest of Mr. Hall, the Liberal candidate, was a grand success. The auditorium was crowded, while on the platform were a number of representative men of the riding. In the gallery there was a large number of ladies, whose encouraging presence was referred to more than once during the evening. The meeting was most orderly throughout. Mr. Bertram's address was clear, logical and convincing. He put the great questions of the day in a fair light and left the electors to decide for themselves. That his opinions found hearty endorsation with the audience was shown by the hearty and frequent applause during his speech.

Dr. Goldsmith occupied the chair. On the platform, besides the speakers, Mr. John Bertram and Dr. Bell, the following gentlemen among others were observed:

R. Kingan, R. S. Davidson, H. C. Stabler, Adam Hall, A. Clegg, F. J. Bell, M. O'Brien, P. McHugh, Wm. Lee, J. McGrath, C. E. Rosch, J. B. McWilliams, McFarlane Wilson, Wm. Davidson, Geo. E. Elliott, W. H. McElwain, S. Clegg, Geo. Cochrane, John Wright, Geo. Brown, Edward Bowie, Wm. Yelland, Valentine Best, Geo. Leonard, John Babb.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

The chairman first stated he had received a letter notifying him that Mr. Stevenson was out of town, and called upon Mr. Stevenson's representative, if there was any present, to step forward, but no response was made. The chairman then said he was pleased to see such a large audience, as it indicated the universal interest that was being taken in the crisis in Canadian affairs now engrossing public attention. The condition of Canada to-day was not satisfactory. (cheers.) There were evidences of this all around. It was high time that the Canadians looked into the matter. Our farmers were not prosperous nor contented; a million of our native born population had gone over to the United States. It was said that the reason that the farmers of Canada were retrograding was because they were not smart and active enough. He did not believe such was the case. Farmers were never so intelligent or industrious as now. Our country was the best under the sun and the people as it were as good as any on the face of the earth. What, then, was the solution of the trouble? The speaker believed the farmer was losing from $300 to $500 a year on the produce he sells, and overpaying from $100 to $200 on the goods he bought. (Applause.) That was the reason there were so many chattel mortgages and so much distress among the farmers to-day. The farmer was cornered so that he could not better himself, by not being able to buy and sell as he would if the customs houses office between buyer and seller were abolished. (Applause.) The farmer, artisan and manufacturer would be benefited by its abolition. Therefore the electors should not allow side issues to draw their attention away from the main point. There were men on the platform to-day raising the loyalty cry. They hinted at the disloyalty of Reformers, and cast slurs at them. But they dare not openly assert that Reformers were not as true citizens and as loyal patriots to their country as any men. (Applause) They were talking up "the old flag, the old policy, the old leader;" let them talk that all they like, he said, but not cast odium upon men as good and as true as themselves. (Cheers.)

A FALSE LOYALTY CRY.

Dr. BELL was the next speaker. He first discussed the question of why the elections had been brought on as they were. Why was it, he asked, that only four years had elapsed since the last election, when the constitution allowed a five years' term? An election aroused great turmoil and entailed great expense, and should not be brought on any more frequently than necessary. The fact was the Government were trying to snatch a verdict from the electorate. They saw that the reciprocity sentiment was taking hold of the people, and that if it was given another year's time the Government would be swept out of existence. (Loud cheers). Various reasons were assigned; none would justify such a course as the Government had followed. There were other grounds upon which the Government could be arraigned, and the speaker proceeded to mention a few of them. First, the Franchise Act was a most iniquitous measure to keep the Government in power. (Applause) And the election had been sprung on the people so suddenly that the old voters' lists had to be used, and in consequence 120,000 young men were deprived of their franchise. Another charge against the Government was the wholesale bribery going on among its supporters. The speaker referred to the well known timber deals of "Charlie" Rykert, and said a government which allowed such a series of rascalities as had disgraced it, should be swept away. (Cheers.) The McGreevy scandal was also referred to. Either the Government knew of these doings and were guilty of connivance, or if they were ignorant of them it showed a deplorable lack of interest in the country's welfare, for either of which causes they should be put aside. Touching the loyalty cry, the speaker said it was simply beyond contempt so bring up this cry merely for election purposes. The Conservative party should be the last ones to cry disloyalty. It was their policy which had drawn a remark from one of themselves, that if England stood in the way of Canada's prosperity, "so much the worse for Britain." There were also men in the cabinet to-day—Sir A. T. Galt, Hon. Mr. Abbott and Hon. Mr. McPherson—who had signed the rebel manifesto in 1847—And these were the men who were vaunting their excessive loyalty. (cheers.) Who, asked Dr. Bell, burned our parliament buildings and rotten-egged the representative of Her Majesty Lord Elgin? It was not the Reformers. (Applause.) It was the Tories, and they should hang their heads when they speak of the disloyalty of Reformers. Dr. Bell said his father was in the House of Parliament at Montreal the night it was burned. He was sitting with others in the Legislative hall when the first stone was thrown through the window, and soon after the windows were riddled. And when they rushed out to escape with their lives they found the doors barricaded. Nice loyalty, that, that tried to sacrifice lives as well as burn the parliament buildings. (Applause.) It comes with ill grace from the successors of those men to talk of disloyalty to Reformers, and until they disown these acts they should hang their heads in shame. Regarding Reciprocity, Dr. Bell said that 1878 was a time of depression the world over. The Conservatives cried that they were going to do away with free trade, and the people were in such hard straits that they were ready to accept anything. But after events had proved that the Liberal policy was the

and Mr. Mackenzie, the Premier, felt the truth of his convictions to such an extent that, though he could have retained power by adopting the new cry, he refused to do it and retired for the sake of his principles. The question to-day was reciprocity, and it remained for the electors to decide whether the profuse promises made for the N.P. that the land would prosper as it never had before, had been fulfilled. That had not been accomplished; instead the farmers and workingmen of our country were worse off than ever. What we wanted was a free market. (Cheers.) We had immense natural resources, but we wanted a wider market and capitalists to develop it. If reciprocity was secured, which would, no doubt, take place if the Reform party was returned to power, British and American capital would flow in, our wealth be increased, and our workingmen would be given employment. Speaking of the question of reciprocity with regard to poultry, Dr. Bell gave some information from personal knowledge. A year ago last fall American buyers bought thousands of tons of fowl in Canada, and paid 14 and 15c. a pound for turkeys; and 10 and 11c. a pound for geese. Last fall, after the McKinley Bill was passed, the farmers of Canada had to take 5c. a pound less—the amount of the extra tariff. If reciprocity was brought about the old price would be restored. The people should be allowed to buy and sell wherever they could get the best value. (Applause). That was a reasonable way to look at it. Loyalty was best shown by being loyal to our families. (Cheers.) A Government that would crush the people for the sake of loyalty was not loyal to the people, but loyal simply to the manufacturers and Red Parlor monopolists, who subscribed to the election funds. (Cheers) Under Reciprocity Canadian manufacturers would be able to trade with America as freely as one State with another. For trade purposes Ontario would be able to trade with New York State on the same terms as Pennsylvania or any other state. To say that that was the first step to annexation was nonsense. It would not necessitate any change in our political system or lessen our loyalty to the British crown. Dr. Bell felt sure the electors would see it in that common-sense light. The National Policy had been lauded as the goose that would lay the golden egg, but the eggs were few and only shells smoked dry by the monopolist manufacturers, and now they want the farmers to put their mouths to the pig-holes and suck wind. (Laughter and applause.) The empty shell should be sold as a curiosity. It aptly resembled the National Policy and loyalty cry. (Applause.)

MR. BERTRAM'S ADDRESS.

Mr. BERTRAM was then introduced. He was received with loud and continued applause. He began by saying that it was with feelings of no ordinary pleasure that he rose to address an audience in Peterborough, where he had spent so many years of his life. He was there at the invitation of his many friends in town to add his quota to the discussion now going on and assist the electors to decide, on March 5th next, which way they will vote. The speaker alluded to the prominent position our progressive town occupied, and said Mr. Stevenson, while he made a good mayor, might not be so good a Dominion legislator. He was not able to carry his views through parliament, and was only one of a large number of men there. Mr. Stevenson, at his election four years ago, said that within a few months he would have a thousand men working on the Trent Valley Canal between Peterborough and Lakefield. But he had not been able to do this. (Applause.) He had also said he had gone to Ottawa to support Sir John Macdonald and he had done so. Mr. Bertram thought he should have gone there rather as an independent man, prepared to act and speak as his conscience dictated, rather than as a sworn partizan and machine politician. (Cheers.) In discussing the question of reciprocity, Mr. Bertram said he was surprised to find in the Empire's report of Sir Charles Tupper's speech in Toronto Tuesday night, that gentleman had made a statement in one place which he specifically denies in another. Digressing for a moment, Mr. Bertram said Sir John in his address to the public meetings not a word of reciprocity. He says he is going to the country on the old policy and the old flag platform, and those opposed to him are traitors. (Laughter.) Personally, Mr. Bertram said his opinions have differed to a considerable degree from the policy of the Government. Mr. Laurier in his address, and a more honest, straightforward, noble-minded gentleman does not exist in the Dominion of Canada, (loud applause) says "Reciprocity is a matter of agreement to be obtained only by mutual concessions by both countries, but if it involved concessions to the detriment of Canada or the British Empire, the people would not have it." What he asks is that the people should affirm the principles of Reciprocity of 1854-66, so that he may go into it, to the extent of Unrestricted Reciprocity, without his hands tied, and with the full approval of the people. (Applause.) Mr. Bertram said that he was very sorry that Mr. Stevenson did not send a representative to the meeting, that they might have had one of the real old-time meetings he remembered so well, (Laughter and applause.) Mr. Bertram then read some extracts from Sir Charles Tupper's speech. In one place that gentleman states that when he went to Washington as the Queen's plenipotentiary to discuss reciprocity, his "instructions in any respect." That meant that he was instructed to urge unrestricted reciprocity. This was just what Mr. Laurier was asking. (Cheers) But further on Sir Charles says the only hope of the farmers of the country is in the old system under which they had prospered (?) and that the greatest misfortune which could befall them would be the adoption of free trade. Further on still he says that the tariff on export Canadian lumber had been lowered one half because he says the necessities of Americans required Canadian lumber, and they took over $11,000,000 worth last year. Mr. Bertram said he knew something of the lumber business himself and he could say that, as compared with the eleven million dollars worth of lumber exported from Canada to the States, the city of Chicago alone had used up $30 000,000 worth. What a vast export trade Canada did in lumber. (Applause.) Sir Charles Tupper's address was a most mysterious melange all through. Mr. Bertram then dealt with the policy of Sir John Macdonald. In 1878 he came to the country on a policy which was to develop the mineral and timber resources of Canada. He carried on the Government by a system of corruption in timber limits, about which the audience had already heard, and the expenditure of the Government had increased from 23 millions to 38 millions. Mr. Bertram exposed a transaction of the Government in which they had violated faith with the government of the United States and shown their insincerity in advocating reciprocity. Canada was offered reciprocity in fruits, trees and seeds, with everything in her favor, under which, during the few months it operated, the amount of exports in those articles was $1,485,022 against imports amounting to $331,000. Yet in 1890 the Dominion Government broke faith and put these articles on the tariff list again, with heavier duties than ever, and plainly told the Washington authorities that they did not want reciprocity. (Applause.) Besides, Mr. Colby, a Government supporter, in an answer to Sir Richard Cartwright, had recently said that Unrestricted Reciprocity would be the worst thing possible for the farmers. These things would show that the Dominion Government's professions in favor of Reciprocity were not to be trusted. They had shown that they were not really desirous for Reciprocity, for their attitude had been towards the American Government. The McKinley Bill, said the speaker, he did not believe was aimed at Canada, but had been adopted simply to suit America. The speaker then pointed out its effect. The price of barley in Buffalo was 91c. a bushel, and in Toronto 55c. Was it reasonable, he asked, for us to invite retaliation, and bringing on a duty of 30c. a bushel, which would fall most heavily on the farmer's head. (Applause) Mr. Bowell in Toronto had tried to prove that the National Policy had served the purpose of making our trade with Great Britain larger than with the United States. Mr. Bertram refuted that statement. The very reverse had happened. During the years from 1883 to 1889 the average annual trade with Great Britain was 83 millions and with the United States 87 millions. This ought to prove conclusively that America was the best market. (Applause.) And more than that, with the market of England thrown open to us and the market of the United States fenced up with a high tariff, our trade in 1889 was 14 millions more than with England. Mr. Bertram quoted figures to show also that both in exports and imports our trade with the United States exceeded that with Great Britain. (Applause.) The only way to increase the prosperity of our country was to unshackle the labor of those who were working the foundation industries of the country. (Loud cheers.) And even the great hypnotizer himself (Sir John Macdonald) could not make the people believe that it could be done by act of legislation or any other way. (Laughter and applause.) Times were changed and farmers were subject to the competition of the world and circumstances which changed their condition; therefore, if they have to compete with the world, give them a chance, don't crowd them with a high taxation and a system which makes them sell cheap and buy dear. If this is done, then all has been done that can be done for them. Mr. Bertram, who said he knew whereof he spoke, said the timber trade was crippled by the tariff, and there were millions on millions of feet of hemlock in the forests practically worthless because there was no market for them. If the obstructions were removed our trade in lumber, ties, shingles and poles would be immensely increased. (Applause.) The nickel and iron deposits in our north were not developed because we were divorced from the natural market for the product of the mines. If we had reciprocity we would have hundreds of capitalists over here working our mines and developing our resources. Fleets of vessels ply the lakes laden with iron, yet not one mine is opened in Canada. Canada should be allowed to partake in this commerce. (Cheers) Americans ask nothing better than the opportunity to work our mines. The same could be said of our fisheries. We have a very poor market, but our largest trade is with the United States. Mr. Bertram quoted figures in detail showing that the great preponderance of our trade in 1890 was with the United States, in every line—products of the mines, fisheries, forests, animals and their products, etc. (Cheers) Mr. Bertram then came to treat the question from the manufacturers' standpoint. They as a class should have consideration as much as anyone else. Many of them have been dealt hardly with by the National Policy. For instance, Mr. Hoy, whose manufactory St. John swept over in 1873 because his workingmen were half the time or more out of employment, had found he could not do business at all under the N.P., and the place is now built up with warehouses. (Applause.) Mr. Bertram said he had always maintained that a protective tariff of 15 to 17½ per cent. was sufficient for manufactures, why should there be a duty of 35 per cent.? Mr. Bertram had always held, and defied any manufacturer to honestly deny it, that a tariff sufficient to pay the wages of the employees was sufficient to encourage any industry. A well managed cotton or woollen mill was sufficiently protected with 19 or 20 per cent. duty; yet they had put on a duty of 40 per cent. But even with that, Mr. Bertram said, as he had predicted at the time, the many cotton manufacturers who were enabled to start in business found that with keen competition and a limited market they could not carry on business, so they formed combinations to raise the price of cotton. But the combine did not last, and the cotton manufacturers were forced to go to English capitalists, and offer their mills at 50 or 60c. on the dollar. This bargain was made, and to-day the cotton industry of the country was one huge monopoly, and the men who were engaged in it either have had to leave the country or be satisfied with what they can get. This proved that the system of an extreme protective policy was not favorable to manufactories. (Applause.) They, like the farmers, required a larger market to fairly meet the competition they were forced to fight against. We want, he said, our country filled up while the United States is filling up. We don't want our debt increasing while that of the United States is decreasing. Our manufacturers and farmers want a fair chance. Is it a product of the National Policy, asked Mr. Bertram, that three of the largest implement manufacturers in Canada have failed in the last two months—Mr. Watson, of Ayr, the Maxwells, of St. Marys, the Elliott's, of London? (Applause., Canadian manufacturers if given a chance were able to compete with the world, but we cannot afford to hamper them with an enormous duty on raw material. Mr. Bertram had no doubt that if the raw materials used in manufactories, such as iron and other things were admitted free, our trade in manufactures could be increased twenty fold. (Cheers.) Mr. Bertram then pointed out a few of the articles in which reciprocity would benefit Canada. If we had the right of exchange, the pork which can be produced so cheaply in the United States could be exchanged for the barley which we could grow, and which, if the customs barrier were thrown down, would bring us 91c. a bushel, the price in Buffalo to-day. (Cheers) That would be a case in point where it would be mutually beneficial for both countries. We must exchange our natural products with the natural products of other countries, and not attempt to produce things we cannot profitably produce. In conclusion, Mr. Bertram reviewed the political situation. He condemned the cry of disloyalty which had been raised. But the people had a right to ask why it was that there was so much injustice in the world. Great social questions were involved, and if there was any law on the statute books which was contrary to the interests of the masses, and which was unjust to them, while feathering the pockets of a few, the people should demand that it be erased. (Cheers.) That was the keynote that should be sounded in the solution of this great social problem. Mr. Bertram urged the electors to consider the matter calmly, and if they saw that there was a great measure on the statutes which they considered did not give them fair play, they should put their foot down and declare that they will no longer bear it. (Applause.) Mr. Bertram condemned the injustice perpetrated upon the young men of the country in cutting them out of their votes in this contest, and, in conclusion, said he left the question of voting to the consciences and good sense of the electors. (Loud applause.)

DID NOT LIMIT HIM

ANYTHING BUT FRIENDLY

WHERE HIS FACTORY STOOD

The meeting was concluded with cheers for the Queen and Mr. Bertram.

Worn Out and Broken Down.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c. and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

TO THE ELECTORS OF West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to ensure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

TOPICS FROM TORONTO.

THE A. O. U. W. CONCLUDES ITS SESSION.

Election of Officers and District Master—Drowned in the Bay—A Barrister's Sudden Death—The School Board and Prayer.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—A meeting of the Public School Board was held last night, at which Dr. Ogden's motion to open the proceedings of the board with prayer was carried, and a committee consisting of himself and Trustees Kent and McPherson was appointed to draw up a form.

Peter Sullivan, a laborer employed on the breakwater improvements at the Island, was carried in the bay yesterday morning and died from the effects of the exposure and exhaustion 20 minutes after being rescued.

Mr. William Worts Evatt, a former partner of the firm of Boultbee & Evatt, solicitors, and ex-secretary of the National Club, died rather suddenly in his rooms, 31 King-street west, yesterday afternoon. Dr. Garratt of Bay-street, who was at his bedside when he breathed his last, pronounced heart failure as the cause of death. The deceased passed a brilliant examination as a solicitor.

Death has been busy this week in the ranks of Toronto's citizens. Yesterday Mr. David William Thompson, manager of the firm of D. W. Thompson & Co., cabinet hardware and upholsterers' supplies, Buchanan and Terauley-streets, died at his residence, 50 Hayter-street. Deceased, who was the son of Col. J. Thompson of Quebec, was 46 years of age. He had been ill for the past three weeks, but the end came unexpectedly.

Hamilton takes another championship. Yesterday the final match for the Ontario Tankard was played and the Thistles from the Ambitious City came out on top. The Prospect Parks were the opponents of the men from the mountain and in common phraseology were "never in it."

Samuel Paterson alias McCann, alias Williams, alias Jones, and Fred Collins, alias Wilkinson, alias Williams, two well-known Toronto thieves, have just been sentenced in Rochester, N.Y., to five years each in Auburn State Prison for picking pockets. Collins formerly kept a dive in York-street, and was the boon companion of Convict Buckley, "Gas" Burns and others of that ilk.

The master in chambers yesterday gave judgment in Reg. ex rel. McGuire v. Birkett, unseating Thomas Birkett from the office of Mayor of Ottawa and ordering a new election. Mr. Birkett is evidently the choice of the citizens of Ottawa, for there were four candidates for the office and he received almost as many votes as the other three together, being elected by a majority of over 900 votes. Mr. Birkett will have to pay the costs of the quo warranto proceedings.

Grand Lodge yesterday morning went into committee of the whole for the consideration of the new constitution and general laws for the government of subordinate lodges. This together with the election of officers occupied the morning session.

The election of grand officers resulted as follows;

Executive Committee—(two members elected annually)—T. L. L. Lewis of Chatham and J. B. Nixon of Toronto.

Past Grand Master Warren Totten of Woodstock was elected solicitor. The representatives to Supreme Lodge A.O.U.W. to be held in Detroit next June were elected as follows: Past Grand Masters Daniel Spry, Barrie; M. D. Dawson, London, and John Milne, Essex.

A resolution was adopted recommending steps to be taken to show the distinction between the A.O.U.W. and the A.O.U.W. Relief Society, the latter being as adjunct under separate control.

It was approved that the Grand Lodge act as a guaranteeing body from which the subordinate lodges could obtain the necessary bonds for the financiers and receivers.

The Grand Master appointed as members of Executive Committee W. J. Parkhill of Midland and James Dixon of Hamilton. He also confirmed the selection of the following district masters for 1891-2 as nominated by the representatives:

The following resolution was unanimously carried by a standing vote of the whole lodge:

THE NEWS WAS FATAL.

A SCULPTOR AND HIS WIFE DIE WITHIN A FEW MINUTES.

The Earl of Hartford Expires Suddenly from Heart Disease—Earthquakes in Hungary and Spain—A Gigantic Federation Scheme.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Herr Luersen, the sculptor who modelled a bust of President Garfield, died suddenly to-day from apoplexy in his studio. When the news of the death of Luersen was communicated to his wife she was so overcome with grief that she was seized with convulsions and shortly afterwards died in a fit.

AN EARL'S DEATH.

Beauchamp of Hertford Passes Away Suddenly From Heart Disease.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Earl of Beauchamp died to-day of heart disease.

The peerage dates from 1750 in the reign of George II. The title is Earl of Hartford and Viscount Beauchamp. The deceased was generally termed Earl Beauchamp. The family name is Lygon. The deceased peer was born in 1830 and succeeded to the title and estates in 1866. He was married and is succeeded by his son, Viscount Elmley, who was born in 1872. Earl Beauchamp was a leader of the extreme High Church or ritualistic party in England. With Earl Nelson he took an active part in the establishment of the English Church Union. He manifested great interest in Church of England home and foreign missions.

WAS HE A PLAGARIST.

Illustration of the Adage that Great Minds Run in the Same Groove.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes in parallel columns a sermon which Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon preached in 1864 and an address delivered by Lord Mayor Joseph Savory of London last week at the Polytechnic Institute Young Men's Christian Institute for apprentices, artisans, etc., in Regent-street. The two discourses are identical in almost every particular, long passages in the Spurgeon sermon being delivered unchanged in the Lord Mayor's address. Lord Mayor Savory, whose attention was called to this singular coincidence, said he was unaware of the similarity existing between his recent oration and Spurgeon's pulpit uttorances of 1864. The Lord Mayor added that he had never, to the best of his knowledge, seen the sermon referred to.

THE QUEEN OF HONOLULU.

She Would Not Leave the Coffin of the Dead King.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—From Honolulu comes word that the Queen has not once left the side of the king's coffin since it was deposited in the throne room. At night she stretches herself on the floor under the coffin and gets a little sleep, lulled to rest by the wild wailing of the Kanakas, who have free access to the room at all times. She is utterly prostrated with grief, and refuses to be comforted. There is a good deal of criticism and significant murmurings among Kanakas against Col. Hopoli Baker, the King's friend. They say he should have tested all the medicine given to the King, and they assert that the King was poisoned. They also bitterly complain that he should have been embalmed, for it is said that his flesh should have been eaten by the chiefs.

AND THE EARTH WAS SHAKEN.

Earthquakes Create Much Damage—Buildings Wrecked and Fires Kindled.

MADRID, Feb. 19.—A slight shock of earthquake in Valencia to-day caused much alarm.

VIENNA, Feb. 19.—A terrific storm passed over Pressburg, Hungary, to-day, unroofing houses, tearing up trees by the roots and doing an immense amount of other damage. The storm was followed by an earthquake, which caused two large fires. One of the buildings which took fire was a girls' college, several of the inmates of which were injured by jumping from windows. No one was seriously hurt.

The Alleged "Jack the Ripper" Asks Aid from His Fellow-Unionists.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The steamship firemen, Sadler, who has been remanded for further examination on the charge of having murdered "Carroty Nell," has written a letter to a member of the union to which he belongs asking his fellow-unionists to get the newspaper press to watch the case, declaring that the police are quashing evidence favorable to him with the object of hurrying his conviction. Sadler denies buying or selling the knife stained with human blood, which the police claim to have traced into his possession.

Ex-Empress Frederick in Paris.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Ex-Empress Frederick to-day walked in the Garden of the Tuileries, and drove in the Bois de Boulogne, receiving everywhere respectful greetings. She afterward visited the exhibition of the Art Union Club. During the day many persons called at the German Embassy to pay their respects to the ex-Empress. Among them were M. Ribot, Minister of Public Instruction, and General Brugere, chief of the military household of President Carnot.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—The papers here regard the visit of the ex-Empress to Paris as an experiment to prepare the way for Emperor William.

Quiet Restored in Buenos Ayres.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says: A three days' censorship of political telegrams, which was imposed in order not to cause alarm in Europe, has ceased. The plot to replace Calman in power which was disclosed by Lawyer Rodrigues was nipped in the bud by the activity of President Pellegrini and the loyalty of the troops. Quiet has been restored throughout the country.

The Portuguese Uprising.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The court-martials of the rebels who took part in the recent revolutionary outbreak at Oporto will be held next week. The prisoners are confined on war vessels anchored in the roads outside the harbor. The Governor of Oporto is taking energetic steps to check any exhibitions of sympathy by the people with the imprisoned men.

The Last Million Paid.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The third £1,000,000 in gold of the £3,000,000 borrowed in bullion from the Bank of France during the recent Baring-Argentine financial crisis has been returned to the last named institution. As in the case of the first £2,000,000, the gold was returned as received, there having been no necessity to coin the bonds.

WRANGLING OVER FUNDS.

THE LATEST PHASE OF THE IRISH PARTY DISPUTE.

The Prince of Wales to Visit the Congested District of Ireland—A Bishop's Arraignment of Parnell and His "Heaven-Cursed Crime."

LONDON, Feb. 19.—It is announced that the Prince of Wales will visit Ireland the coming summer. The Earl of Zetland, the Lord Lieutenant and Chief Secretary Balfour are understood to have urged the Prince to make the visit with the view of giving encouragement to the industries of that country. The Princess of Wales is reported to be assiduous in the attention she pays to the Zetland-Balfour Fund for the relief of the suffering poor of Ireland. The Princess and her daughters have sent contributions of clothing to the fund and have also solicited subscriptions for the same cause.

DUBLIN, Feb. 19.—The Bishop of Dromore has sent a letter to the clergy of his diocese, in which he warns the faithful not to attend Parnell's meeting in Newry. He says he hopes the poisoned atmosphere of the divorce court and the filthy, disgusting and scandalous details of the O'Shea case have not reached his diocese. The proposed meeting, he declares, will be a wanton insult to a religion, to the bishop and to the priests and a laudation of a heaven-cursed crime. "Let God arise," he says, "and his enemies will be confounded. Forbearance has encouraged this iniquity. Let the brave men and true who love godliness and hate adultery use lawful means to save the honor and good fame of their mothers, wives and sisters by resenting the daring aggression of those attempting to prostitute the country to aggrandize an individual and hide their own filthy conduct."

LONDON, Feb. 19.—A financial dispute between the McCarthyite and the Parnellite factions of the Irish Parliamentary party is likely to be much in evidence during the coming struggle.

The $40,000 released a month ago from the League funds was divided in the following manner: The sum of $25,000 went to the Campaign Committee and $15,000 passed into the hands of the Tenants' Defence League. The latter sum forms the subject of the present dispute. The McCarthyites' idea is that the amount is out of proportion to the number of evicted tenants the League has relieved, but the McCarthyites are inclined to waive this point. They contend, however, that instead of being devoted to evicted tenants it was used to meet an overdraft on the Hibernian Bank.

Mr. Thomas P. Gill's letter to Mr. McCarthy referring to this matter rather evades the point at issue by declaring that when he signed the release Mr. McCarthy must have known that the fund set apart for the evicted tenants was heavily overdrawn.

Mr. James F. Xavier O'Brien and Mr. J. J. Clancy's checks were dishonored, though it is evident that Mr. McCarthy left Boulogne believing that the money was devoted to the relief of the tenants only. The proof that Mr. O'Brien gave his sanction to meeting the overdraft is found in Mr. Timothy Harrington's statement last night that he had a document proving that the money had been disposed of in the manner promised by Mr. O'Brien. The question arises whether there was some misconception at Boulogne or whether Mr. O'Brien came to the conclusion that he was acting within the lines of the agreement by adjusting the bank account.

In an interview to-day Justin McCarthy declared that the story of a Liberal subsidy of £3000 for his party was an impudent fabrication; that none such was ever suggested, and if offered would not be accepted. His party would depend entirely on funds placed at their disposal by their own countrymen. He did not intend to reply to T. P. Gill's letter calling for atonement for the story connected with the transfer of the £3000 to Mr. O'Brien.

Other McCarthyites, on being interviewed, said several members of the party had already furnished personal guarantees to provide for immediate necessities pending arrangements to obtain resources for the electoral campaign. They said they had determined to preserve their independence and not to seek a closer alliance with the Liberals, preferring a more careful limitation of their relations. They repudiated the least idea of impugning the good faith of Mr. O'Brien. Instead of suggesting an improper use of part of the £3000 they simply wished a declaration (as they have not yet been shown) that the whole sum is devoted to the evicted in the manner prescribed by Mr. O'Brien.

Further grants ought to be distributed under the control of agencies commanding the confidence of all parties. If Mr. O'Brien was free the McCarthyites would not hesitate to entrust him absolutely to distribute; meantime they were willing that Mr. McCarthy should place the whole of the funds in Paris at the disposal of properly recognized distributors.

Taken to Galway Jail.

DUBLIN, Feb. 19.—O'Brien and John Dillon were transferred to Galway jail at daylight this morning. The prisoners were taken from Clonmel in a carriage. Though secrecy was observed the inhabitants got wind of the affair and assembled in crowds at the Tipperary railroad station and enthusiastically cheered the members of parliament as the latters' train stopped for a few moments in their midst. Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon will complete their sentence in Galway jail.

On arriving at the Galway jail Mr. O'Brien was placed in the hospital and Mr. Dillon was locked in a cell.

LIVED A DUAL LIFE.

A Toronto Stock Broker Who Had Two Wives—Death and Discovery.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—The death of A. N. Merriam, which took place suddenly at 65 Isabella-street on the 12th inst., has brought to light some very startling revelations.

This gentleman appeared in Toronto for the first time about four years ago, and has been living in the city on and off ever since. For a time he acted as manager for E. Strachan Cox, and subsequently he entered the firm of Tilt & Co., stock brokers, whose offices until recently were in the Imperial Bank buildings. Merriam was a stout, hearty, handsome man, a bon vivant of the first order, and a jolly good fellow generally. He became acquainted with a good many of the city's "bloods," spent money lavishly on the theatre, cabs, dinners and enjoying all the luxuries of high living. According to the entries in the firm's books he must have kept up his end pretty well.

About 18 months ago he went to Port Huron and returned with a woman whom he claimed to have made his wife in that city. The couple took furnished apartments at 65 Isabella-street, and lived sumptuously up to the time of his death.

It is impossible to say whether the woman with whom he was living knew her true position or whether she was deceived. She appears to have acted her part as a wife lovingly and faithfully. She took the body to Port Huron, where her people live, and laid it to rest in the family burial plot. There was not the slightest suspicion that any developements would follow Merriam's death, but the importance that can be attached to his dying words, "God bless my wife."

On Tuesday a fashionably-dressed lady of prepossessing appearance arrived in town from Chicago and registered at the St. James' Hotel as "Mrs. A. N. Merriam, Chicago, Ill." Yesterday she said that Merriam was born in Lynn, Mass., where his father conducts a big boot and shoe factory. He was a shrewd business man and was attracted to Chicago by the excitement and possibilities of a life among the brokers in that city. He figured as the leading spirit in the firm of Fleming, Loring & Merriam, whose business methods attracted the attention of the police, with the result that the firm was given an informal call and Loring arrested and sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the county jail. Fleming and Merriam skipped the town and succeeded in escaping the clutches of the law.

Merriam was also connected with the notorious "Fund W," by which hundreds of Canadians were swindled out of their little pile.

During his stay in Chicago he fell in love with Miss Mary J. Casey, who in spite of her troubles and sad experiences, still possesses many of the charms which attracted the young broker. They were married in Chicago May 3, 1882, and the Mrs. Merriam who registered at the St. James' on Tuesday claims to be none other than the woman who was made his lawful wife. They lived together for a number of years with all possible domestic felicity, and their home was the scene of many brilliant social gatherings.

A few years ago Merriam became acquainted with one of the belles of Port Huron, but the loving wife never suspected that from that time her husband's affections were not wholly bestowed on her.

About three years ago Merriam left his cheerful home at the usual hour in the morning and started for his office. He did not return in the evening and upon inquiry it was learned that he had left the city. For two years and a half his wife could get not the slightest trace of his whereabouts. About six months ago, by the merest accident, she learned that her runaway husband was living in Toronto. She came to the city and found Merriam living with the Port Huron lady. She consequently put her case in the hands of J. G. Holmes, of the firm of Best & Holmes, barristers, Victoria-street. Mr. Holmes succeeded in getting $350 from Merriam, for his client, together with an agreement to the effect that $22.50 should be paid to the wife monthly. Merriam carried out the agreement strictly up to the time of his death, as the following letter will show:

Mrs. M. J. Merriam, '43 East Harrison-street, Chicago, Ill.:

DEAR MADAM,—We herewith enclose you sight draft on New York for $22.50, being monthly payment from A. N. Merriam.

(Signed.) BEST & HOLMES.

The payments were sent regularly each month up to the time of his death. Mrs. Merriam had been living very quietly at the above address and when she heard of her husband's death all her womanly tenderness and powers of forgiveness were aroused, and she came back to the city to claim the body of the man who had so cruelly wronged her. She found that the body had already been taken to Port Huron and buried and that not a dollar's worth of real or personal property was left for her.

Mrs. Merriam, accompanied by her brother, left last night for Troy, N.Y., where her parents live.

Opera House Burned.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 19.—The Grand Opera House (variety theatre) and the Windsor Hotel adjoining were destroyed by fire here this morning. An explosion, the cause of which is unknown, was the cause of the fire. Below the theatre and on the street level were a number of saloons and a barber shop. The contents of these places will be a total loss. The loss on the theatre will be $62,000; insurance, $30,000. The Williams & Orr Specialty Company, which was playing at the opera house, loses all its equipments. Miss Wilmuth, an actress, loses $600 worth of dresses.

It Snowed Salt.

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 19.—It snowed here Monday night, and a peculiar feature of the snowstorm was a large quantity of salt which fell with it. The snow melted yesterday and left the salt on the ground at least one-fourth of an inch in thickness. The salt was evidently absorbed from the lake.

Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1891.

AREN'T the party patriots, enquires a correspondent, overdoing the Old Flag business a little? The Old Flag is all right, and few Canadians are there to-day who do not respect and venerate the time-honored ensign under which they live, but that respect and veneration are not necessarily extended to every "cheap John" who degrades it by floating it above a display advertisement of cheap ready-made "pants" or rotten party politics. Sincerely.

APPARENTLY the Montreal Gazette is too stupid to see that the anxiety of the Montreal combinesters to maintain the Tories in power is the strongest possible argument why the farmers, miners, lumbermen and other producing classes should vote the Reform ticket. It continues to publish interviews with combinesters in opposition to reciprocity. Of course the monopolists want to keep up the system which enables them to restrict production, keep up prices, reduce the wages of their employees, and rob the public.

THE policy of the Tory party seems to be regulated solely in the interest of that enterprising firm of self-seekers, styled Tupper & Son. The high commissioner has been telling the Nova Scotians that there can never be such a thing as reciprocity in coal, although Sir John Macdonald has offered the Americans reciprocity in natural products, and though the owners of coal mines in British Columbia and the North West are anxious to secure the free admission of their coal to the United States markets. And the junior member of the firm of Tupper & Son has declared to the people of Pictou county that though the duty on coal will be maintained the duty upon flour must be abolished. How do the Ontario millers like the prospect? They are to be deprived of all protection upon flour, but must continue to pay taxes upon their coal, because Messrs. Tupper & Son so will it. Sir Charles Tupper repeated at Halifax the statement made by his son at Pictou.

The "Red Herring" Trail.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Even a passing stranger "warms up" in view of the coming struggle in West Peterborough. The question naturally suggests itself, Why the dissolution? Why forego the advantages of another Gerrymander Act? Why dispense with the "hope of gain" which the Franchise Act naturally inspires in the Tory camp? Why, in the face of ministerial declaration, that Parliament would be allowed to run its full course, are we asked to the battle? Why deliberately disfranchise 100,000 young men who Tory orators tell us would spring to the support of the chieftain? The dread of being hampered in its negotiations with the United States Government for reciprocity by a moribund parliament seems to be the only plea advanced by the government. No one, not even Mr. Stevenson, has any faith in that plea. It's a false plea, and its purpose is obvious. The "old man" knows that unrestricted reciprocity is gaining ground. The farmers are restless under Red Parlour rule. "We must have manufacturers' money" is answered by the equally cogent demand "We must have farmers' votes." The old magician sees the danger of delay, and resolves to STEAL A SNAP VERDICT.

To this end the "old flag" is waved; for this purpose "British connection" is the watchword; to attain this object the cry of disloyalty is raised. When you assert, and prove your assertions by indisputable facts, that the N.P. is a failure, you are "decrying your country," and when you advocate closer relations commercially with the United States, you are told that you "are playing into the hands of the Americans." Because Sir Richard Cartwright tells the plain, naked truth in Boston, the subsidized press answer his facts in one sentence—"Sir Richard is the senator from the State of Ontario." The whole matter hinges on the meaning we attach to the word loyalty. According to the Tory dictionary—Sir John—those who vote the straight Tory ticket, or those who are not in a position to weaken the Tory cause, are loyalists. John Charles Rykert is loyal to the core. All the manufacturers and contractors, who bleed profusely for the Tory bribery fund, are loyal subjects. David Creighton, who has reduced faisification and subserviency to a system, is a patriot. Every Tory boodler is unquestionably loyal. Englishman or Frenchman, black man or white, Indian or half-breed, anybody, in fact, with or without character, who can shout for "the old man, the old flag and the old policy," is "trooly loil." The old Reformers, we are told, were all loyal. George Brown was a loyal man. Alexander

MACKENZIE WAS, AND IS, LOYAL.

Now that Edward Blake has definitely determined to retire from political life, he too was and is loyal to his country and his Queen. All others are disloyal. Goldwin Smith and Sir Richard Cartwright and Wilfrid Laurier and David Mills and S. H. Blake and the Globe are all traitors and annexationists. The revised version of the Chieftain's cry as given by S. H. Blake hits the nail on the head—"The old Man, the old Flag, the old Policy and the old Serpent."

"I don't give a d——n for the man who supports me when I'm right; it's the man that stands by me when I'm wrong," said the wily Chieftain in a former contest. It's the same old platform to-day.

Electors of West Peterborough, exercise your common sense. You do not believe that one-half of the people of Canada are annexationists. You know that the loyalty cry is the last desperate resort of a desperate politician. Stand to your guns. Is Mr. Hall you have a candidate worthy of you.

In Mr. Laurier you have a leader whose principles are sound. Answer this latest cry by such a majority for Mr. Hall as will show these dealers in false cries that West Peterborough recognizes manly honesty and despises trickery and deception.

Yours,
TRIO.

TO FIGHT LABOR.

The Employers' Labor Union Joins the Shipping Federation.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Employers' Labor Association of Liverpool, representing shipping of 750,000 tonnage, comprising all the leading owners and lines, has joined the Shipping Federation. This raises the aggregate tonnage of the federation to 7,600,000, leaving only 2,000,000 tonnage in the United Kingdom not embraced in the Federation. Of this 2,000,000 one-half is exclusively engaged in trade with foreign ports and negotiations continue to capture the other half for the Federation. This explains the action of the Federation in demanding an unconditional resumption of work before discussing further than the point raised by the dockers be the interest of the coal porters. The Federation's demand has angered the dockers, who accuse it of bad faith.

A correspondent at Cardiff declares that the strike has virtually collapsed—that the Shipping Federation is supplying all the crews necessary.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

One of the Seventeen Dead Recovered From the Jeansville Slope.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 19.—Since the 4th of this month, the day on which the awful disaster occurred at the Jeansville mine, near this city, untiring efforts have been made to find the seventeen unfortunate men who were imprisoned. When the body of Edward Gallagher was hoisted to the surface to-day the report of finding a body spread through the little mining town rapidly, and before the car containing the body could be put under cover a large and excited crowd had gathered at the mouth of the slope. The car was quickly run into a shop near by and the doors were closed.

DERAILED AND BURNED.

Several Passengers Injured, One Fatally in a Collision on the Illinois Central.

MILAN, Tenn., Feb. 19.—At a trestle six miles from here this morning, at 7 o'clock, while the limited vestibule train on the Illinois Central was running at the rate of 25 miles an hour, it was thrown from the track by a broken rail and hurled into a ditch. A freight train ran into the rear of the passenger, throwing the remainder of the coaches, with the exception of one sleeper, into a deep ditch. A fire broke out in the baggage car, and to the shrieks of the terrified passengers were added the hissing of steam and the crackling of the flames as they quickly devoured the coaches, the engine, cab and tender, and the baggage, mail, express, smoker and ladies' car and one sleeper were consumed.

Ed Silvertooth, baggagemaster, was pinioned in the car by two large trunks and by heroic efforts was saved from the flames. He will die. A number of passengers received minor injuries, but strange to say none of the lady passengers were hurt.

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. dw

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

This great internal and external remedy always allays all pain. It is a specific for croup, and promptly cures coughs, colds, sore throat, sprains, bruises, burns, rheumatism, cuts, wounds, etc. Good for man or beast. Stands all tests. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents. Hagyard's Yellow Oil. 2w6d

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of York, ville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w6d

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Elgin street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

THAT tired, languid feeling, and dull headache, is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good. dw

Dull headaches, dimness of vision, partial deafness, constant hawking and spitting are a few of the symptoms of catarrh. Nasal Balm is the only certain cure known. Give it a trial sodw

Nature's remedy for building up the wasted tissue is Cod Liver Oil. Use Miller's Emulsion and you have that remedy in a palatable form. dw

SMALL Sugar-Coated Burdock Pills do not gripe or sicken. They are mild an effectual. dw

Dr. Low's Sulphur Soap is a delightful shampoo. It cleanses the scalp and darkens grey hair. dw

Purify the importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditad and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

BUT IT WAS MEAN.

One was a commercial traveler, the other was just a common, large, quiet, bashful man. They were playing billiards in the hotel billiard room, which was deserted all save them, and the quiet man had beaten the drummer every game and beaten him badly.

"I know what's the matter," said the drummer, as they chalked their cues for another game, "I want an incentive. We ought to make a little bet; say a couple of dollars on this game, and let it be the last one. Come, you've had it all your own way. What do you say to that?"

"It's agreeable to me," answered the bashful man, taking the lead, and then he ran off six points.

The drummer made two.

The large man got in a little run of fifteen, playing the balls around in the corners softly and gently without apparent effort.

"I want to see the clerk about getting my baggage ready for the next train," said the drummer, looking at his watch. "I won't be gone but a minute," and he hastened out to the office, which was filled with commercial men and other guests of the house.

"Well, now we'll try again," he said cheerfully, when he returned a few minutes later, but he made only four points and left a beautiful "set up" for the large man.

One or two other men had strolled in from the office and stood by while the bashful player made the shot, and by the time he had run the score up to twenty-eight there were half a dozen onlookers standing about the table.

"Gemini, that was a good shot!" said one, as the big man made a very good draw.

Then he made a difficult carom, and the spectators looked at each other with that side movement of the head which indicates both approval and surprise.

"Where are you in this game, Billy?" asked one of them.

"I guess I ain't in it at all," said the drummer, leaning on his cue and watching his opponent, who, seeming a little disconcerted by so much attention, missed the next shot and sat down.

While the drummer was running off seven points three or four more men sauntered in and watched the game, meditatively puffing at their cigars.

The big man came up, missed and retired to a seat amid the most intense silence, and the drummer got in another little run.

"That's a shot I can never make," remarked one of the spectators as the big man advanced and stood observing the balls.

"It's very difficult," said another.

"Well, I should say so," said a third. "The man that can make it is a dandy."

The beat of the room or something had made the large man a little red in the face, and he looked uncomfortable. He missed the shot. There was no comment, but every person had closely watched the attempt, and there were about a dozen of them now.

The drummer made a very good run; the bashful man missed again, and when, finally, the drummer ran the game out, the other stood by with a $2 bill in his hand.

"I kind o' lost my luck towards the last," he said, with a sickly smile, as he laid down the bill, and murmuring something about having an engagement he went out.

"Well, boys," said Billy, as he put on his coat and picked up the $2 bill. "I'm much obliged to you for coming in. I ain't much of a billiardist, but I'm a very fair judge of human nature."

Tricks in All Trades but Ours.

"Yes, I know the taste of the stuff, but I have not touched a glass of liquor for five years."

I looked in astonishment at the speaker, who was proprietor of two large saloons in the city and making money hand over fist, as the saying is.

I could have sworn that I had seen him drink many times with customers—more than once, I am ashamed to say, with myself. If you ask him to drink for he was one of those men who are not above standing behind his own bar—he would smile and reach for a bottle and pour himself out a generous portion. I could not understand what he meant, but it was late at night, he was in a genial mood, and I felt sure that he would elucidate the mystery.

"When I was in Ireland—God bless her," said Mr. Flinch, "I used to drink my drop along with the rest of the boys. But when I come to this country and went to keepin' bar I looked about me a bit. And says I to myself, says I, 'Pat, if you're going to succeed at this business, and indade at any other, you must let your own poison alone.' And I made a pledge which I have steadily kept to, and I think you will say that I have not altogether failed."

"But I have seen you drink lots of times," said I.

"Oh, you have, have you?" said Mr. Flinch, laughing softly. "Well have a drop with me."

He pulled out a bottle which looked as if it contained any ordinary liquor. It was the one he always drank from.

I poured out a finger or so and drank it down. Whew! Molasses and water! Nothing else. Regular stage liquor. As harmless as milk.

I thought Mr. Flinch would die of laughter, and I laughed with him.

"Don't give me away," he said.

"No," said I. But after I left his place that night it occurred to me that this liquor dealer had been preaching a pretty powerful temperance sermon.

And yet there are hundreds of men in the same business who "never drink their own poison," as he pleasantly put it.—New York Herald.

Newspaper Men of To-day.

The "typical newspaper man" of to-day is a young man. He is college bred; he come from a good family and is a gentle man by birth and breeding. He is brighter, quicker, has broader knowledge of men and affairs, and he makes and spends more money than his brother who goes into "business." He is well dressed, well housed and well fed. He has learned that bohemianism, as exemplified by irregular hours, infrequent baths, and incessant rum does not pay, and he has left that sort of bohemianism to chronic bummers and greenhorns. The tone, the morale of the profession have changed within the last twenty years, and the public is only just beginning to find it out. Educated people who keep their eyes open realize that their notions of the "typical newspaper man" are sadly out of joint, and they are revising their types. The profession is slowly moving toward its rightful place in public estimation and the time is not very far distant when it will stand, not on a par with, but ahead of the law, the pulpit, medicine and all the other liberal professions. In the meantime we will be obliged to endure with what grace we may the would-be brilliant sketches of playwrights and novelists and the unintentionally stupid conclusions of misinformed outsiders who see in every whisky-soaked scribbler a typical newspaper man.—Printer's Ink.

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.—Bovee.

ROYAL TEMPLARS.

Opening of the Convention at Hamilton—Increase of Membership.

HAMILTON, Feb. 18.—After the several delegates had taken their places yesterday the Rev. T. B. McNair of St. Brydges, Grand Councillor of Ontario, proceeded to open the convention. Reports were presented from Grand Councillor, Grand Treasurer, Grand Secretary, Chairman of Missionary Board and others, reviewing the work of the last year, and these were handed over to the several committees to which they belonged before being finally dealt with by the Grand Council. The Grand Secretary's report showed that the membership had increased from 9914 on Jan. 1, 1890, to 13,127 on Jan. 1, 1891, being a net gain of 3213 for the year—a most satisfactory showing.

To-day's proceedings were opened at 8.30 by a prayer meeting conducted by Mr. W. A Dunnett of Montreal and Mr. J. Smith of this city, after which the regular business of the convention was entered into, with Grand Councillor McNair in the chair.

The Committee on Temperance presented a report urging the members of the order to even more aggressive work in the reformation of drunkards by visiting the homes of such, and also as far as practicable to visit the Police Court, etc., and do what is possible in this way towards the reclamation of the unfortunates who from time to time appear there. After an animated discussion on this point the resolution passed.

A resolution was also passed urging the councils who have not yet taken action to co-operate with the Christian churches in the circulation of petitions to the Dominion Government asking that a prohibitory measure be enacted, and that whenever it is known that prohibition candidates are in the field for Parliamentary honors the councils and members should do all in their power to further their election.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP.

How the Capture of a Forger Was Brought About by Himself.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 18.—It has been learned that C. W. Yourex, the noted forger, went hence via Hamilton to New York, where he ticketed for Bremen, Germany, at the same time purchasing a ticket for Australia. A few days after arriving in Bremen under an assumed name he placed his coat, cane and some papers with his name upon them by a hole in the ice on the river. He then disguised himself and told the police that he had seen a man drown there. The police suspected Yourex, arrested him and took possession of his luggage and then he confessed. He waived all extradition proceedings. His object in the drowning fraud was to defraud sundry life insurance companies in which he had policies for $17,000.

Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1891.

THE old flag, old men, old policy party of loyalists in East Durham are sending to California for a candidate. Mr. T. Dixon Craig, who formerly represented the riding in the Local Legislature and who incurred the enmity of his party by emigrating to the States without resigning his seat, has been telegraphed to as a forlorn hope.

BY a vote of 31 to 19 the Central Farmers' Institute of Ontario, composed of the most substantial and most intelligent farmers in the Province, declared in favor of unrestricted reciprocity. The Ottawa Free Press suggests that Sir John Macdonald should denounce the Farmers' Institute as a disloyal organization, and have its officers arrested for treason.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD'S desperate cry of "Treason," comes from the same man who, when taunted with the fact that his new tariff bore more heavily on the Mother Country than on the United States, made this reply: "I am as far as this question goes up to the handle a Home Ruler. We will govern our own country; we will put on the taxes ourselves. If we choose to misgovern ourselves we will do so, and we do not desire England, Ireland or Scotland to tell us we are fools." Now the same gentleman in his manifesto, appeals to "The multitude of Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen in Canada" to set the Liberal party of Canada down as traitors. The people know Sir John too well.

AT the great Tory gathering in Toronto Sir John and Sir Charles found words too weak to express the rampant prosperity of Canada under the N. P. We don't deny their statements; we don't admit them; we leave it to the common sense of the people to give their reply to such "flap doodle" at the ballot box. It must be that we are prosperous because these two great statesmen are the soul of truth. Sir Charles is known as the Stretcher—it would disloyalty or treason for him to be anything like George Washington—it would not do for Tory leaders to "look to Washington" even for an example in the way of truth-telling. And we know that Sir John cannot prevaricate. He never says anything he doesn't mean—to be believed in the way he wishes it to be. A paragraph in another column headed "The Cause of the Distress," will show the reader that within the sound of the voices of these "statesman" there was evidence of the saddest character of the utter and cruel falsity of their words.

They Must Live Abroad.

With reference to the abuse of the superannuation system by the present Federal Government, it has before been pointed out that a large proportion of those former public employees, who are now pensioners upon the Dominion treasury, have such a contempt for the country which pays them for doing nothing that they will not even live in it. Men who are imported and given positions in the Dominion civil service—often to the exclusion of capable and deserving Canadians—have no use for this country once they can go where they please and continue to draw stipends from our treasury. No sooner is one of these gentlemen placed upon the retired list than he hastens to England, France, the United States, or some other foreign country to spend the handsome annual allowance which he receives from the government, for alleged wonderful services rendered in this "blawsted country" during his term of office. The auditor-general's report gives the present place of residence of each ex-official drawing an annual superannuation allowance. The amount sent abroad every year by the government to pay the allowances of superannuated officials who think Canada is not a good country to live in is about $30,000 a year. Mr. R. Kimber, formerly usher of the black rod, rendered such substantial service to Canada, while fulfilling that position, that for about twenty years he has been living in Paris, France, on an allowance of $1 038 a year from the Dominion government while his son was given the position from which he retired The following superannuated officials are living in England in the enjoyment of the allowances stated: T. C. Bramley, $1,121; J. R. Cherriman, $1,750; W. H. Griffin, $2 220; J. W. Harper, $1,189; John Johnson, $276; John Kidd, $1,563; J. J. Lobban, $289; F. H. Mickleburgh, $400; W. R. Musgrave, $2 508; W. E. McCrae, $507; Alex. McNabb, $1.571; W. Parson, $1,539; H. B. Paulin, $1 290; John Rhodes, $115; F. G. Scott, $380; S. T. Sellon, $118; Charles Treble, $433; R. Wallace, $1.007; H. S. Wetherly, $1,280; A. Wooldridge, $1,552. Mr. B. Borland, who draws $840 as a superannuated official lives at Port Kent, in New York state. Mr. E. W. Chestnut draws $430 on account of alleged services rendered in Canada, and lives in New York. Mr. Thomas Foote receives his allowance of $1,228 a year regularly in Baltimore, Maryland. Mr. C. Howard is "on the list" for $628 a year, though he lives in Burlington, Vermont. Mr W A. M. Crae finds it cheap and pleasant to live in Ireland on $431 a year paid him by the people of Canada. And the superannuation industry is still booming. It is, in fact, about the only industry effected in any way by legislation, which can be said to be in that state. The aggregate of superannuation allowances increased from $220,600 in 1889. to $247,240 in 1890. What is the use of trying to induce emigrants to settle in Canada, when we cannot even keep in the country those who are pensioned by the Government? And while the expenditure for superannuation is on the increase the contributions to the civil service fund are actually declining.

Cause of the Distress.

At an emergency meeting of the associated charities of Toronto was held in that city on Saturday to consider the best means of relieving the distress among the poor and unemployed. The meeting was attended by judges, clergymen, philanthropic ladies and prominent citizens. Mr. Warring Kennedy, one of the directors of the House of Industry, said that the five thousand dollars granted by the city council in aid of that institution would not be sufficient to meet the demands. Mr. Fells read a statement from the House of Industry showing: Families relieved this season, 1,825, as compared with 1,106 in the same period of the previous season, an increase of 718 families. Mr. Burns, of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, said the demands upon the society were double those of last year, and that the applications for aid were on the increase. Then came the discussion as to the cause of the distress. Rev. Hugh Johnson, D.D., a prominent Methodist clergyman, said he "could not but repeat what he had said on a former occasion that the governmental system was much to blame, millions of dollars being given to the government and to protected manufacturers that ought to go to the support of the families of the working people." Rev. Mr. Johnston is not a politician, but he is evidently a careful observer of what is going on around him, and he never preached the gospel more faithfully that he did when he made the declaration before quoted. It is to be regretted that there are not more clergymen in the land with sufficient courage to speak out as plainly as Mr. Johnston has done, and to place the responsibility for the existing hard times where it properly belongs—on the shoulders of our commercial government. The policy of trade restriction and high taxation impoverishes the workingman. It forces them to pay high prices for everything they have to purchase without increasing their wages. It places them at the mercy of heartless combinesters, who are licensed by Sir John Macdonald's government to rob them. Thus, as Rev. Mr. Johnston points out, "millions of dollars are given to the protected manufacturers that ought to go to support the families of the working people."

Dummer

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Dummer council met in the Town and Agricultural Hall, Warsaw, Feb. 15th, 1891, Edward Hawthorn, deputy reeve, in the chair, also following councillors present:—Wm. J. Doughty, Geo. Payne, jr., H. A. Moore. Minutes of last council having been read and confirmed, the following business was disposed of: Moved and seconded that a cheque of $50 be forwarded by treasurer to the Ontario Government to receive special grant of $50 from county, also $100 from the Ontario Government to be expended on the Stony Lake Road, East of fourth concession of Dummer.—Carried. Moved and seconded, that auditors' report as now audited by council be received and adopted, and that clerk have 200 copies printed in sheet form for distribution, and that Edward McIlvera, sr., and Henry Edwards each receive $5 as salary for auditing.—Carried. On motion of council, an order was drawn on treasurer for $4.30 in favor of Samuel Hamblin for bread furnished Wm. Wilson. A communication respecting 9th line grant received and laid over until next council meeting. A by-law respecting township clerk was passed, signed and sealed. On motion of council time was extended to Jas. Rose for clearing timber off lot between lots 20 and 21, 8th concession. By order of council a refund of statute labor on roll 1890, to the amount of $2, was conferred to Tous. Robson. On motion of council the clerk was instructed to advertise for tenders for timber for Spencer's bridge. Council adjourned at 7 p. m., to meet again on Saturday, March 21st, 1891.

LOCAL NEWS

The people of Warsaw are pleased to see building commencing so early in the year. Mr. James Kidd, the energetic contractor of Warsaw, has commenced to build quite a fine residence for himself on Peterborough street. Warsaw is fast extending towards Peterborough.

The Templars of Warsaw held their regular meeting on Monday evening, Feb 16th, which was well managed under the auspices of Miss B. Campbell, Chief Templar.

The annual sermon to the Canadian Order of Foresters of Court Warsaw, No. 220, was preached at Zion church, on Sunday, Feb. 8th, by the Rev. J. Power, and was largely attended. The Foresters of Court Warsaw join in tendering Rev. Mr. Power many thanks for the eloquent sermon, and hope that he may live to preach a good many such sermons to Foresters.

Court Zion Concert and Tea.

The Foresters of Court Zion No. 227, had a most successful and a grand financial, as well as social success at Zion on Thursday night, the 19th inst. The Foresters' hall, to pay for which the entertainment was held, was altogether insufficient to accommodate the multitude that assembled, and the English and Methodist churches had to be used to accommodate the crowd waiting to take refreshments from the two long tables in the hall, which were filled and emptied eight or nine times. But the ladies, in spite of the great demand, had plenty of provisions and to spare. The hall was so densely packed for the concert that some of the performers could not get into the building, and had to return to the church. In the absence of Mr. J. R. Stratton, Mr. H. Nesbitt, D.D. H.C.R., occupied the chair and introduced the following programme:—

Two violins and organ.. The Wilson Family
Humorous recitation..... Mr. John Nugent
Song.....Miss Kindred Instrumental trio.....The Wilson Family
Song.....Miss Moyse
Recitation.....Mr. John Nugent

The programme concluded with the laughable farce, "From Pumpkin Ridge," the piece of the evening. The several parts were capitally taken. Following is the cast of characters of the farce, entitled "From Pumpkin Ridge":—

Jonathan Scroggins.....Frank Packenham
Mr. Brown.....Alfred Gaskins
Miss Brown (son.).....Miss Eva Tivey

Save the Dear Children.

The children of nervous and irritable parents will to some extent inherit these dreaded troubles, and show them as they grow up. These ailments will be intensified when the children devote themselves to school studies. Their delicate systems and over-taxed nerves will soon feel the severe strain, and the certain result is a very brief life.

We see, daily, young children afflicted with twitching muscles, general nervousness, dizziness and irritableness. These troubles bring on that dreaded disease, St. Vitus Dance, with all its involuntary movements and spasms.

Such children require immediate attention. Paine's Celery Compound is now acknowledged to be the great agent and remedy for all these distressing symptoms. It tones up and strengthens the weak nervous system, builds up the body and health, and restores to natural activity and perfect action every muscle, and purifies and cleanses the whole system. Do not allow the dear children to suffer and die early, while Paine's Celery Compound guarantees health and long life. Save the children from all ills; they are the hope of our country.

The Cause of Free Trade Gathers Strength as it Goes.

The Liberal Prospects are "Colour de Rose."

The People Who Work Are the People to Win.

Not the Idlers Who Wear What the Hard Toilers Spin.

The Hard-Worked Farmer Should Keep What He Sows.

Cheering Prospects.

The most cheering indications of success to the Liberal cause come from every part of the Ridings—both East and West. The Liberals in the West, especially, are not letting any snow melt under their feet. They realize the truth that they who win must fight, and especially when they see that the argumentative ammunition of the enemy is getting low. The Conservatives are not as numerous as free trade farmers, who would be willing to wager a hat factory on their candidate's chances of success.

Fraserville.

An excellent meeting was held at Baillieboro last night. Mr. John Lightfoot occupied the chair. Mr. E. B. The meeting closed with hearty cheers for the Queen and Mr. Hall.

Norwood.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The anniversary services of the Norwood Presbyterian church were held on Sunday, Feb. 15th. The pulpit was occupied morning and evening by the Rev. Mr. Hay, B. D., of Cobourg. Large congregations turned out to both services, which were enjoyable throughout. On Monday evening following the annual tea meeting was held. Tea was served from 6 to 7.30 o'clock in the basement of the church. The tables were laden with the usual delicacies, and an efficient staff of waiters supplied the wants of all. At about 8 o'clock the large assemblage removed to the church, and prepared to enjoy the usual good programme. The pastor, the Rev. J. Carmichael, took the chairman's position on the platform, and called the choir and the speakers for the evening to their places. The platform presented a beautiful appearance, ornamented with flowers, and the cheerful faces of the large congregation, made a pleasing effect. The following gentlemen delivered practical addresses on various subjects, interspersed with the usual illustrative stories:—Rev. Messrs. Hay, of Cobourg; Thompson, of Hastings; Hyde, of Warsaw; McMillan, of Havelock; and Clark, of Norwood; Mr. J. C. Brown, of Peterborough, and Mr. Jno. Davidson, M.A., made a few remarks on the condition of education in Norwood. The musical part of the programme was very efficiently filled. Miss Brandretts, of Peterborough, appeared for the second time before a Norwood audience, and her sweet rendition of a couple of sacred selections was worthy of every compliment. Miss Sophie Cameron, also from Peterborough, has long been a favourite with a Norwood audience. Her delightfully sweet voice and her unassuming deportment win for her the popular estimation which she possesses both in Peterborough and Norwood. Miss Fowlds, of Hastings, also appeared for one selection, in which she combined both power and sweetness of voice. The choir of the congregation acquitted themselves very creditably, rendering in good style a number of difficult anthems. After the usual vote of thanks to the singers, the ladies who supplied the good things, and the chairman, the most successful anniversary was brought to an end.

Inspector Seath appeared on the scene during last week and made an examination of the various departments of High School work. We learn that Norwood High School still stands high in his estimation.

Nothing of importance has transpired in political circles in the vicinity of Norwood for the past week. The respective candidates are busy canvassing in the surrounding country. The Conservatives have billed the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell for Friday night.

A Valuable Series.

Among the new publications lately received we note with pleasure a series of tastefully designed and handsomely illustrated pamphlets treating of the resources and manifold advantages of the Canadian North-West as a field for colonization.

The pamphlets are published by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and the series comprise the following:—"Dairy Farming and Ranching," "100 Farmers Testify," "The Canadian North-West," "Free Farms," "A Scotch Farmer's Success," and "British Columbia."

These form a most valuable set and contain a vast amount of useful and interesting information, secured by special commissioners who thoroughly covered the ground, and contain numerous illustrations of farming operations, etc., upon the prairies; also a great number of letters from settlers in the country telling of progress up to the close of 1890, and a good map.

The pamphlets are far ahead of any previously published devoted to this particular field, and they should prove invaluable to the intending colonist. They are also well worth securing even by those who have no intention of going westward. Copies will be mailed free to any address upon application to any agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

A Well Deserved Compliment.

The last number of the Trinity College Review has this graceful reference to one of the most "church-like" churches in the country:—"Anyone visiting Peterborough would feel well repaid for for looking over St. John's church in that city. Standing out prominently as it does on the top of a hill, well back from the road, with a beautiful, well-kept lawn sloping up to it, it forms a striking land-mark. Externally it presents quite the appearance of an English parish church, with its substantial stone walls, all overgrown with ivy, its good chancel and square tower. The view from the top of this tower is capital. One can look down on all Peterborough, see far down the pretty river, and obtain at a glance a bird's-eye view of that part of the country."

A Sad Story.

A young woman bearing a strong-lunged child a few months old in her arms, came into the police station yesterday seeking protection. Her name is Martha Johnston, and her home is somewhere back of Bobcaygeon. The girl is not strong-minded. A months ago she sought charity from the town, being in a helpless condition, but she was sent back home. There she became a mother, and has been once more set adrift by her relatives. It is said her mother is dead and her father married to a second wife. At her own request the young woman and her baby were sent to gaol for three months. She apparently has no definite plans for the future, for on being asked what she intended doing after her term in gaol expired, she replied vacantly that she didn't know. She cannot get work on account of her child, yet she will not part from it.

A Worm that Turned.

It is not often that one sees the criminal-hunter in the position of the criminal, when the pursued becomes the pursuer. This has happened in connection with the Carmichael case which Chief Ruttal was connected with a couple of weeks ago. It will be remembered that a man named Oliver Badgerow, living near Claremont, was suspected of having some jewelry in his possession which was stolen from Mr. Patterson, Lakefield, last spring, and at the instigation of Detective John Williamson, Badgerow's house was searched. The result of the search was published. The officers found a large quantity of miscellaneous articles, but no jewelry that could be identified. Badgerow, on his return from Toronto, out of revenge, had Detective Williamson arrested on a charge of stealing a quantity of diamond jewelry—diamond ring, brooch and cutting diamond—and other articles of jewelry from a value during the search. Williamson was committed for trial by an Uxbridge magistrate, and at Whitby on Thursday the trial took place. Chief Ruttal was summoned as a witness by the Crown to show that he had not himself taken the diamonds. Another constable, who accompanied Williamson and Mr. Patterson to Badgerow's place on another occasion, also gave evidence. Both officers affirmed that they did not take the jewelry, and further, on cross examination of prisoner's counsel, stated that they did not see any diamond jewelry at all at Badgerow's place. This, of course, upset the case for the Crown, and the prisoner was dismissed.

TO SAVE THE EYES.

A Series of Good Suggestions for the Proper Use of Visual Organs.

1. Never read by a dim light. It is a common habit for children and even grown people to read between daylight and dark, or in the darkened corner of a room. The strain thus produced is often sufficient to impair a healthy eye, and surely will weaken one that is diseased.

2. Never read or write with the light shining directly in the eye. The light should either be covered by a shade or be placed above and behind the reader, shining over the left shoulder if the person is right-handed. In this way the page will be illuminated, and the bright rays of the light will not enter the eye and so irritate it.

3. Do not read lying down. It is an unnatural position, for it requires an extra strain on the muscles of the eyes, and favors congestion of these organs.

4. Do not read or write with the head bent far forward. It is a common practice for young people to lay the book on a table, bend over it, and, with face close to the page, continue reading or writing for a long time. This position causes an increased flow of blood to the eyes and head, producing symptoms of weakness and increasing any existing near-sightedness.

5. Avoid reading on the cars, or when riding in a carriage. The strain made necessary in the endeavor to overcome the unsteadiness of the page, and to see distinctly, is often sufficient to cause a great injury to an eye.

6. Avoid bringing the book too near the eyes. Hold it as far as the print is distinct and clear—about fourteen to sixteen inches; but do not carry it so far away that it is an effort to see clearly. When the book is brought too close to the face an undue strain is required both upon those muscles which adjust the vision at different distances, and also upon those which turn the eyes inward. As a result, marked symptoms of weakness in reading will in time be noticed.

7. Never read or continue the use of the eyes after they begin to tire, or the head commences to ache. These are certain indications that you are doing too much, and that rest is necessary.—Harper's Young People.

Sunset in the East.

In that remarkable work, "New Astronomy," by P. E. Trastour, M. D., New Orleans, 1875, page 44, that author says: "The very moment in which the sun retrogrades to the westward, beyond Libra, its rays will act immediately upon our globe in a contrary direction. The movement of the earth will be slackened, and decrease progressively in order to cease afterward, without any disorder, by virtue of what the movements of our planet are common to all the objects which are upon its surface. We can compare the discontinuance of its movement to that of a steamship which slackens more and more before ceasing to move altogether.

"Then man will witness a celestial phenomenon very curious. When the earth will have stopped the sun will be seen motionless, fixed in some portions of the heavens, and after that stationary state of some interval of time, just as the earth will resume little by little, a contrary movement of rotation, they will see the sun moving again, but rising on the horizon instead of going down. Then the sun, the planets, the moon and the stars will rise in the West and set in the East. The day in which that phenomenon will take place will be the longest of the period. There will be in that day two consecutive noons in the countries the meridians of which the sun will have passed, and two consecutive midnights at the Antipodes."

In the above Prof. Trastour fails to note that other philosophers and astronomers have predicted that the water will dry up from the face of the earth, and every living being have perished before it will be possible for old Sol to get within many trillions of miles of the point where the earth will begin to retrograde.

TO THE ELECTORS
—OF—
West Peterboro'

Gentlemen,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

FROM ACROSS THE SEA.

AN INTERVIEW WITH "JACK THE RIPPER'S" WIFE.

She is Evidently a Virago — Egyptian Troops Occupy Tokar—The Disestablishment Question in the Imperial Parliament—Emperor William to the People.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The interest of the public, especially in and about Whitechapel, still centres in the question whether the man Sadler is or is not Jack the Ripper. With a view of throwing light on the matter a reporter interviewed Sadler's wife, who on account of his furious temper is unable to longer live with him.

According to her story the sailor is a man of most peculiar temperament, who flies into an ungovernable rage over nothing at all and commits during these spasms the most violent actions.

"I would not live with him again," added the poor woman, "for when he's in them tantrums he's best left alone. I used to 'unor him like, but I've seed him behave like a lunatics, and many's the time as he's got up rows in cool blood when nobody was a naggin' of 'im.

"But one thing I will say for 'im; never 'ave I knowed 'im loss five minutes at 'is work. No matter how bloomin' drunk he might 'a bin the night afore, he allus comes to time next mornin'."

On being asked whether her husband had a knife, Mrs. Sadler replied that he had a strange looking clasp-knife with a long dagger-like blade. She also declared that Sadler was thoroughly acquainted with every nook and corner of London, and especially of Whitechapel.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A Close Vote on the Question of Disestablishment in Wales.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Baron Henry de Worms, Political Secretary of the Colonial Office in the House of Commons, in answer to a question upon Newfoundland matters, said that the Government of Newfoundland had protested against the fact that the convention between Newfoundland and the United States had not been sanctioned by the Imperial Government. Baron de Worms added that the documents relating to the French modus vivendi and the Washington convention negotiations would be laid before the House before the vote on the colonial estimates was taken, so as to enable the House to discuss fully the Home Government's action in the matter.

In the House of Commons this evening Morgan's resolution in favor of disestablishment of the church in Wales was rejected 285 to 203. The close vote was greeted with loud Opposition cheers.

Mr. Gladstone made a speech in favor of disestablishment. His argument, that an enormous majority of the Welsh were outside the pale of the church, and that the opinion of the people expressed in a constitutional manner demanded an equitable settlement, met with the heartiest response from his followers.

For the North Pole.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 20.—Dr. Nansen, the distinguished Greenland explorer, proposes to start on his new Polar exploration about the middle of June. He will endeavor to force his way through Behring Straits to the New Siberia group of islands in the Arctic Ocean. There he hopes to find open waters stretching far to the North Pole. His crew will be composed of only eight men, and his vessel will be provisioned for a five years' cruise, although he hopes to reach the Pole within two. The Danish Government has contributed £2750.

London's New Sensation.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Society is strongly stirred by stories of a sensation second only to the O'Shea case. The rumors current are those of another divorce among the high ones in the Conservative ranks. The story goes that the co-respondent is no other than Mr. Ashmead Bartlett, and the petitioner is one of the leading members of the House of Commons who sits on the Ministerial benches, and who is the husband of a lovely young wife. The facts have been suppressed, as the friends of both sides are doing their utmost to arrange the matter and keep everything quiet.

Lady Campbell Wanted to Die.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Lady Lyona Campbell was found by a policeman yesterday evening weeping bitterly upon the embankment and threatening to commit suicide by throwing herself into the river. Lady Campbell was arrested, and this morning was taken to the Bow-street police court, where her husband found a surety for her future conduct.

Excited Belgians.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 20.—The reserves of the civic guard have been called out in the great Charleroi mining and manufacturing district. This action by the Government has created a tremendous excitement throughout the length and breadth of Belgium. The workingmen's committee regard the sudden placing of the troops under arms as not only a menace but as an unmistakable indication that the federal authorities are preparing to maintain, by force of arms if necessary, a refusal to revise the constitution in the direction of universal manhood suffrage.

Anarchists and Police.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—An encounter between a body of Anarchists and a detachment of police took place last evening at St. Denis. A meeting of citizens was held at St. Denis with the object of denouncing the conscription laws. Anarchists predominated and caused a tumult by crying, "Vive le anarchie." The police charged on the crowd, and after a serious struggle arrested twenty of the ringleaders.

The Chilian Revolution.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says 1000 Chilian Government troops have been landed at Junin to reinforce the garrison at Iquique. Marines are being sent overland to Buenos Ayres to man the new Chilian gunboats which it is supposed stopped at that port to avoid capture by the insurgents. These vessels were recently built in Europe and were on their way to Chili. They are expected to reinforce the Government forces as soon as their crews are up to full strength.

The Oporto Insurgents.

OPORTO, Feb. 20.—Nine of the prisoners arrested on suspicion of having been concerned in the recent plot to establish a republic have been liberated. Three hundred soldiers and thirty civilians have been committed for trial by court martial. They will be tried in groups of ten.

INTERESTING IRISH NEWS.

SECRET CONFERENCE WITH THE CLONMEL PRISONERS.

Harrington and O'Brien Alleged to Have Communicated With Each Other—Where is that £8000?—Archbishop Walsh Takes a Determined Stand Against Parnell.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—No great headway has been made during the week in the question of the leadership of the Irish party. The Parnellites are ominously quiet. The McCarthyites are in the fore with meetings and preparing for war. Beginning in Ireland Sunday, Parnell will endeavor to inspire his friends with the hope that he will yet triumph. Accounts received from Ireland do not support his claim but rather indicate a decline of strength. The McCarthyites are certainly advancing in preparation for the campaign. They will have the systematic support of the priests, who are unrelenting in denouncing Parnell. Both sections are now regretful that a question has been raised as to how the fund of £8000 handed to O'Brien and Harrington was used, but being raised both sections are determined to make a statement on the subject. The Parnellites rely on O'Brien to clear them of the charge of unwarrantable use of the money, but doubting whether O'Brien will be allowed to engage in the controversy in his prison cell application has been made to the Dublin Executive to permit Mr. Sexton as the McCarthy nominee with Mr. Harrington to confer with Mr. O'Brien. The request has been referred to Mr. Balfour, who will not accede unless there is reason to suppose the conference would further embitter the quarrel between the factions. Harrington has been secretly communicating with O'Brien since the latter went to Clonmel and has placed him in possession of the facts in regard to the fund dispute.

AGAINST PARNELL.

Irish Hierarchy Getting Into Fighting Trim.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—It is said that Archbishop Walsh is in communication with other prelates of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland on the subject of taking disciplinary measures against such of the clergy as persist in adhering to Mr. Parnell. The Archbishop argues, it is reported, that the issue is not one of politics but of morality, and that the clergy have no right to take the side of a man who has been convicted of Mr. Parnell's offence in the O'Shea case.

Archbishop Walsh is deeply irritated by what he calls the "unbridled insolence" of Mr. Parnell's followers in the Irish hierarchy. The priests are to be thoroughly organized with a view to political work in their respective parishes and will be expected to act, so far, at least, as Mr. Parnell is concerned, under the absolute direction of their bishops. It is suggested that Roman Catholics who persist in attending Parnellite meetings and countenancing the Parnell agitation may be sent to the bishop of their diocese for absolution instead of being dealt with by ordinary confessors.

United Ireland.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—United Ireland is still under control of the Parnellites, whatever change may be about to take place. To-day the paper says that with the imprisonment of John Dillon and William O'Brien dies the hope of re-uniting the Irish party as at present constituted. It is the duty, the paper declares, of every Irishman to overthrow the banner raised by a faction under British control, with the object of dividing the Irish.

INSANE ON A TRAIN.

An Insane Man Detained by the Police at Guelph.

GUELPH, Feb. 20.—On the arrival of the midnight train from Toronto Thursday night a young man, apparently about 23 years of age and of respectable appearance, alighted from the train and by his strange behavior soon attracted the attention of the police, who took him in charge and lodged him in the cells. He appeared to be insane and was unable to give any account of himself, other than that he had come from Heathcourt, near Meaford. Upon searching his pockets a sum of money amounting to about $34 was found, also a Methodist class ticket for February, bearing the initials "G. S. H.," and a circular issued by the "Holiness" convention in Galt. In appearance the young man is of medium height, full face, clean shaven and of pleasing countenance. He is clad in dark clothing, black overcoat, astrachan cap and a white cravat.

NICARAGUA CANAL BILL.

American Senators Discuss a Bill That England Will Resent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Senate to-day took up the Nicaragua Canal bill giving the guarantee of the United States Government to the company's 4 per cent. bonds to the extent of one hundred million of dollars. In the discussion Senator Vest said that no greater calamity could come upon the world than a war between the United States and Great Britain. This bill assumed, for the first time, that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty anent the isthmus trade was annulled, while Great Britain since 1850 has repeatedly affirmed that the treaty is in force. In passing the bill the House must accept the consequences, if not war, a condition of animosity, antagonism and distrust which would operate injuriously on the interests of both countries and of the world. The bill assumes exclusive control of the canal by the United States. Many others spoke, but the Senate adjourned without action.

The St. Regis Indians.

ALBANY, N.Y., Feb. 17.—Assemblyman W. C. Stevens introduced in the assembly to-day a bill providing that Canadian St. Regis Indians settling upon the New York reservation shall be removed by the county judge and shall be liable to 30 days' imprisonment if they return.

STRATFORD, Feb. 17.—John McKay, stone mason, aged 60, was preparing kindling to light the fire, just outside the door of his house, when it is supposed in a fit of coughing he burst the blood vessel and died. When the daughter got up he was lying outside the door dead.

DEATH IN A TUNNEL.

SHOCKING RAILWAY ACCIDENT IN NEW YORK.

Two New York Central Trains Collide in Park Avenue—Fire Adds to the Horrors of the Scene—Six Persons Killed—The Engineer of a Passenger Train Locked Up.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—A terrible collision between trains occurred in the tunnel of the New York Central and the New York & New Haven roads this morning. One of the trains caught fire and a deplorable loss of life resulted. At 7.05 the 7.01 New Haven local passenger train, north-bound, approached the station at Eighty-sixth-street. A mist filled the tunnel and the lights had partially failed because of the storm of snow and hail which had lasted all morning. A train of sleeping-cars was ahead on the same track as the New Haven train. This was run into by the New Haven local, which was going at a high rate of speed. The crash was terrible, and both trains, engines and cars were completely telescoped and smashed to atoms. The cars of the forward train caught fire from a stove, and the flames rose high above the wreck.

Three alarms of fire were sent out, followed immediately by two calls for ambulance. The latter were responded to by physicians from Bellevue and Harlem hospitals. When the police, doctors and firemen reached the scene they found approach difficult by reason of the complete wreck of the cars, combined with the smoke, flames and the narrow limits of the tunnel.

Five persons were killed in the accident and seven injured. The victims are all employes of the road. The passengers in the New Haven train were badly shaken up, but beyond some slight cuts and bruises none of them were badly hurt.

The passengers were taken from the track back to the Grand Central depot in a New Haven train that was just passing at the time in the east tunnel. Engineer Fowler of the New Haven train said that when at 72nd-street he got the white signal, which was a signal to go ahead. There was no ringing of the bell as is customary when the danger signal is up. He was running at the rate of about 20 miles an hour on the northbound track. He was so close to the "shop train" before he was aware of it that he telescoped it before he was hardly able to put on the air brakes.

The "shop train," consisting of seven cars, included several sleepers that had come into the Grand Central depot early in the morning, and was on the way to the repair shop, as is the custom after a trip. On the telescoped shop train there were probably a dozen or more employes, both of the road and of the Wagner Company.

Five bodies were taken from the wreck up to 1 o'clock. They were three men, one woman and a boy. The latter was the newsboy of the Boston and Albany express.

How the Accident Occurred.

The New Haven accommodation train, due at the eastern end of its route at 10.04, carried a load of passengers out of the Grand Central Depot. Ahead of it was a shop train of seven sleeping cars that had come in during the night before. It was going to Mott Haven to be cleaned up for to-night's trip eastward. It carried nobody can tell exactly how many shop hands, in addition to its own crew of porters, cleaners and newsboys. The two trains were on the north-bound track, a block apart. The railroad block in the tunnel is equal to almost 10 or 12 city blocks. The shop train had gone as far as Eighty-sixth-street when for some reason at present unknown it slowed up and prepared to stop at the station at that point. At Eighty-fourth-street the accommodation overtook the shop train, then standing or moving very slowly past the Eighty-sixth-street station. The accommodation was under good headway and its engine crashed into the last of the seven sleepers. The rear car of the shop train completely telescoped the one before it. Switch engine No. 8, bound from the Mott Haven yard to the Grand Central Depot, was coming along at the same time on the opposite track. As No. 8 was passing the cars that had been thrown together were hurled against it. The switch engine was thrown from the track. Engineer Bailey, his fireman and six other men were aboard at the time. Bailey was injured, not seriously, but none of the others were hurt.

The Wreck Took Fire.

In a moment the flames burst from the wreck and clouds of smoke rolled up through the air-vent in the tunnel that was almost directly over the scene of the accident. Fearful cries for help were heard by those who were passing in the street overhead. Citizens ran for the police and sent alarms for the firemen and in a few minutes assistance came galloping. Burned and breathless men, coal black with smoke and with their clothes blazing, then began to crawl up through the air-vent when ladders had been hastily let down. When no more came up, firemen went down with axes and hose and broke into the wreck from which the flames were rising. Out of the broken window of the last car, where the engine of the accommodation train had pinned him fast, hung a man crying wildly for help. No other cry rose than from the awful pile. A dozen axes smashed the woodwork that held him, and he was taken out. He was a car cleaner and said that his name was Hancke.

A Priest's Bravery.

Father Walker of St. Lawrence Church climbed down into the smoking hole where the fire was raging. He stood by while the work of rescue was going on and prayed with Hancke. "In all my days I never saw so horrible a thing," said he. When the end of the car was smashed in the dead were reached. The dreadful masses of burned flesh were laid on the south-bound track and hoisted up to the street through the air-vent on stretchers. They were laid in the little park that enclosed the air-vents and covered with blankets.

A great crowd gathered at the spot. Every fresh body brought out steamed as if it had been parboiled in addition to being burned. Half a dozen fire engines had pumped streams of water into the gap before the wreck could be approached.

While the firemen worked by the aid of lanterns to recover bodies gangs of trainmen were laboring to raise the derailed switch engine and put it back on its track. The engine of the accommodation was pulled out of the wreck and back to the depot yard. A more complete wreck than the telescoped car it would be impossible to imagine.

Six persons were killed and four injured. No passenger on the accommodation was hurt and even Engineer Fowler escaped with slight hurts. The passengers were taken back to the Grand Central Depot. All those who were killed were employes of the road.

The Dead.

JOHN HANCKE, 30 years, car cleaner, both legs crushed and left leg and foot burned. He was conscious when taken out and was removed to the hospital, where he died at 12 o'clock.

MICHAEL MULLANE, 13 years, was taken from the wreck dead from a fracture of the skull and lower jaw.

A WOMAN taken out dead, terribly lacerated about the head and body, supposed to be Mrs. Nellie Supple, a car cleaner.

MRS. ELLEN FAY, a car cleaner, was taken out burned beyond recognition, identified by means of a gold ring on one of the fingers.

AN UNKNOWN COLORED MAN, burned about the body.

AN UNKNOWN WHITE MAN, burned about the back of the head and lower portion of the legs and face.

The Injured.

WILLIAM D. SHOWN, brakeman on the shop train, injured internally.

DANIEL M. CALDEATH, colored cook, suffering from shock, may recover.

LOUIS FOWLER, engineer.

JOHN SOFIELD, member of 16 Truck Company overcome by smoke.

It is alleged the accident was due to the neglect of Engineer Fowler of the accommodation train to notice the danger signal and the ringing of a gong, which would have indicated that the shop train was but a short distance ahead. Fowler and his fireman, however, assert that there was no danger signal and that the signal at 72nd-street indicated a clear track. On the other hand it is claimed that the red light was up and that the mechanical and electrical systems of signals were in first-class order. The block system is used in the tunnel.

The body of the unknown white man has been identified as that of James B. Flynn, a machinist 50 years old. There now remains but one body to be identified. Engineer Fowler has been arrested.

A C. P. R. Collision.

LACHUTE, Que., Feb. 20.—About 4.15 this morning two freight trains collided about two miles west of St. Hermenas, on the C.P.R., completely demolishing both engines and several cars. Both engineers and the fire men were injured. A man named Fresnal was killed and several others more or less seriously injured.

WILLIAM TO HIS PEOPLE.

Which Evokes Tremendous Enthusiasm and Shouts of "Hoch, Hoch."

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—At a dinner given to his honor this evening by the Brandenburg Diet, Emperor William said he was aware that what he had recently done had changed many of his people and that they hesitated to follow him. It was necessary however for them to confide in him with a view to the welfare of the whole people. Prussia, he said, became great because in 1813 the whole nation confided in and rallied to the support of the King.

"In our time," the Emperor continued, "when disloyalty and other vices steal through the world, when an ocean of printing ink and paper is lavished to embarrass and darken everything lying clear before us, you must hold with me. I remain calm in the hope that you will follow me. May I find enough faithful men to do my bidding. The Emperor's speech evoked tremendous enthusiasm. The magnates besieged the imperial table to express their confidence and the hall resounded with shouts of "Hoch, hoch."

Colliers' Strike.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The men employed in a dozen collieries at Durham have struck, owing to the evictions of strikers from their residences upon Lord Londonderry's property.

Twenty-two thousand Durham miners have struck.

A False Report.

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—The Bourse was agitated to-day owing to canards announcing Emperor William was ill. These reports, it is said, were circulated for the purpose of influencing subscriptions for the new loan. The authorities are trying to discover the authors of the rumors.

Many Travelers Perish.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Severe gales accompanied by heavy snow are reported throughout Greece, causing interruption of the telegraph service. Sixteen travelers have perished.

A Fight Expected.

SUAKIM, Feb. 20.—Information from El Teb states that the Egyptians will march towards Afatite this morning, expecting to meet Osman Digna's forces there. A deserter from the enemy has reached El Teb and reports that Osman Digna's forces are drawn up in battle array about Afatite. A decisive encounter is expected.

Foreign Notes.

The Bishop of Limerick is seriously ill.

The Earl of Zetland, Viceroy of Ireland, is visiting the west coast to personally investigate the condition of the people of that section, many of whom are represented to be suffering for food.

Mr. Leslie Fraser Duncan, late editor of The Matrimonial News, has paid Miss Gladys Knowles the reduced amount of damages, £5500 with costs, awarded to her as a result of her suit against him for breach of promise of marriage.

Fire broke out on Wednesday in the apartments of the Empress in St. Petersburg, but the flames were promptly extinguished and only slight damage was done. The Czar personally directed the operations of the fire men.

THE MAGGIE GEHL CASE.

The Government Authorities Asked to Investigate the Matter.

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 20.—The jury in the case of Maggie Gehl, who died suddenly while visiting an acquaintance, met last night. This is the verdict returned: We the jury empanelled to enquire into the cause of death of Maggie Gehl, beg to report as follows: That in the opinion of the jury the said Maggie Gehl came to her death by unnatural means, the cause of which is at present time unknown to the jury. And we are of the opinion that in the interests of justice this case should be investigated by the proper authorities.

A Short-Lived Strike.

HANOVER, Feb. 20.—The men employed at the furniture factory of D. Knechtel & Co. went on strike in a body owing to the resignation of the foreman, Mr. Soloman Knechtel, and the appointment of one, John Seadlos, to fill the vacated position, to which appointment the workmen objected, believing him to be a disagreeable man to work under and feeling it was through him that the foreman, who had so long and successfully filled that position, was led to resign. The proprietor agreed not to employ Sandlos, but declined to reinstate Knechtel. To this the men agreed, providing that those men who had received a special discharge as ringleaders of the strike should be taken on again. This being done the strike was declared off and all returned to work.

Heavy Storm in the West.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Reports received here show a terrific snow, sleet and rain storm is raging from the Allegheny Mountains as far west as Kansas. In Illinois and Missouri the storm is especially severe. In portions of Illinois and Iowa fruit trees have broken down under the weight of ice and street cars were forced to suspend traffic. In Wisconsin the snow storm was general and caused considerable delay to trains. In South Dakota and at many points in Western and Southern Minnesota the heaviest storm of the winter is raging.

Boys and Firearms.

UXBRIDGE, Feb. 20.—A Scott boy, of the 7th con., named Horner, shot himself with a revolver on Sunday. It went off accidentally, the ball passing through his hand in a slanting direction. James Compton, a boy of 17, was shot in the thigh at the shooting gallery. The bullet went in quite a distance, striking a bone and taking a downward course. It could not be extracted.

Carelessness Cost a Hand.

ALLISTON, Feb. 20.—As a consequence scuffling around machinery, James Delainey lost his left hand at Thompsonville. It appears a young man who acts as tail sawyer for Mr. Tuer in the sawmill, while playing with Delainey threw him towards the saw which was running, and his hand coming in contact with the saw was cut off at the wrist joint.

A Patent Right Case.

MILTON, Feb. 20.—Martin Center of Milton and George Emmett of Esquesing have been committed for trial on a charge preferred by Nathan Moore of Esquesing of combining to defraud him in May last by procuring from him a promissory note for $120 by falsely pretending that Emmett was giving Center a similar note, the consideration of both notes being the assignment of a patent

THE LOGIC OF THE FISH PLOT PAMPHLET EXHUMED.

Here is a sample of Tory logic. Mr. Abbott, a member of Sir John Macdonald's government, signed a manifesto urging the annexation of Canada to the United States. The same manifesto was signed by Sir David Macpherson, Sir A. T. Galt, Sir John Rose and other Tory leaders. But we are told that neither Sir John Macdonald nor the Tory party must be held responsible for the annexationist sentiments of these gentlemen. Mr. Colby, also a member of Sir John's ministry has denounced reciprocity in natural products as something that would utterly ruin our farmers. Yet we are told that Mr. Colby does not speak for the government nor for his party. Mr. Solomon White, the Tory M.P.P., for North Essex, has been lecturing in the United States in favor of the annexation of Canada, but Mr. White does not represent his party. But because Mr. Edward Farrer, while editing a Tory newspaper, wrote a pamphlet pointing out how Canada's interests might be injured by legislation at Washington, therefore the Reformers of Canada, who form the best half of our population, must be rebels, traitors and annexationists! Such is the logic of the Tory leader. Could a greater exhibition of imbecility or senility be given?

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

Who are the people who, at this time, howl "loyalty" with hypocritical iteration, and wave "the old flag" with frantic energy? Is it the men who are the best citizens, who work for their best interests, or those who by the brawling assumption of a virtue, wish to conceal their political vices and distract attention from their misdeeds? History has a trick of repeating itself. We have all heard of Demetrius, a certain silversmith of Ephesus, "which made shrines for Diana," who, fearing the popularity of the religious policy of St. Paul, formed a combine of his craftsmen and went through the streets shouting "Diana! Diana!" which being interpreted and modernized means 'loyalty! loyalty!' our craft is in danger, and it is only by an appeal to ignorance and prejudice that we can save our bacon." In the same manner, the the boodlers and combinators, the packed press, systematically shout out "loyalty"—their craft is in danger—the policy of reciprocity is seizing upon the popular heart, and unless they can distract popular attention and thought by a cry that has not the slightest significance in this contest, boodleism is doomed to certain destruction. And this same cry may be useful to withdraw public attention from a discussion of the rise and misgovernment of the ministry of the day—the iniquity of Rykertism, of MacGreevyism, of the Dominion Franchise Act, of the wholesale purchase, by railway subsidy bribes, of whole districts of constituencies. But nobody will be deceived. The people of Canada are aroused. They have been worshipping a fiscal Diana too long—a brazen image of delusive prosperity, and now they want the reality. They recognize in reciprocity that reality, and are going for it from end to end of the Dominion. No bogus cry of "loyalty" is going to turn them from their determination to shake off the shackles of trade restriction and put them in a position to fight with untied hands a fair battle for their daily bread. Vox populi, vox Dei, and it will take more than the shouting of thirth-five per cent. loyalists and the beating of high tariff tom-toms to down the voice of the people, that will, on March fifth, speak in stentorian tones for a free market, and pronounce the death knell of tariff tyranny and the rule of boodle and combine.

THEY HAVE LEFT THE SINKING SHIP.

Here are a few prominent gentlemen who formerly supported the Tory party and the policy of trade restriction, but who refuse to do so any longer.

Mr. Alonzo Wright, for many years M. P. for Ottawa county. Mr. Wright refused to accept nomination from the Tory party, and will do nothing for the Tory candidate in the county he represented for so many years.

Mr. R. T. Rokeby, manager of the Commercial Bank, Winnipeg. This gentleman has abandoned trade restriction because he finds it ruining the trade of the Northwest.

Mr. Michael Dwyer, a prominent Halifax wholesale merchant. He was mentioned by the Tory organ as a probable candidate in the government interest, but promptly wrote a letter declaring himself for Reform and reciprocity.

Colonel Domville, formerly Conservative M. P. for King's county, N. B. He is now the unrestricted reciprocity candidate in the same county.

Alderman Jeanotte, of Montreal. He was the Tory candidate at the last local election in Montreal East, but is now supporting the Liberal candidate for the Commons.

Mr. J. B. Turner, a life-long Conservative, has accepted nomination as a candidate in South Leeds on the unrestricted reciprocity platform.

The St. Catharines Journal, the oldest and most influential Conservative paper published in the Niagara peninsula, has declared for unrestricted reciprocity.

Le Canadian the most widely circulated Conservative paper in Quebec, refuses to support the Macdonald-McGreevy party any longer, and its proprietor, Mr. Tarte, is the opposition candidate in Montmorency.

Mr. Michael Graves and four other Frontenac county Conservatives left the Conservative convention in that county, declaring for unrestricted reciprocity, and refusing to support Mr. Kirkpatrick.

Mr. D. A. McArthur, a leading Glengarry county merchant, who was the Conservative candidate for the Ontario Assembly in that county a few years ago announces that he will support Reform and reciprocity.

Mr. Frank Negus, a prominent Conservative lawyer of Winnipeg, says that he has discovered such proofs of the utter corruption of the Tory leaders that he can support them no longer.

Mr. G. H. Dechenes, for many years the Conservative M.P.P. for Temiscouta, is now the Liberal candidate in that county.

Mr. R. W. Phipps, the father of Sir John Macdonald's naval policy, has abandoned Toryism and now supports unrestricted reciprocity.

The Patrons of Industry, the Canadian branch of the Farmers' Alliance, have adopted unrestricted reciprocity as the principal plank in their platform.

The Central Farmers' Institute of Ontario adopted, by a vote of 91 to 16, a strong resolution in favor of unrestricted reciprocity.

As an offset to these defections from their ranks the Tories point to a few New Brunswick sorcheads, who have quarrelled with the provincial government upon an issue wholly distinct from Dominion politics, and who regard it as their duty to fight for the Tory party.

The London Young Liberals have issued some effective campaign literature specially addressed to the workingmen. In these days the defenders of the N. P. who address the workingmen find that their words are falling upon deaf ears. In the first place, as the London Young Liberals point out, it increases the cost of nearly everything the workingmen eats or drinks or wears. In the second place, there are many trades in which the N. P. cannot possibly enhance wages, among them the building trades, and the making of goods to order, such as clothing and shoes, and local trades such as the baker and blacksmith. Here there can be no protection, because there is no competition with foreigners. Finally, the best manufacturers of the country are ready for unrestricted reciprocity, believing that serves to 65,000,000 new customers will more than compensate them for the competition they may have to face.

More Desirable than a Fine Face.

Contentment, good humor and complacency of temper outlive all the charms of a fine face, and make the decays of it invisible. These God-given qualities always follow the use of Paine's Celery Compound. We know of instances in our experience where the ill-tempered, irritable and ugly in disposition, made so from ailments such as overworked and tired brain, nervous debility, a feeling of goneness, sleeplessness, dyspepsia and indigestion, have been changed in character and disposition by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. Good humor and complacency of temper afterwards reigned supreme in their lives and actions.

It is these qualities, dear reader, and not the charms and attractions of a fine face, which will make you loveable and popular with your friends during life. The glow of health in the ordinary looking-glass, which Paine's Celery Compound gives, will outlive the handsome face and features of the subject who never uses this great tonic. If you are ailing in any way, or feel out of sorts, keep this valuable Compound near you, and by its use you will soon find health, joyousness, appetite and strength your portion in life.

What Medical Science is Doing

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which was crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Beware of imitations.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000—and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as these complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. dw

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of York, ville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w6d

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

That tired, languid feeling, and dull headache, is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good. dw

Small Sugar-Coated Burdock Pills do not gripe or sicken. They are mild an effectual. dw

Dr. Low's Sulphur Soap is a delightful shampoo. It cleanses the scalp and darkens grey hair. dw

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Briggle, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Peter Mosher, 29 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

WHAT DID MOTHER EVE DO?

The Question Suggested to a Matron by Book on the Training of Children.

"What did Eve do for a nurse girl?"

The question came toward the close of a conversation between two young matrons concerning the training of children. One had been dilating on the merits of a book on that subject.

"You ought to read it," she exclaimed enthusiastically. "It is full of thoroughly practical ideas."

"Tells where the nursery should be located, doesn't it?" inquired the other.

"O, yes. It says that the room or rooms set apart for the use of the child should be near its mother's, so that it can be constantly under her eye."

"Near her boudoir, isn't it?"

"Yes; that's the way the book puts it."

"And the child should be kept away from the reception-room and parlors?"

"Of course. Constant attention from visitors will spoil any child."

Matron No. 2 roused herself and with considerable show of interest asked:

"Does it tell how all this can be arranged in a seven room flat?"

"Well—no-o," replied Matron No. 1; "I don't know that it does."

"Did you ever see a book that did?"

"No; I can't say that I have."

"Then a child can't be brought up properly outside of a large house?"

"Well, hardly that. Of course, if one can't have a nursery——"

"If one can't, one can't follow the advice given. The nurse girl, I suppose, must be trustworthy, amiable, educated, and fond of children."

"O, yes; all of that. The book says that wages should not be considered; that the aim should be to get a girl who could gain the confidence of the child and who would be competent not only to carry out the instructions of the mother but to fill in the details. You see, the immediate care of the children is in the hands of the girl."

"And the mother trains the girl?"

"Yes, that's about it."

"Suppose she can't afford to hire a nurse-girl!"

"Why, I—I—really, I don't think it gives any advice for that contingency."

"Ever see a book that did?"

"No, I don't believe I have."

"I wonder," said Matron No. 2 thoughtfully, "how many women there are in Chicago who can't afford to employ an extra servant to take care of the children."

Matron No. 1 did not attempt to figure on the problem, and after a pause Matron No. 2 sighed and put her closing question:

"What did Eve do for a nurse-girl?"

Matron No. 1 was staggered, but for only a moment.

"She didn't have any," she replied, "and I guess that is why Cain went wrong."—Herald.

An Episode.

"Horrible, horrible!" cried the Obituary Editor, dropping into his chair.

"What's horrible?" asked the Humorous Man. "What's the matter?"

"Matter!" shouted the Obituary Editor, "matter? The Steenth National bank has just been forced to close its doors!"

"The Steenth Nat— Great Heavens!" cried the Humorous Man, striking an F. Opper attitude. "Great Heavens! that means beggary for me!"

"Oh, I hope not!" condoned the Obituarist, in a violin-cello voice. "I hope it ain't so bad as that!"

"Yes, it is! All my hard-saved earnings were deposited in that bank. My wife will have to take in washing!" and he wept several weeps. My children will have to go begging, and I—I will be forced to sell 'Kreutzer Sonatas' and fountain-pens on the streets!"

"Oh, it can't be," said the Obituary Editor, wiping his eyes on a mourning-bordered handkerchief scented with musk. "Let us hope for the best!"

"It is no use, no use at all!" moaned the unfortunate funny man. "I am ruined. But tell me—tell me what caused the bank to suspend? Was it an unexpected run?"

"Who said the bank had suspended?" asked the maker of angels' wings, "who said anything—"

"Why, you did! You said that the bank had been forced to close its doors, didn't you?"

"Yes, but—"

"But what?"

"The doors were closed to keep out the cold air. Terrible draught around the corner, you know!"

And the funny man, stifling his tears, sat down and wrote a fifty cent joke on the subject, while the obituary editor returned to his den and proceeded to call old Skinflint, who had just died because he was too miserly to buy himself medicine, a "model of charity and benevolence."—Boston Traveler.

Cheap and Pretty Baskets.

There is a way to make good baskets at home, and pretty and cheap, too, out of corn-husks—thick outer husks for strong baskets, and for lighter and finer ones the white inner parts. These must be wrapped an hour or so in a damp towel, and then cut into stripes of equal width. Make an ordinary braid with six or more stripes, which may be doubled, or even trebled, for greater strength. Thread a needle with heavy, waxed linen thread, and having dampened the braid, form it into an oval, five or six inches long and three wide, for the bottom of the basket, and sew the adjoining edges of the braid together, as in a straw hat, but don't overlap them. Go on coiling and stitching for the sides of the basket, widening the opening until the basket is deep enough. The handles are made of a heavy three-stranded braid, which is sewed all around the top of the basket just inside and looped at the middle of each side. For ornament wind the handles with gay colored ribbon or braid, put a box-plaiting of the same around the top and work a bunch of flowers on one side in bright colors with long stitches. The opposite side may have a letter or a name.

A Startling Fact.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in life or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire [illegible] five-the oldest those above years and ten—[illegible] over hanging like a cloud upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Smoked Himself to Death.

NEWBURG, N.Y., Feb. 19.—Fowler Simpson, who was known among his many friends as "Doc," died recently at McAfee, Sussex county, N.J., from the effects of excessive cigaret smoking. Simpson was a bright young man and had corresponded for several years with newspapers till a short time before his death. He was a son of the late William Simpson of McAfee, and a brother-in-law of Mr. J. C. Wilson, a prominent citizen of Warwick, N.Y.

Capron of Galt Surprises Windy City Experts and Downs Maggioli.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—The contestants in the short stop billiard tournament last night were Maggioli and Capron, the Canadian. The latter surprised everyone by winning by a score of 400 to 339. His average was 10 10-39. Maggioli's average was 9 6-37.

In the afternoon game Ives won hands down from Shaw by a score of 400 to 170. His averaged 18 4-22 and made a high run of 70. Shaw averaged 8 2-21.

Died From His Injuries.

HAMILTON, Feb. 19.—Terence Reardon who fell from a livery rig while driving home from the horse races on the bay two weeks ago, died in St. Joseph Hospital to-day from his injuries. Reardon, who was 45 years of age, leaves a wife and family of small children.

Found Dead in Bed.

ST. GEORGE, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Robert Witty, the wife of a farmer residing about a mile and a half from the town, retired on Wednesday evening last about 10 o'clock in her usual good health. The following morning her husband arose at the usual hour, dressed and made the fire, and then proceeded to the barn to do the chores. On returning to the house, seeing his wife had not arisen, he went to call her, when he was dumfounded to find her dead.

John Bull Hanged.

MERIDIAN, Miss., Feb. 19.—Ben Pierce, a farmer of Battlefield, was brutally murdered a few days ago by John Bull, an Indian, who entered Pierce's house and cut his throat. Last night neighbors took Bull from the jail and hanged him.

THE POOR PROTECTED MAN.

Did any of you ever sit down quietly and think what the workingman pays in the shape of taxation under the restrictive, high tariff policy? Everything he looks at and touches is protected, and that means a tax, for protection, for practical purpose means a tax. When he gets up in the morning, he washes in a washbasin that is protected. He wipes his face upon a protected towel; he lights his fire with a protected match, in a protected stove, with protected coal, which costs him a dollar a ton more than it would if there was no protection at all. He sits down to a protected breakfast, everything being protected except the tea, if he is able to afford it, and even that he can't have free, for the sugar he puts into it is highly protected and more than makes up for what is saved on the tea. He sits down to a protected table on a protected chair. He rises and puts on his protected overcoat. The clothes he has on are already protected, even to the very shirt on his back. He goes out to his work carrying with him the protected tools with which he has to earn his living. If you sit down and sum it all up you will find that that man has to pay a large portion of the wages of the day in the shape of taxes upon all these protected things. There is one thing that is not protected and that is his labour. The only way in which he gets a benefit from that is by a large bonus given to bring in competing labour to prevent him from getting fair wages. And, forsooth, you must not have trade relations with the United States or the workingman will begin to understand that he is standing beside the highest paid labour in the world. Now, under these circumstances, you are told you must stick by the old policy and make no change—wear the old chain of tariff slavery and vote for a government that has never passed a line of legislation in the interests of the workingman.

CLAP-TRAP.

The senior Conservative organ never selected a more appropriate title than "Clap Trap" for the following paragraph, which it quotes from the Empire. And what a world of "disingenuousness" is there in the Review quoting this paragraph! This precious paragraph reads thus:—

"The Toronto Empire says:—'A NICE disingenuous specimen is Mr. Thomas Rorke, the Grit candidate in East Peterborough Mr. Rorke has issued an address to the electors, in which he poses as a farmer, calls upon the farmers to support him, and dates his appeal from Asphodel, a township in the riding. The facts are that Mr. Rorke is not a farmer at all, but a grain buyer; that he does not live in Asphodel, but in Norwood, and that his address is simply a bit of clap-trap to catch farmers' votes.'"

Now we can supply a companion paragraph to that. For instance:

A nice disingenuous specimen is Sir John Macdonald, the Premier of the Dominion of Canada. Sir John issued an excuse for outraging the constitution by bringing on the elections prematurely, which stated that he wanted a parliament fresh from the country (on stale voters' lists) to strengthen his hand in negotiating an offer of reciprocity from the United States. The facts are that Sir John got no such offer he declared he had received, and he has dropped reciprocity and declares for "the old policy, the old taxes." Now, what about clap-trap"? Mr. Rorke is a farmer, whose farm is in Asphodel, and there is no clap-trap in his statements. When a man, who is regarded as the greatest statesman in Canada, makes a statement hostile to the facts, then a word with much fewer letters than "clap-trap" fits the occasion.

SOME of our Conservative contemporaries are saying that the hog industry will be destroyed by unrestricted reciprocity. If this remark applies to the tariff hog it is strictly true. The farmers have been feeding that hog too long.

THE sugar of which the Canadian farmer and mechanic gets twenty pounds for the dollar is sold in Britain at forty pounds for the dollar. That is to say, it costs just twice as much here as there, thanks to the tariff and the sugar barons, who build palaces in London out of the money extorted from Canadian farmers and artisans.

Worn Out and Broken Down.

This is a question tens from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Norwood.

A meeting of electors was held at Norwood last night in Mr. Burnham's interest at which Mr. W. H. Stephenson occupied the chair. The principal speaker was the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, who came out flat-footed for the National Policy, and insulted the intelligence of the people by asserting that the N. P. had done all that was claimed for it, and that the country had prospered under its regime. He hadn't a single good word to offer for Sir John's alleged offer of partial reciprocity, but talked protection all through. The electors have had twelve years experience of the National Policy, and know as well as Mr. Bowell, and perhaps better, what it amounts to. The people don't want to be told they are in good circumstances, when they know differently What they are looking for is a panacea for the existing "hard times," but Mr. Bowell carefully refrained from suggesting any remedy—unrestricted reciprocity, for instance. Mr. S. R. Armstrong, of Peterborough, delivered a short opening speech, and after Mr. Bowell concluded, Mr. E. B. Stone, representing Mr. A. R. Kidd, the Equal Rights candidate, took Mr. Bowell to task, and asked several leading questions, which that gentleman, under the subscription that they were not worth answering, replied to only partially or with ridicule. The usual cheers were given, those for Mr. Rorke being heartily echoed by the Reform candidate's friends, who numbered one-half the audience.

The Disloyalty Cry.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Every Canadian should resent by voice and vote the slanderous insult offered to half of the people of this country by the leader of the Tory party in his ridiculous and silly manifesto. When Sir John Macdonald charges one-half of the population of Canada with disloyalty and treason he himself knows full well that the charge is false and libellous. If the Premier of "The brightest jewel in England's crown" is allowed to declare to the world that one-half of its population is composed of rebels and traitors, it is high time for the people to rise in their might and by their votes resent the foul insult, and by so doing show to the world that a Canadian cannot be insulted with impunity.

Every Canadian, be he a Conservative or Reformer, who values the honor of his country, must resent this charge, which was made by a man who was himself driven from office, for real treason—for selling a great public franchise for money with which to debauch the electorate—by a man who associates with such gentry as Rykert and McGreevy, and other notorious boodlers who are a disgrace to any country.

Yours, etc.,
VOTER.

THE SECOND CARNIVAL.

The Foresters Score Another Success.

A Fine Array of Masqueraders—A Fair Attendance of Visitors—The Competitions—The Prize Winners—Foresters Fail to Beat the World at Curling.

The second carnival under the auspices of Court Peterborough Foresters took place last night, and was a most pleasant success. Owing to decidedly unfavorable weather, the attendance was much less than the first carnival, but the masqueraders turned out in force and made a delightfully bright and varied picture upon the ice. There were some very simple and some very elaborate and beautiful costumes. The presence of the band, which was liberal in its performances of a fine repertoire of selections, added much to the gayety of the scene. Messrs. Long and Hooper provided refreshments. Concurrently with the carnival progress, curling matches were in progress. One of them for a barrel of flour to the "Protestant Home", between a rink of Foresters against a rink representing "the world," in which "the world" got decidedly the best of it, as the following score will show:

The Graduates Good Work.

The following paragraph is taken from the Trinity University Review: "We have received from the Rev. J. C. The good work commenced by Mr. Davidson on his appointment to this important post, and in which he has been so ably seconded by Rev. C. B Kenrick, M. Baby's Face was Raw Distressing Itching Skin Disease Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. His face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got no better. My mother advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I used them faithfully, and in one week the boy looked better. In one month he was cured, now he is two years old and not a sign of it remains. The child's face looked as if it had been scalded, and it was impossible to keep it clean. The itching was terrible, and the poor little fellow could not sleep. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to see any one and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

A Pride to our Country.

The Newcombe Pianoforte Gather Laurels in Two Hemispheres!

Probably there is no manufacturing industry in which Canada has obtained such a world wide celebrity as in that of pianos. The fame our musical instruments have gained among musical critics throughout the world is something unprecedented in the history of a young country. Of the firms who are flourishing in this country to-day, none is better known on both sides of the Atlantic than that of Octavius Newcombe & Co., of Toronto. Established in 1871, this company has from year to year extended its business and enlarged its reputation, until now it occupies a proud and unassailable position in the musical trade. "The force of merit makes its way" has been the watchword of the Newcombe Company since its inception, when it took care that only skilful and experienced artizans should be employed in its factory. Their pianos have received unqualified recommendations from not merely the leading musicians of Canada, but from the master minds of old world artists. Of their pianos it may be truly said that they are found everywhere from the cottage of the artizan to the palace of the Queen. No encomium could have been more valuable and positive than the selection by Sir Arthur Sullivan from the instruments at the famous Colonial and Indian Exhibition, held in London in 1886, of a Newcombe Grand for Her Majesty the Queen to be placed in her Audience Chamber, which it still adorns, a monument to the enterprise of a Canadian firm, and of the high quality of its products.

Among the causes that have led to the splendid success of the magnificent instruments manufactured by the Newcombes has been the special attention paid to every feature of the piano. Superiority of tone is obtained by the nice drawing of the scale, and hence the richness, brilliance and mellowness that result. The musical action is such that the instrumental expression seems almost human in its beautiful shading. The sounding boards are made of the rarest and most resonant woods, while such important points as the wrest plank and the graduating soft pedal are of the newest invention. In all the different styles of the piano, the Grand, the Upright and the Square, the Newcombe Company produces an instrument that at once inspires pride in every true Canadian and wonder in the foreigner.

An Undeniable Fact.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claim for it. As a preventionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. It may save you from consumption. dw

If you have any pains in the joints caused from cold or dampness, do not wait until it develops into a bad case of rheumatism, but ask W. R. Grentrex, druggist, for a bottle of Royal Rheumatic Remedy. dw

ALWAYS AVOID harsh, purgative pills. They first make you sick and then leave you constipated. Carter's Little Liver Pills regulate the bowels and make you well. Dose, one pill. dw

Cold in the head is alarmingly prevalent at this season, and if permitted to run unchecked is certain to result in Catarrh. Nasal Balm will instantly relieve the worst case. Try it. ecdw

TO THE ELECTORS —OF— West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In connexion with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

A TRIO OF ELOPEMENTS

FAITHLESS WOMEN BROUGHT TO BOOK IN MANY PLACES.

Captured and Jailed at Ottawa—Peculiar Sequel to the Flight of a Man with His Sister-in-Law—Courtship and Prison—Man's Inhumanity to Woman.

BRACEBRIDGE, Feb. 22.—A man named Walker, who has been living at Baysvrine for a few weeks, was arrested there on a charge of bigamy. His wife and daughter, who live in Toronto, have been separated from him for 17 years. They bear the name of being very respectable, and have desired him to leave this woman (as it seems that this is not the first time this has happened), and return to the family circle; and all would be forgiven. Constable Hill escorted his prisoner to Bracebridge, where he will stand his trial.

Sensational Termination of a Courtship.

EMERSON, Feb. 22.—John Lee is a traveling horse doctor. At Emerson he was smitten by the charms of a Miss Pearce and paid her considerable attention. It was of no result, as the young woman was already plighted to a Dominion City resident. However, Lee determined to ascertain his chances of success, and called at the house to get an answer from the young woman. The mother keeps a boarding-house, and on the table was a copy of The Police Gazette, one of the illustrations in which showed a man shooting at a woman. Picking this paper from the table Lee approached the mother, and pointing to the picture, remarked:

"That scene will be enacted here soon!"

Lee then went into the front room, where Miss Pearce was sitting, and in a serious mood informed her he wanted an answer within five minutes, and if she refused to take him he would shoot her on the spot. While speaking the last of these words Lee put his right hand back, as if to draw something from his hip pocket. Miss Pearce told Lee if he would come back in 15 minutes she would give him an answer. On his leaving the house the constable was sent for and an information sworn out against him for using threatening language. Lee said he had no intention of shooting and that he was only playing a practical joke. However, the justice imposed a fine of $100 or three months' imprisonment and he went to jail.

Mother and Child Go to Jail.

PETERBORO, Feb. 22.—Martha Johnston's story is the usual sad one of a young girl who had come into town and met a heartless scoundrel who accomplished her ruin and then deserted her. The girl's father lived in Irondale, her mother being dead, and to him she was sent. Yesterday Martha appeared at the police court again, carrying her infant child in her arms. She had the careworn look of a woman of 30 who had seen nothing of the sunny side of life. A few soda biscuits she carried in her pockets had furnished her food in her journey from her back country home. The girl wanted to be sent somewhere for the winter until her child had become somewhat less of a burden, not requiring so much attention. The magistrate accordingly gave her three months as a vagrant, and she and her child went to jail.

Sequel to an Elopement.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 22.—Frances Johnson in June, 1882, deserted his wife and eloped with the wife of her brother, William Thomson of Herschel Township. The two have since lived at Fenelon Falls. Yesterday Johnson was arrested on a charge of assisting in the larceny of goods from the house of Thomson.

Elopers Caught.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—The wife of Benjamin Nelson, a German sugar refiner of Montreal, eloped two months ago with a friend of her husband and yesterday Nelson traced the couple to a house in Clarence-street in this city and had them arrested on a charge of stealing $100 and several household articles. The husband agreed to withdraw the charge against his wife if she would go back with him, but this she declined to do.

Another Victory For Capron.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—In the Brunswick-Balke Collendar billiard tournament Friday night Maggioli defeated McLaughlin. Score: Maggioli, 400; best run, 44; average, 9.4-44. McLaughlin, 364; best run, 36; average, 8.30-43. Catton defeated Hatley, 400 to 226; Carter beat Shaw, 400 to 134.

In to-night's play Ives defeated Catton. The score was: Ives, 400; best runs, 101, 80, 81; average, 18.4-23; Catton, 133; best run, 25; average, 5.7-21. Hatley defeated Maggioli, 400 to 327: Hatley's best run, 62; average, 12.4-33; Maggioli's best run, 35; average, 7.3-39. Capron beat Shaw, 400 to 378; Capron's best run, 39; average, 5.41-71; Shaw's best run, 39; average, 5.33-70.

The World's Skating Championship.

ALBANY, Feb. 21.—Representatives of the National Amateur Skating Association met in this city to-night and completed arrangements for a fancy skating contest for the championship of the world, to be held Monday in the rink of the Empire Curling Club here. The program is a long one. The entries are: Louis Rubenstein, Montreal; George D. Phillips, New York Athletic Club; Embury McLean, New York Athletic Club; J. F. Bacon, Arlington Boat Club, Massachusetts; Herbert F. Evans, Boston. The prize is now held by Rubenstein.

Fullert on Waterloo Cup.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The coursing match at Altcar, near Liverpool, for the Waterloo Cup closed to-day. In the first run of the first heat to-day Colonel J. T. North's dog Fullerton, by Greenflck, out of Bit of Fashion, defeated T. Baxter's dog Buttes Park, by Jester, out of Brampton. In the second run, G. F. Fawcett's bitch Faster and Faster (late Pride of Oakfield), by Norther's Express, out of Pride of Belmont, beat Bovril. This left Fullerton and Faster and Faster to run the deciding heat. Fullerton was the favorite in the betting, starting in the final heat at odds of 5 to 2 on him. He proved the winner, defeating Faster and Faster by two lengths.

Valuable Thoroughbreds Poisoned.

DUBLIN, Feb. 21.—A dispatch from Celbridge, County Kildare, says that nine valuable thoroughbred race horses and hunters at Sherwin's training stable, at Celbridge, have been poisoned by arsenic, which was placed in the oats given to them for food. The thoroughbred's were owned by the Duke of Leinster's steward, Captain Thornton, and other men of the neighborhood.

117 LIVES LOST.

FRIGHTFUL DISASTER IN A NOVA SCOTIA MINE.

Vessels Collide in the British Channel—A Family of six Cremated—Powder Mills Blown Up—An Arms Factory at Fez

SPRING HILL COAL MINES, N.S., Feb. 23—The greatest calamity that ever befel a Canadian colliery occurred yesterday afternoon, when 120 lives were lost. The full extent of the disaster was not realized until to-day. But to-day the terrible nature of the catastrophe is realized. At the lowest estimate 117 lives are lost, and 60 or 70 heartbroken widows and nearly 300 helpless little children are thrown upon the mercies of the world. The Spring Hill colliery is the largest in Canada. It was opened up about 15 years ago, and is located 6 miles from the main track of the Intercolonial Railway, and on the line of the Spring Hill and Parrsboro Railway. Fully 2000 hands are employed in and about the mines. Its output exceeds a half a million tons per annum. The property is owned by Montreal and English capitalists, largely supplies fuel for the Intercolonial Railway, and controls the market along that road as far west as Quebec. It was formerly managed by R. G. Leckie, now manager of Londonderry Iron Works. He was succeeded more than a year ago by J. R. Cowans, a young man from Montreal, son of one of the principal owners of the property. The town comprises some 7000 people, who are solely dependent upon the mines.

The explosion took place at 1 o'clock and was confined to No. 6 and 7 balances, where it did its most deadly work. The balances are in the west side of No. 1 slope, extending from the 1200 feet to 1900 feet level in No. 2 slope. The two pits are connected for purposes of ventilation, and it is owing to this cause that so many were killed in No. 1. The bodies taken out of that pit were not mutilated in any way and there was evidence of having been suffocated by the deadly after-damp. At No. 1 slope there were some ghastly sights. The first exploring party found bodies of two so badly mutilated that they could only be taken to the surface in bags. One body was cut in two across the abdomen, one arm was missing, the face was a mass of blackened, burnt flesh.

The work of recovering the bodies was pushed forward and a searching party entered the mine at 11 o'clock last night. A number of bodies were taken up and to-day the work is going on steadily. The dead are being brought up more rapidly and it is expected that most of the dead will be out of the pits to-day, except those who are buried beneath falls of roof. Two of those wounded died last night.

Sad Cases.

In several families the affliction is very great. Reid Carter and his two sons, Willard and Clarence, are all dead. The Carmichael family, three sons, John, Andrew and William, are dead. Jesse Armishaw went down No. 2 slope yesterday and found his three sons, Jesse and Herbert and John Brainbridge, an adopted son all lying together. The sight sickened and unnerved him so that he had to return to the surface without them, frantic with grief. Two sons of Robert McVey, both under 14 years, were laid out side by side. Hugh Bunt loses two boys, Andrew and Alexander. These sorrowful households are only a few of the large numbers from whom the bread winners have been snatched. To-day one meets everywhere women and children weeping piteously. The deepest gloom has settled over the whole community. During the night the people were astir, and little knots of men eagerly discussed the situation. A special train arrived from Westville and other mining centres in Pictou county with relations of the dead and others. A steady stream of curious people has been pouring into the town from all quarters, and the visiters are numerous. Some of the bodies taken out were fearfully mutilated. Those who were beyond recognition were identified by their clothing or marks on the body. The carpenter shop has been temporarily converted into a deadhouse to which all corpses are taken, washed and prepared for their coffins. It is a most gruesome sight. The shop is continually crowded by sorrowing relatives looking for their dead.

94 Bodies Recovered.

Up to 11 o'clock to-night 94 bodies had been recovered. Arrangements have been completed for a public funeral.

This morning Chief Inspector Gilpin arrived by special train, and accompanied by Mr. Madden, went down the mine. Mr. Gilpin says so far as the evidence shows the explosion occurred on either No. 6 or 7 balances, and that the force of the explosion in these balances was very great. Most of the timber was knocked out, allowing the roof to fall, breaking the boxes and mutilating men and horses. Two small fires were smoldering in the debris, but were extinguished at once without any difficulty by the searching party. The explosion, Gilpin says, did very little damage to property in No. 2 slope, having extended but a short distance beyond the tunnel, and all the doors in that slope are from suffocation by afterdamp. The explosion may have been caused by an outbreak of gas which had taken place while the men were away taking their dinner a short time previously. Another theory of the cause of the explosion which is generally accepted is that it was due to a blown-out shot.

Mayor Hall has issued an appeal to the public for assistance in which he states that 117 lives are known to be lost, 51 widows have been left behind and 187 children made fatherless. The first subscription of $300 was received from J. W. Clendenman, president of the Acadian Coal Company, New York. The public funeral of the 92 dead recovered will take place Tuesday. Over 20 bodies are yet to be recovered, including that of Manager Swift.

Ran Down in the English Channel—Seven of Her Crew Drowned.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—One of the Great Eastern Railway Company's channel mail steamers came into collision this morning with the steamship Queen of the North Sea. The latter sank soon after the collision. Seven of the crew of the Queen of the North Sea were drowned.

KINGSTON, Feb. 20.—Alfred Laidley, the telegraph operator charged with negligence in connection with the recent railroad collision near Ballantyne, has surrendered to the police and been admitted to bail.

OSMAN DIGNA ROUTED.

AND OVER 800 OF HIS FOLLOWERS SLAIN.

A Hand-to-Hand Encounter with Sword and Bayonet—The Egyptians Fight Bravely and Suffer Comparatively Little Loss—Digna Fleeing to Kassala

ADAFFIE, Egypt, via Suakim, Feb. 21.—A severe engagement was fought at Tokar on Feb. 19 between the Egyptian troops who recently left El Teb and Osman Digna's forces. Nearly 1000 Nves were lost in the battle which followed the appearance of the Egyptians at Tokar.

The Egyptians made their advance during the early dawn of the morning of Thursday. The enemy was sighted near Tokar, and, after an exchange of shots between the skirmishers of the enemy and the advance guard of the Egyptians, the latter pushed forward through the brushwood surrounding Tokar and its neighborhood in order to seize the old Government building, now little more than a ruin, but which forms a strategic point where a force of infantry could hold out against heavy odds. The dervishes, seeing the object of the Egyptian advance is that direction, made a rush for the building and surrounded it by a compact mass of Arab riflemen, who poured a hot fire into the ranks of the advancing Egyptians. The latter, however, were not to be checked in their advance, returning the Arabs' fire as they advanced.

The Egyptians fixed bayonets when within easy distance of the enemy, and charged upon the defenders of the ruins. For over an hour a desperate hand-to-hand, bayonet to spear and sword fight followed, during which the Egyptian troops fought with the most determined bravery. Finally the Egyptian cavalry made a brilliant charge upon the dervishes, who retired in disorder, suffering a crushing defeat. The dervishes numbered at least 2000 fighting men. About an equal force of Egyptians succeeded in reaching the shelter of the building before the Arabs surrounded them for the attack.

After the retreat of the dervishes the troops found over 700 dead around the position mentioned, while large numbers of dead were lying in the bushes around the buildings. Nearly every Emir of importance who was present at the battle fell upon the field. Osman Digma did not take part in the fight, but watched its progress from a point near Afadita. After seeing that his faithful followers had suffered a disastrous defeat, Osman Digma, accompanied by about 30 horsemen, fled toward Temrin.

The losses upon the part of the Egyptians are Captain Barrow and 12 men killed, and Captain Beech and four Egyptian officers and 42 men wounded.

After leaving a force of troops to garrison Tokar, the Egyptian troops marched direct to Afadite and ascended the hills recently occupied by the enemy. The place they occupied was found to have been abandoned, though there were hundreds of Arabs in the vicinity. These Arabs quietly surrendered to the Egyptians, handing over to their captors a number of banners, spears and rifles and two guns. The Egyptians also captured large quantities of stores and ammunition.

The Egyptians to-night bivouac at Afadite and advance on Temrin to-morrow.

Osman Digna is fleeing to Kassala.

He was the sixth earl, the peerage having been conferred by William III in 1696. A Tramp Murdered in British Columbia.

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 22.—Some three weeks ago the particulars of the finding of a body of an unknown man, floating in the Fraser River, a little distance below Chilliwhack, were published. Two men have now been arrested as perpetrators of the deed. These are a half-breed named Victor and an Indian named Sheel. The murdered man was named Patrick O'Shea. He was a tramp, and claimed to have walked across the continent from Montreal to Westminster. Not finding any employment to suit him there, he turned eastward again, and got as far as Nicomen Slough, where he met with the prisoners, and took up his abode with them. This was in December last, and nothing more is known of him or his doings till the body was recovered from the waters of the Fraser. The body of O'Shea was found floating in the Fraser, below Chilliwhack, on Jan. 23, and the evidence at the coroner's inquest showed that the man had been killed by a violent blow on the head and afterwards dragged to the river with a rope round his neck. The prisoners are held on remand, and will be tried this week.

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—Hon. Samuel C. Cobb died last evening at his residence, No. 235 Boylston-street, aged 64 years. Mr. Cobb had been ill for several months, but his death is attributed to poisoning by arsenic, which he inhaled from the wall paper, draperies and bed clothing of his room.

Disturbance at a Funeral.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The remains of Col. Dyott, ex-Member of Parliament, were interred in the family vault at Lichfield, Staffordshire, yesterday evening. The funeral was a remarkable event. Twenty torch-bearers surrounded the coffin as it was borne to the Dyott vault, and a crowd of people, estimated at 15,000, witnessed the ceremonies. The Mayor of Lychfield and the Corporation in their rites of office, preceded by the Town Crier and the Mace-Bearer, met the hearse at the church and escorted the coffin up the centre aisle to the catafalque, upon which it was placed before the altar rails.

While the funeral services were in progress, the church being packed to the doors, thousands of the would-be spectators, being unable to gain admittance, made a rush at the doors of the sacred edifice, causing a scene of wild excitement. During the tumult the police present had a hard fight with the crowd, which was attempting to force an entrance into the church, but the officers finally succeeded in closing the doors. The crowd of people gathered about the church and church-yard and did not disperse until about midnight.

FROM THE JAWS OF DEATH.

Seven Starving Men Rescued From an Uninhabited Island.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 23.—The schooner Ellen has arrived here, bringing several men who, since Nov. 30, have been living on the Guadulupe Island, off the coast of Lower California. The men are reduced to mere skeletons, having subsisted on fresh fish, wild goats, etc., as they could catch by hand or with primitive traps. The men's wretched condition is due to the heartlessness of a companion named Bartell, who sailed away and left them on the island almost without provisions and ammunition. They had been engaged in killing wild goats and had disposed of one load of skins which netted about $700, and went after another. Bartell was left in charge of the sloop while the men went ashore. The whereabouts of Bartell is unknown.

Misery Among Pearl Workers.

VIENNA, Feb. 22.—The committee of citizens appointed to investigate and relieve the wretchedness of the poor in Vienna, and especially the workers in pearl, have met some harrowing incidents. In one family the father, mother and three children had not tasted food in three days and an infant was on the point of death from hunger. Women came to the doors wrapped in ragged bed clothing, having no garments to cover them, and begged with weak voices, not for themselves, but for their children. Men were found who could not walk erect or rather because their feet were frozen and swollen by going without shoes. And yet the Imperial Court at Vienna is having a very brilliant season, and the balls held are splendid in the display of toilets.

The Tables Turned.

WHITBY, Feb. 23.—A detective by the name of John Williamson searched the house of John Badgerow at Claremont some weeks ago and found an immense stock of jewelry, purses, combs and general knick-knacks, which were rather an unusual stock to be found in a farmhouse. Badgerow a day or two ago swore out a warrant charging the officer with stealing a diamond pin, a diamond brooch and a diamond ring. It was alleged that when searching Badgerow's house he had stolen these articles. The detective spent a week in jail in Uxbridge and Whitby and came up for trial yesterday. He was shown to the satisfaction of the court that he was entirely innocent of the crime and he was discharged.

Suicide at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Feb. 22.—Mrs. Henry Prowse wife of Henry Prowse, who lives in Emerald-street, hung herself in the barn in the rear of her house yesterday afternoon by attaching one end of a rope to a beam in the shed and the other end around her neck. She then jumped from a chair, and when found some hours later life was extinct. Mrs. Prowse was about 35 years of age, and was in good health and spirits up to yesterday. Domestic trouble is said to be the cause of her committing the rash act.

Fatally Scalded.

BEAVERTON, Feb. 22.—A little nine-year-old daughter of Mr. Tucker got very badly scalded a few days ago. She was sitting near the stove lacing her shoes, when the boiler being lifted from the stove was accidentally upset on her. She was terribly scalded, and there is small hope of her recovery.

A Mother and Child Lose Their Lives.

SAGINAW, Feb. 21.—Mrs. John Jones, residing on Astor-street, whose husband is in the employ of Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad, and with her infant child, were fatally burned this evening by her own carelessness in attempting to clean the floor of some kerosene that had been accidentally spilled, by touching a lighted match to the oil.

The Insane King of Bavaria.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The Kaiser has been consulted informally as to the proposed deposition on March 12 of the insane King Otto of Bavaria, and is said to have given a non-committal answer, indicating that he did not favor it. The impression prevails, however, that the mad monarch will be deposed, and that Luitpold, his aged uncle, who has administered the regency with much ability will be proclaimed King.

Came Home to Die.

FONTHILL, Feb. 20.—David Guinter died at his residence in Pelham this afternoon of pulmonary consumption. Only a few days ago he returned from Florida, which climate failed to benefit him, and he came home to die. Mr. Guinter was an extensive farmer and one of the largest grain producers in this section.

Tithes Bill Passed by the Lords.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The House of Lords has passed the Tithes bill to a second reading, without a division.

Another Colliery Disaster.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—A colliery at Mislowitz, Hungary, caved in to-day, burying a large number of miners. Four dead bodies have been taken out and there is no hope of rescuing any of the men alive as the work of excavating the mines will be very slow and the victims have undoubtedly been suffocated.

Stand Your Ground.

When you make up your mind to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy some other preparation instead. Clerks may claim that "ours is as good as Hood's" and all that, but the peculiar merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla cannot be equalled. Therefore have nothing to do with substitutes and insist upon having Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and building-up medicine.

The Issues of the Contest.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

A number of resident property holders in our good town who have no hesitation in admitting that free trade is the true policy for this country as a whole, and particularly for the farming community, are at a loss to know how to vote in the coming election. All their property being in this town, they fear to help in bringing in free trade lest it might injure our manufacturing interest. They have asked me my own opinion particularly with reference to the Edison Electric Works and other new industries.

I would have some hesitation in answering my friends if I had not noticed the condition of our manufactures all over the country. In St. Thomas, Woodstock, Brantford, Hamilton and other places, half of the workshops are either idle or working less than half of their men. Thousands of mechanics are weary waiting for the work to begin. The storehouses are full of machinery and goods, and until there is a market for them no more will be made. Such an old firm as Watson of Ayr, who moved his great shops to Toronto, has been compelled to suspend payment, and the reason he assigns is that the country is supplied and cannot pay for what they have. As was foretold in 1878 protection has developed more manufacturing than the country called for, hence the ruin to the cotton and other factories, so many of which are lying idle — nearly. Hundreds of manufacturers have come out flat-footed and declare that the limited market, coupled with the increased cost of raw material, owing to protection or high duties, has proved their ruin; and that they prefer to fight their way with British pluck in the American market than to be hide-bound in a narrow, restricted market. Now, sir, I am quite satisfied that if our manufacturers could go freely into the States the natural advantages of Peterborough will so present themselves that we will become the Manchester of America. Every water power between here and Lakefield would quickly be taken up and we would get huge industries. It will be a case of the survival of the fittest, Peterborough has nothing to lose but everything to gain.

Now for the Edison Works—that enterprise was by that company located here to be on the lines of the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. to serve for this Dominion, and to be on the best lines for shipment to Japan or China, or to Europe. They are covering the continent with the products of their works. Their chief protection is in their patent rights. They charge high prices because they control the patents—the revenue tariff affects them very little.

Now as to the Lock Works, this Company last year paid its stockholders 8 per cent. dividend in cash and 33 per cent. dividend in stock—in all 35 per cent! How is that for high? Don't you think there are brains and energy and pluck enough in Canadians to hold their own against the Americans? Even if they had a little less profit they can stand it; but who is the craven who is ready to admit that the artizans of Canada, with their northern pluck and energy and skill, won't be in as good a place in the race as the manufacturers of any State in the Union? Canadians are chafing for broader markets—more scope for their energies. They fear none. Down with the barriers and let us at them, and Canada will be on top. My all is here, and I long for the day when we will cease looking to St Domingo and other foreign countries, because a high wall is shutting us out from the natural markets at our very door. Notwithstanding all the hindrances created by high tariff, our trade has burst through the barriers to the American markets, and in 1889 we sent into the States, against a tariff of from 40 to 65 per cent., $43,422,404 worth of goods, while to England, with no tariff against us, we only sent $38,105,126 worth. You can't make water run up hill. Trade will just as surely find its natural outlet and any attempt to hinder it will only result in such resistance as will finally sweep all before it. The man who attempts to turn commerce against the law of commerce, is like the old woman trying to keep out the tide with a besom. Let him get out of the way or the tide will brush him away.

The present Government has been trying to bind this young nation in chains of slavery, falsely calling it protection, but the giant is awake and at the cry—"The Philistines be upon thee"—the cords are broken and he is free. The fifth of March, 1891, will be the new birthday of this nation.

SENEX.

"An Open Letter."

Mr. Arthur Rutherford Converted Again, or, Rather, "Warmed Over."

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—In the issue of the Morning Times of Monday, Feb. 23rd, is published an "open letter" from Mr. Arthur Rutherford, in which he withdraws his promise of supporting Mr. Hall in the present election contest and transfers his political allegiance to Mr. Stevenson. This is not at all surprising; no one that has had any experience of Mr. Rutherford in political matters expects him to do otherwise than he has done on the present occasion. It is simply regarded as an indication that Mr. Rutherford as a practical politician is, like his letter, "open" to arguments that have influenced him for the last half dozen elections. In 1886 he pledged his support to Mr. Stratton and, it is said, did not fulfil his promise; in the last local election he "scratched" from the party he pretends to belong to, to the Equal Rights platform. In the Cox-Stevenson election Mr. Rutherford after pledging his support to Mr. Cox found it convenient to be absent in Minneapolis, in the United States, during the polling day. This is a hint as to the record of Mr. Rutherford which shows that he is a man whom nobody knows where to find, except in the light, the knowledge of what he thinks best for his own interests. The defection of a man of his characteristics is only a benefit to a candidate. If he is a sample of the "prominent Liberals" which the Empire claims as converts, its list is not one that will dismay any Liberal. The reasons Mr. Rutherford adduces for his apostasy have been dealt with in your columns, and there is no necessity for me to refer to them, except as insufficient and childish and anything but the real reason that influenced him in the "sharp curve"—the "inside edge"—he has taken.

Yours truly,
No. THREE WARD.

Who is the Lady?

Aristocratic Wrong-Doing by a Simple Peer's Daughter.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The sensational divorce already cabled is the talk of the town.

Adjoining a dining-room set aside for the use of barristers' clerks in the House of Lords is a dark passage. One evening lately the husband was surprised to see a lady who resembled his wife entering this passage.

The impression produced on him was so strong that he turned back, entered the dark passage, struck a light and found his wife in the arms of the person implicated. This is the story as the clique.

Mr. Labouchere, who is personally opposed to the man suspected, is only waiting for the first move in the courts to make the whole affair public.

The Scottish Leader says to-day editorially: "The prospect for a sensational divorce case coming before court is still eagerly discussed in the political clubs. Up-till last night no petition had been filed, and, although the case is known to be in the hands of an eminent firm of solicitors, the delay is considered to point to an amicable settlement.

"The gentleman upon whom devolves the responsibility of setting the wheels of the law in motion is disposed, out of consideration for the family, to view a private arrangement with favor.

"On no account, however, will he hold any communications, directly or indirectly, with his wife, who, he alleges, has shamefully betrayed him.

"Not the least interesting aspect of the case is that the political dandy who is said to be concerned has in the most offensive manner possible been posing as an embodiment of injured innocence in society circles. The case is sure to cause a greater sensation than even that of Mr. Parnell and Mrs. O'Shea.

"The lady who has been the cause of all the trouble is a little over 30 years of age, belongs to an historical Scottish family, and has for the last few seasons been one of the foremost leaders of fashion in the West End of London."

Foreign Notes.

Fifty insurgents have been killed in a fight on the frontier of Wuntho, India.

French ships have been shelling the native villages at the Island of Raiteer.

General Silva, a retired army officer, and many others have been arrested for complicity in the Oporto revolutionary riots.

Advices from Chili report desperate fighting at Pisagua resulting in the defeat of the insurgents. A battle is in progress at Iquique.

The Catholic primate of Armagh in a sermon yesterday praised the dissenters in England for having risen as one to mark their abhorrence of the sin of impurity.

The International skating tournament at Christiania was won by Hagen, the Norwegian, who won the 2 and 3-mile contests. Cormack, the Canadian, won the mile race in 2 minutes 34 2-5 seconds. Twelve thousand spectators witnessed the races.

A pastoral letter from the Bishop of Cloyne was read in all the Catholic Churches in the County Cork yesterday, warning the Catholics that the threats of Parnell point to a design to induce the people to ignore the precepts of religion and defy the authority of the church.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to hold an outdoor anti-Parnell meeting at Carrick-on-Shannon, county Leitrim, yesterday. The Parnellsympathisers, who were in large force, charged upon and demolished the platform which had been erected for the speakers' accommodation.

A True Bill.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Brooks, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Phebe Mosher, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.
